Iceland Gets $2,300,000, First Loan Under ECA

Hoffman Announces Funds Will Be Used For Reequipment of Island Fisheries

The first loan under the Marshall Plan was made yesterday. It was $23,000,000 to aid Iceland to build up its fisheries.

Eight more loans, totaling more than 700 million dollars, have been asked of the Economic Cooperation Administration, Paul G. Hoffman, administrator, told his advisory council yesterday. It was the council's first meeting.

Hoffman also reported that grants for relief and recovery purchases are being made at the rate of more than 100 million dollars a week. The total outlay yesterday was 817 million.

Monday Hoffman will make public its total allocations of aid to each of the 16 European countries coming under ECA, China, Trieste and bizonal Germany.

Congress specified that 20 per cent of aid funds should be loans. The loan to Iceland will finance purchase of a ship, fisheries machinery, equipment and supplies from the United States.

619 Employes on Payroll

ECA's payroll now shows 619 employes, but more than 49,000 persons have filed applications. Only 296 are permanent employes, 175 are temporary, 48 have been borrowed from other Federal agencies and 100 are part-time consultants.

"Now, three months after we took office, practically all key positions on the domestic side have been filled, half the foreign mission heads have been named and the rest are under active consideration," Mr. Hoffman said.

Houston Named

Meanwhile, Bryan Houston, executive vice president of the Pepsi-Cola Co. and former advertising man, yesterday was appointed director of information for the Economic Cooperation Administration.

Houston, 48-year-old native Texan, will manage Marshall Plan publicity both in this country and in Europe. He will have headquarters here.

Houston was vice president of Young and Rubicam, Inc., advertising agency, and took the Pepsi-Cola position in February, 1946. He is a resident of Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Older Workers Rated High, Survey Shows

By The Associated Press

A Government survey showed yesterday that men and women workers in the 45-or-older age group offer "distinct advantages" to employers over younger workers.

The survey was made by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics. It is a six-month study of the work records of about 18,000 workers of all ages, including 1300 women.

BLS said the survey showed:

"Not only may the worker in the 45-and-over age group offer more highly developed skills, more mature judgment and more settled work habits as against the stamina and ability of youth, but he is frequently less likely to be absent and is less prone to injury than the younger worker."

The survey showed the younger worker has it on the older one in one respect, however: Although the younger worker is injured more often, the older worker when hurt takes longer to recover.

Workers under 20 had the highest absentee rate—an average 5.8 days out of 100 workdays. The absentee rate for the 45-year age group was 3.4 out of 100.

Dewey vs. Truman In Sunday's Gallup Poll

Tomorrow's Post will publish the findings of two Gallup polls on the presidential candidates: First their standing with voters in January, shortly after Henry Wallace announced his candidacy, then their standing in a pre-convention "trial heat"—Dewey vs. Truman vs. Wallace—in June, just before the conventions.

The Gallup Polls appear in Washington exclusively in The Washington Post. Look for them regularly throughout the campaign—they show you changes in political sentiment throughout the nation.

American B-29s to Simulate Bombing Attacks in Germany

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Berlin, July 16.—American Superfortresses will hold simulated bombing attacks over strife-torn Germany within the near future, Lieut. Gen. Curtis LeMay disclosed tonight.

The commander of United States Air Forces in Europe told this reporter in a telephone interview from his Wiesbaden headquarters that the 60 B-29s now en route from the United States to England will conduct "normal routine training flights" over large areas of Europe.

Air Force headquarters in Washington announced the departure of two groups of long-range bombers for Britain earlier today. Their mission was discribed as training operation of short duration. But coming at this stage of the cold-war battle for Berlin, presence of the bomber fleet in Europe is viewed as a diplomatic maneuver that will have great effect.

Staging of mock bombing raids over or near trouble spots should press home to the Russians and others on the continent the tremendous threat of globe-ranging craft which can carry atomic bombs.

LeMay said that besides Germany the B-29s would make simulated bombing missions "over the Mediterranean." He said it had not been decided exactly where and when the flights will be. However, it is believed certain the craft will fly over or near Italy.

Such flights would have a psychological effect on that nation, swept this week by Communist violence.

The Air Force general said the bombers will not land in Germany and probably will not fly over Berlin. Operation Vittles traffic over the air corridors to the city will be too heavy.

LeMay said joint maneuvers will be held with the B-29s and 16 jet fighters also coming to England on a "training mission." He did not know yet where they would be held.

While this show of American air power was mapped, the other unique demonstration of Western aerial might—the airlift to Berlin—continued at full strength.

A total of 475 American and British planes brought in close to 2400 tons of food and coal to the city during the day.

Marshal of the British Royal Air Force Arthur Tedder flew in for a brief inspection of the operation. The RAF chief told reporters Berlin could be supplied indefinitely by air if enough planes and facilities are provided.

American officials also expressed confidence that the airlift could hold Berlin for the Western powers. They said Russia now can take no other measures "short of overt action tantamount to war" which will affect the basic situation here.

Allied air leaders consider Russian announcements of parachute operations and aircraft training flights near the corridor as mere heckling. So far they have not interfered with the airlift, in fact, for the most part have not been carried out.

Bernadotte Speeds U. N. Deadline

Moves Up Time 10½ Hours, Orders Fighting to Stop By 11 A. M. Sunday

Lake Success (NYHT), July 16.—Count Folke Bernadotte, United Nations mediator for Palestine, ordered Arabs and Jews tonight to halt their war at or before 11 a. m. Sunday (EDT).

Acting under the Security Council resolution of yesterday threatening sanctions or military action, Count Bernadotte told the two sides he would have observers on hand "as quickly as possible" to see they comply.

The count's message, which advanced the Security Council peace deadline by some 10½ hours, was dispatched by telegraph on the eve of his departure for Rhodes at 9:30 a. m. Saturday to put the truce in operation.

It was sent while an atmosphere of doubt prevailed at Lake Success over intention of the Arab states.

Peace for Jerusalem apparently was assured. Jews in a message to the U. N. and Arabs in an announcement at Amman, Trans-Jordan, agreed to stop fighting tonight in the Holy City.

But although Israel also agreed to the U. N. order for Palestine as a whole, Arabs had not yet declared themselves.

All that was known here was that the political committee of the seven-nation Arab League, meeting at Aley, Lebanon, possibly was discussing acceptance. Although all Arab leaders were willing to accept a cease-fire in the Holy City, the League was believed split so far on acceptance or rejection of the United Nations ultimatum for the Palestine war itself.

Bernadotte Wants 200 Observers

Arab rejection, under the resolution, would allow the Security Council no alternative but to consider economic sanctions under Article 41 of the Charter and if that should fail, military force by member states as a last resort.

[A U. N. source was quoted by the United Press as saying the world-wide embargo on arms to Palestine might be revised in favor of Israel if the Arabs should reject the truce order.—Editor's note.]

Bernadotte wanted, he said, some 300 observers, in contrast to less than 100 who enforced the four-week temporary truce which expired a week ago. For an indefinite truce, he would require, he added, much more transport and communications equipment than he had before. And the United States, France and Belgium, whom he asked for men and materials, had not yet determined their ability to supply them.

By requesting observers from the United States, France and Belgium, Bernadotte raised another issue likely to provide thorny problems for the truce—exclusion of Russian participation. Russia dislikes the count's mediation efforts likely to alter the U. N. partition plan. In addition, the Soviet Union would like to have Russians assisting in Palestine.

An illustration of the mediator's difficulty was that the United States had no idea where it would get its observers, whether from the Army, from Government departments or from civilian recruiting. The Army almost certainly lacks 125 officers both available and capable of the ticklish kind of truce enforcement.

Steel Hikes Wages, Plans Price Boost

170,000 Receive 13c-an-Hour Raise; 25,500 at Ford Get 9 Per Cent Increase

By The Associated Press

The big United States Steel Corp. yesterday granted wage increases averaging 13 cents an hour to 170,000 workers and announced a jump in prices would soon follow.

At the same time the Ford Motor Co., deadlocked over wages with 116,000 restless production workers, boosted the salaries of 25,500 other employes an average of 9 per cent. The company rejected Federal mediation in its wage dispute with the CIO United Auto Workers.

The United States Steel wage boosts, ranging from 9½ cents to 25 cents, won quick ratification by the CIO United Steelworkers' wage policy committee which hailed the higher pay as "a great victory." The increases oring the average hourly wage to $1.68.

Plan Price Increases

President Benjamin F. Fairless of "Big Steel" issued a statement declaring:

"The steel-producing subsidiaries of the United States Steel will soon announce increases in their prices for various steel products at their mills or shipping points, following the completion of the cost study now being made. . . . The forthcoming price increases are solely due to the fact that steel prices have not kept pace with rising costs."

He said also that:

"These forthcoming price increases are not occasioned to the slightest extent by the recent abandonment by these subsidiaries of the basing point method of selling steel in order to comply with the law of the land . . ."

May Jump $10 a Ton

Amount of the coming steel price boosts has been a subject for much speculation. Iron Age, metalworking trade journal, estimated the advances at as much as $10 a ton.

Last winter, the steel companies announced a series of price increases in various specialty products like tubing. In February, the major producers upped the price of semifinished steel an average of about $5 a ton. That move touched off sharp criticism in Congress and elsewhere.

Fairless' statement cited advances in the cost of coal, railroad freight rates, "purchased goods and services," and scrap, but added:

"Steel will continue after these price increases to be the lowest priced basic commodity."

The union statement, released by President Philip Murray, said the present contract with big steel is extended to April 30, 1950, with the union reserving the right to

Stocks Decline Broadly on Steel Wage Pact News

New York, July 16 (AP).—Heavy selling flattened the stock market today following announcement by U. S. Steel Corp. of a wage-price increase.

Leading issues, principally oils, were knocked down a few cents to more than $3 a share. Volume was the largest in about three weeks.

Selling was influenced by fears that a new round of price increases might cut heavily into consumer purchases. Hundreds of consumer items will cost more as a result of higher steel prices.

Today's break followed an even more severe break yesterday.

Court Orders S. C. Democrats To Allow Negroes to Enroll

Charleston, S. C., July 16 (AP).—The South Carolina Democratic Party was directed today in a Federal order to enroll Negroes and grant them full rights in party affairs.

William P. Baskin, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee who had led the State delegation at the national convention in Philadelphia in condemning civil rights proposals, said the order "will be carried out fully."

The directive was contained in a preliminary injunction issued by Federal Judge J. Waties Waring on petition of a Beaufort Negro, David Brown, who asked that Negroes be allowed to participate in the party.

"It's a disgrace and shame when you must come into court and ask a judge to tell you you are an American," Judge Waring snapped.

He warned 87 State and county party leaders, who were named defendants, that imprisonment awaited any party official who failed to comply fully with the spirit and letter of the decision.

Judge Waring asserted the order "will bar racial discrimination . . . provide that the (party) books be opened to all partes regardless of religion (and) will fix a reasonable time for the books to be opened."

Judge Waring, member of a widely known Charleston family and himself a Democrat, added: "The time has come when racial discrimination in political affairs must stop.

"Let me tell you that any disobedience to the letter and the spirit of this ruling will result in contempt proceedings; the parties responsible for any violation will be punished by imprisonment."

He declared he would include in his order a reference to the rights of religious groups. "If I don't," he observed, "Next time they may bar some of the Jews or some of the Roman Catholics."

In an even tone of voice he told

Send Points To Congress One by One, Truman Told Republicans Plan To Make It Hot At Special Session, Talk of Inquiries

By Marv Spargo
Post Reporter

President Truman is being urged by some of his congressional advisers to "pour it on" Congress during the "Turnip Day" special session in a series of messages outlining his nine-point program rather than to confine himself to a single over-all document.

The White House said yesterday no decision has been made yet as to whether the President will incorporate all his nine points in one omnibus message or whether he will send up his legislative demands one by one.

Representative Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.), ranking minority member of the House Appropriations Committee, and one of the leaders frequently consulted by Mr. Truman, told The Washington Post yesterday he believed it would be "logical" to send up a separate message on each point.

GOP Plans to Make It Hot

"After all," remarked the peppery Missouri legislator, "Congress can only work on one bill at a time."

Meanwhile, plans are developing on the Republican side to make the session starting July 26 "plenty hot enough to grow a lot of things besides turnips" as one GOP legislator put it.

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., said last night the Republicans "are not worried about the special session."

Reached by telephone at his Cape Cod vacation cottage, Martin predicted "there will be plenty of action as soon as the special session starts."

He declined to disclose how the GOP plans to meet the Chief Executive's challenge but added, "Like the boys at Bunker Hill, we'll wait to see the whites of their eyes before we fire."

Some prominent Republican Congressmen are freely predicting that the GOP, which has "somewhat restrained" its desire to investigate the Truman Administration because of the international situation, will now take the lid off.

Togliatti Gets Oxygen and Penicillin

Red Leader of Italy Develops Pneumonia; Reported Holding Own

Rome, July 16 (AP).—Oxygen and American made penicillin were administered tonight to Communist boss Palmiro Togliatti. Doctors said he is holding his own.

Togliatti, shot Wednesday by a Sicilian assassin, developed pneumonia last night, mostly in his right lung.

At 3 p. m. (EDT), doctors issued a bulletin saying "General condition is fairly good considering his wounds. The patient has been quiet and has rested."

As the Communist leader's life seemed to be in grave danger, Italy's seven-million-member Labor Confederation (CGI) began to crack up over the ill-fated, Communist-called general strike, which ended at noon.

Seek Autonomous Union

Anti-Communist labor leaders virtually completed the breakup of the massive confederation tonight with a formal call for an autonomous union "free of all party influences."

They were at odds with the policy that set up the strike.

There were 14 persons killed and 206 wounded in disorders throughout Italy during the trouble period. If Togliatti dies, most Italians believe there will be new and bloody outbreaks.

Premier Alcide de Gasperi told the Chamber of Deputies today that the interests of the nation's economy demanded an end to "political strikes" and that the government would seek legislation to outlaw them.

Such legislation would define what is a political strike and what is a lawful labor walkout, he explained.

"Respected Right to Strike"

"We have respected the right to strike," De Gasperi said. "We have not done like (Klement) Gottwald (President of communized Czechoslovakia) who, while still chief of a union organization, said immediately he achieved power: 'Now, enough of strikes.'"

"But the long series of strikes and agitations prevented the atmosphere of calm necessary to rebuild the country," he continued.

"There must be found a line between union liberty and universal suffrage. The government will face the problem as soon as the present unrest ends . . . We cannot attrib-

Russia Plans To 'Squeeze' Air Corridor

Statement Comes As U. S. Dispatches 60 B-29s to Britain

Berlin, July 16 (AP).—The Russians announced today their fighter planes would train in the air corridor used by the western powers to fly supplies to Berlin.

This came as the United States dispatched 60 B-29s—the plane that burned out Japan—to Britain on a "short" training mission.

The training trip greatly builds up United States air strength in the European area just when Russia is threatening to put the squeeze on Western Allied air travel in the Berlin corridors.

Russia Gives Warning

The Russians warned the Americans and British their fighters would go aloft from airfields at Koethen, Dalgow and Brandenburg, west and southwest of Berlin. United States operations men said the Russians told them the fighters will be flying between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m.

American military men stressed that the Russian announcement was not affecting the air shuttle into the blockaded city.

Lieut. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force commander in Europe, said here the two groups of 30 Superfortresses will be known as the "Third Air Division (Provisional)."

LeMay commanded the original Third Air Division of the U. S. Eighth Air Force in Britain during the war. Later he directed the Superfort flights which roared out of Pacific bases to batter Japan.

There are 30 Superfortresses.

23 Missing in China Air Crash; Three From U. S. Aboard

Hong Kong, (Saturday), July 17 (AP).—A flying boat crash-landed and sank during its 40-mile flight from Macao to Hong Kong late yesterday with 20 passengers and four crewmen aboard.

Air Hay Pacific Airways, officials reported one pasesnger was rescued, but had no information on the fate of the others. They said the fact the rescued passenger wore a life jacket indicated others might have also survived.

At least two Canadians and three Americans were among those aboard.

Navy Restores Promotions For Reserves

292,000 Officers Affected by System Abandoned in 1942

Some 292,000 Navy Reserve officers yesterday were returned to a system of permanent promotions abandoned June 30, 1942, because of the rapid expansion of the wartime Navy.

The Navy Department said the system would become effective August 1. During the past year the Regular Navy has been going through the process of returning to its prewar system of permanent promotions.

When the reserve promotion system becomes effective, reserve officers will hold rank and will become eligible for promotion on a basis paralleling that of the Regular Navy. Reserve officers thus will be placed in the highest grades for which they can qualify, except for certain "spot" appointments reserved for regular officers. Those reserve officers who were released after the war before receiving temporary promotion to a higher grade to which they were entitled will now be placed permanently in the higher grade, thus restoring each officer to the same relative rank he held before demobilization.

For permanent appointment, reserve officers will be required to execute an acceptance of appointment, take the oath of office and present evidence of physical fitness and satisfactory active service.

Malay Red Chief Killed by British In Jungle Fight

Kuala Lumpur, July 16 (AP).—British police said today they had killed Lau Yew, believed by them to be the leader of Communist insurgents in Malaya.

Yew, about 30, and a commander in the Malaya anti-Japanese Peoples Army during the war, was killed in a jungle battle at Kajan, 15 miles from Kuala Lumpur. Five other Chinese insurgents and six Chinese women were reported killed in the fight.

Yew was a representative of Malaya in London in 1946. He was sent there to take part in a victory parade after the Japs were beaten.

'Rebels' Seek Delegates In Missouri

Plan Mapped to Get Anti-Truman Electors In 12 More States

Birmingham, Ala., July 16 (AP).—Revolting Southern Democrats planned today to take their battle for anti-Truman electors into the President's home State of Missouri and at least a dozen other States.

These moves were mapped at preconvention caucuses today by delegates to the States' rights meeting called by Gov. Fielding H. Wright of Mississippi.

Wright led the walkout of his State at the Philadelphia convention. A decision today by the caucus on the Missouri move also included a plan to have States' rights electors on the ticket in Kentucky, home State of Senator Alben Barkley, the Philadelphia choice for Vice President.

One leader of the Southern revolt predicted the man nominated here Saturday would "carry more States than Mr. Truman."

Former Gov. Frank M. Dixon of Alabama tonight was named temporary chairman for the convention.

Laney to Attend

The appointment was announced by W. W. Wright, Jackson, Miss., conference cochairman, after a preconvention huddle of early arrivals for the meeting.

At St. Louis, Gov. Ben Laney of Arkansas, on the way home from the Democratic National Convention, decided to attend the States' rights meeting at Birmingham. He changed trains and headed for Alabama.

Previously, at Cincinnati, he indicated that neither he nor any of the Arkansas delegates would go to Birmingham.

Asked if he would accept if nominated for President by the Southern conference, he said, "I don't care to answer that question at the moment."

Rebellious Deep South party members were angered by passage of a strong civil rights plank and by overwhelming defeat of a States' rights plank.

Senator Eastland who made the prediction concerning Mr. Truman's November chances outlined a plan of action for the meeting.

Alabama and Mississippi, with 20 electoral votes between them, already are committed against Mr. Truman. He named as "certain against Truman and probably for our nominee," the following States:

Georgia, 12 electoral votes;

Flier Killed In Fiery Crash On Birthday

Col. Leroy A. Rainey, 37, member of the Strategic Plans Group, Joint Chiefs of Staff, was killed yesterday when his P-51 Mustang fighter crashed in flames near Orange, Va., shortly after taking off from Bolling Field at 1:30 p. m.

Brig. Gen. B. M. Hovey, commandant of Bolling Field, said Colonel Rainey was on a cross-country proficiency flight bound for Memphis, Tenn.

By a strange twist of fate, he was killed on his birthday. Identification papers showed that yesterday was his thirty-seventh birthday. They disclosed also that his wife, Mrs. Pauline Rainey, lives in San Antonio, Tex. Colonel Rainey was stationed at Barksdale Field, Shreveport, La., but was here on a special assignment.

Before World War II, Rainey, then a lieutenant, and his wife lived in nearby Maryland and were prominent members of the Air Force social circle. At that time, Rainey was on duty in the office of the Chief of the Air Corps.

Colonel Rainey flew B-17s in the Ninety-ninth Bomb Group of the Fifteenth Air Force in the North African and Mediterranean theaters of operation on 53 combat missions.

After the war he was a B-29 instructor at Randolph Air Force Base, Texas, for a time.

Colonel Rainey had been assigned here for about six months and was quartered at Bolling Field. Besides his wife, he leaves two teen-age daughters and his mother, Mrs. Clyde Rainey.

10 Million Lapsed Policies

VA Offices Stay Open July 31 To Reinstate GI Insurance

The Veterans' Administration ordered all its offices yesterday to remain open Saturday, July 31, to give veterans one last chance to reinstate lapsed national service life insurance policies.

Headquarters here said the hours of Saturday service would be left to the discretion of regional directors. Although the reinstatement deadline is midnight July 31, it was expected most offices would keep normal business hours.

The opportunity for veterans to reinstate lapsed policies easily—without a physical examination—first was extended in 1944.

Renewed by Congress

Congress renewed the period annually, against the recommendation of VA officials. They termed the action unfair to veterans who kept their policies in force—and thus contributed regularly to the national service life insurance fund. Congress failed to order an extension this year.

Only 1,607,000 policies have been reinstated—for a face value of $9,660,000,000. Lapsed policies still exceed 10 million with a value of more than 100 billion dollars.

Meanwhile, VA warned that thousands of veterans who took the Army's penicillin cure for syphilis may still have the disease without knowing it.

The agency urged veterans to check periodically with their private physician or local health department. The VA said in a news release:

Penicillin No Cure-All

"Contrary to the popular belief that penicillin is a cure-all for venereal disease, between 20 and 30 per cent of the cases treated with the drug are reported to be 'failures.'"

Furthermore, said Dr. Bascom Johnson, jr., the agency's assistant chief of syphilology, penicillin treatment for gonorrhea in many cases might have masked the presence of syphilis.

"The comparatively mild dosage for gonorrhea would not cure syphilis contracted at the same time," Johnson told a reporter.

"Veterans who contracted gonorrhea during the war and who did not have follow-up blood tests for syphilis once a month for four months should undergo checkups."

Medical authorities estimate the number of United States servicemen treated for venereal disease during the war at 500,000.

D. C. Bigamy Case

'Sterile' Man Held Responsible For 2 Wives' Unborn Children

A 23-year-old salesman was let off with a suspended sentence on a bigamy charge in District Court yesterday so that he can care for his two pregnant wives.

William A. Foster, pleaded guilty to the bigamy charge but said all his troubles started because he thought he was sterile.

On November 14, 1947, he married Bettie Jane Davis, 21, an attractive blonde, in the Congress Heights Baptist Church.

This wife No. 1, who lives at 35 Forrester st. sw., is expecting a baby in September. She said she lived with Foster only a month and that they parted after she became pregnant. She said he insisted he was sterile and she shouldn't be pregnant.

Last April 5, Foster married again. This time he took as his wife a good-looking brunette, Priscilla Jean Hopkins, 20, of 1801 North Hartford st., Arlington. The ceremony was performed in the Temple Baptist Church.

Wife No. 2, according to court testimony, will become a mother next January.

Precinct Detective Thomas I. Herlihy said that after his arrest on the bigamy charge Foster explained why he had parted from his wife and added that he thought his first wife had obtained an annulment.

Group Gets Fund to Buy House To Prevent Sale to Negroes

Residents of a Northeast community have pooled their resources to cooperatively purchase a house to prevent its possible sale to Negroes, it was learned yesterday.

Contract for purchase of the house, a large frame structure at 3102 24th st. ne., on the corner of Irving st., has been taken over from its original purchaser, Arthur H. Ford, by Carl Wack of 3100 24th st. ne., acting as "trustee" for the group.

The house is being held for a "suitable" purchaser.

The residents took the action after Negroes who may have been prospective buyers were seen examining the property.

Ford, an attorney and city postoffice employe, said yesterday that on May 5 he entered into a contract to buy the property for $15,000, made a $500 down payment at that time and was to make a $3500 payment on July 3.

The agent was H. C. Maynor, real estate man at 2002 Rhode Island ave. ne., acting for Frank Burn and other heirs to the property.

Ford said he bought the property with the intention of moving into it with his family, but changed his mind. He then told Maynor that he wished to dispose of it. Ford said, and also listed it with a Negro real estate man who said he had white clients for houses but no white listings.

Meanwhile, neighbors saw Ne-

Czech Reds Arrest U. N. Group Aide

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

News reached State Department sources yesterday of the arrest in Czechoslovakia of Dr. D. Lev Sychrava, famous Czecholsovakian newspaper man, and one of the founders of the Czech Republic.

Sychrava was nominated by the United States to the post as vice crairman of the United Nations subcommission on freedom of information, March 28.

Fears for his safety were expressed when he failed to appear at the Geneva conference of the subcommission in April. Regret that he was not present was expressed by Dr. Zachariah Chafee, jr., of the Harvard Law School, American member of the conference, and also by Dr. G. J. van Heuven Goedhart of the Netherlands, chairman.

However, a paper that Dr. Sychrava had prepared, setting out what Dr. Chafee termed an "eloquent 11-point declaration of principles for journalists," was read at the conference.

Over strong Soviet and Czech Communist objections, the conference adopted a resolution thanking Dr. Sychrava for his paper and expressing regret that he was not able to appear in person.

The vote was 20 to 6, with four abstentions. Communist members objected on the grounds that the resolution was "interference in purely domestic affairs" of Czechoslovakia. They said Sychrava was not present because he had not been chosen a delegate. Goedhart and Chafee responded that he should have been permitted to attend as vice chairman.

Details of his arrest are unknown here. Even the date is uncertain. Experts remarked that it might have been as long ago as May. According to word received by Dr. Chafee Dr. Sychrava was seized while trying to escape clandestinely, across the German border.

Sayhrava had a long record as a fighter for Czech freedom. Born in 1887 he was a leader in the Czechoslovakian Nationalist Socialist Party and middle class party most active in opposing communism.

Before the war he was a leader in the Czech anti-Nazi forces. The Germans imprisoned him at Buchenwald concentration camp for almost six years—from September 1939 to May 1945.

During World War I, Sychrava was a member of the Czech National Council at Paris, and later was Czechoslovakian diplomatic representative in Paris. He organized Czech prisoners of war, captured from the Austrian by the Italians in the World War I, into a force to fight on the Allied side.

After the war he founded Narodni Osvobozeny, the official newspaper of the Czechoslovakian Legionnaires. This was shut down by the Germans in 1939.

He was a lifelong friend of President Benes of Czechoslovakia, and a supporter of the Czech Republic founder, Thomas Garrigue Masaryk. He was the holder of several awards for his editorial work and his work as a historian and philosopher.

Sychrava also was a member of the Human Rights Commission of the United Nations Economic and Social Council.

Czech Army Chief Reported Fleeing

Frankfurt, July 16 (NYHT.)—Unconfirmed reports that Gen. Ludvik Svoboda, the Communist-approved commander of the Czech army, has fled into western Germany as a political refugee, were given guarded credence here by European command officials today.

Responsible American and British officials expressed skepticism here tonight on hearing reports from Prague radio that the number one Czech general had gone on a "month's leave of absence" during which time he was reported as secluded from all outside contacts.

If General Svoboda has left Czechoslovakia, he may go into hiding without attempting to contact British, American or French officials until he is sure of being given protection, officials said.

General Svoboda played a key part earlier this winter when the Communist political putsch swept that party into power. His reported role was to purge the Cezch army of all pro-western officers in key positions.

Ex-Cabinet Minister Escapes Across Border

Frankfurt, Germany, July 16 (U.P.)—Vaclav Majer, former Minister of Food in the Czechoslovakian cabinet, arrived in Frankfurt today after escaping across the German border.

Majer, a Social Democrat, was under police guard for 14 weeks after the Communists seized power in Czechoslovakia in February. He is expected to leave for England as soon as a new military government ruling suspending all exit permits for Czechs is lifted. The ban was issued today without explanation by Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander in Geermany.

Liaoyang Retaken By Chinese

Nanking, July 16 (AP).—The official Chinese military news agency announced today that the Mukden garrison had advanced 50 miles south, recapturing Liaoyang and approaching within five miles of Anshan, big Manchurian steel center.

The Communists had taken Liaoyang and Anshan in February. It was understood that the government's recovery of Liaoyang was unopposed, but planes were being used to soften up the approaches to Anshan.

The sudden operation was hailed in government quarters as likely to go far in helping Mukden's critical food situation. The area recovered is a rich farming district.

Both Mukden and Changchun, the isolated capital of Manchuria are near starvation.

John Yench, Associated Press staff man who has just returned from a flying trip to Mukden, said the Communists were deliberately herding refugees into the city to make the food problem worse.

one group, already in Germany. For several months, groups of B-29s have been rotated through Germany, flying over and back from the United States on training flights, with at least one group always on hand in Germany.

(The United Press reported a Soviet charge that American planes fired rockets over Adlershof airfield in the Soviet sector of Berlin. United States Air Force officers said investigation proves the complaint was baseless.—Editor's note.)

German press reporters said the Communist - controlled Socialist Unity Party of the Soviet zone was purging dissident officials and members who had got so far out of line as to raise "base and mean voices" against Russia.

Berlin Socialists say that the four-week Russian hunger blockade has caused dissidence among eastern zone German socialists

British authorities ordered today that no electricity be used in their sector for industry or manufacturing without written authorization from the military government.

The Russian blockade of Berlin has caused military government orders for reduction of industrial use of electricity in the western sectors from the normal 500,000 kilowatts daily to 165,000 kilowatts.

In the western sectors, domestic consumers of electricity now receive current for their homes about four hours daily—two hours in the morning and two in the evening. Gas pressure is so low cooking has become a major problem.

In another order, the western military governments ordered that no vehicles carrying foodstuffs or fuel should go outside the western sectors of the city.

Food and fuel stocks in the west were frozen recently because of the blockade, and officials said the order on the vehicles was a logical result.

The Air Force said 1435 tons of supplies were brought into Berlin by American planes in 259 flights during the 24-hour period ended at 2 p. m. Food made up the bulk of the cargoes, but 36 big C-54s flew in 359 tons of coal.

ute to unions the authority of Parliament."

In the industrial and heavily Communist north, there was trouble as the strike ended.

In Bologna, called the 'Italian Kremlin," there was sharp fighting between police and 8000 strikers—in which firearms, grenades, tear gas and rocks were used. Five policemen were wounded and 11 strikers hurt, three of the latter seriously.

Turin's big auto, plane and textile plants, over which occupying workers yesterday ran up red flags, were only half operating. Streetcars, after resuming travel at noon, stopped again when "action squads" ripped up tracks and boarded the cars.

However, in most other places, the strikers returned to their jobs before noon, most stores were open, much transport was moving and many small shops and factories were back in production.

Of the dead, seven were policemen and seven civilians. Press totals for the wounded were: Policemen, 120; civilians, 86.

Trans-Jordan Stops Fighting; Jews Ready to Obey Order

Tel Aviv, Israel, July 16 (U.P.)—Arab and Jewish governments moved suddenly tonight to obey the demand of the United Nations that fighting be stopped in Palestine.

Trans-Jordan, one of the seven Arab nations, issued a cease fire order in Jerusalem effective at 2 a. m. Saturday (8 p. m. Friday EDT).

Abdullah Beats Deadline

It was hoped that by the weekend the guns would be silent all over the Holy Land and that Count Folke Bernadotte UN mediator, would be left free to attempt a permanent settlement of the Palestine problem.

King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan, quickly bowing to the ultimatum, beat the deadline. His troops hold the old walled city area of Jerusalem and if his Arab Legion stops fighting presumably the battle there will end.

Haganah Takes Nazareth

It was indicated all the Arab nations would agree, however reluctantly, to the Sunday night deadline for a general truce. The Arab League political committee met today in the hills near Beirut, Lebanon, to make its decision.

A United Press Beirut dispatch reported that Glubb Pasha, British commander of the Trans-Jordan Arab Legion, had offered his resignation as the result of accusations that he had withheld sufficient ammunition from his forces.

Just before the Trans-Jordan cease-fire announcement, Jewish army authorities in Haifa announced that their men had captured holy Nazareth, linked throughout the Christian world with the name of Jesus Christ.

It also was announced that Israeli troops had captured Tira, 4 miles south of Haifa on the main highway to Tel Aviv, after a bombardment in which Jewish planes and naval units joined artillery batteries.

Jewish planes made their second bombing attack on Egyptian territory by dropping 7 tons of explosives on the Arish airfield, 30 miles inside Egypt on the coast. Tel Aviv was raided three times.

Truman Dismisses General Meyers From Air Force

President Truman yesterday dismissed retired Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers from the Air Force.

Meyers was convicted last March by a Federal jury of inducing a former business associate to lie under oath to a Senate committee. The committee was investigating wartime aviations contracts held by a firm in which Meyers was financially interested.

Subsequently, he was sentenced to serve 20 months to 5 years in prison.

Mr. Truman signed the following order:

"Pursuant to Article of War 118 and as President and Commander in Chief of the Army, Navy and Air Force of the United States, it is ordered that Bennett E. Meyers, 0-11293, major general, United States Air Force, retired, be and hereby is, dismissed from the service of the United States."

Soldiers Cross Line, Pickets Boo

Perth Amboy, N. J., July 16 (AP). Soldiers with drawn guns and approximately 70 policemen stood guard today as the United States Army transported four lifeboats through a picket line ringing the Welin Davit & Boat Co. plant.

The task was accomplished without incident except for booing by some 120 strikers, members of the Perth Amboy Industrial Union, an independent.

An Army sergeant told the pickets:

"I have orders to move these boats and am prepared to carry out my orders. The first man to touch these trucks or interfere with my orders will be shot."

The police were called out as a precautionary measure.

Convoy Taking Food To Strikers Fired On

Charleston, W. Va., July 16 (AP). Ineffective shots were fired at a food convoy entering duPont's Big Belle ammonia plant today.

The local head of a union on strike there was called to court to answer contempt charges.

The supplies were being taken into the plant for workers who have stayed inside since the strike was called Monday night. No one was hurt.

Ten persons were injured in picket line disorders Wednesday and Thursday before a 40-man State Police detail went on patrol outside the plant last night.

Sherman Blackshire, president of the Belle local of United Mine Workers District 50, was summoned to court by Judge William T. O'Farrell for a hearing tentatively set for Tuesday.

The judge on Wednesday issued an injunction which said the union could use no more than two pickets at a plant entrance.

Dynamite Exploded In Tennessee Strike

Johnson City, Tenn., July 16 (AP).—Dynamite exploded in front of the house of an official of the strike-bound General Shales Products Corp. today.

William S. Sells, vice president of the company, said he later fired a shot at two men fleeing near his home. The predawn explosion shook the house and blew a hole in the ground near the curb in front of the residence. Glass in three windows was broken.

Police apprehended a 14-year-old boy about an hour later and said the youth possessed a handkerchief full of dynamite caps and a pocketful of matches.

AEC Action Not to Halt Condon Quiz

The House Committee on Un-American Activities will continue its investigation of Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the Bureau of Standards, in spite of his clearance by the Atomic Energy Commission Thursday.

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), at his Allendale, N. J., home, declared that the AEC clearance "won't affect us one iota."

Thomas' assistant, Representative John McDowell (R., Pa.), was even more emphatic. McDowell declared that the persons who issued the AEC report "either do not have the information the committee possesses, or, if they do, they should be investigated themselves."

The Atomic Commission, in its report, said that two thorough investigations by the FBI, in which 300 persons were interviewed, had not sustained any charge against the loyalty of Dr. Condon. Under the commission order, Condon will have access to atomic secrets of the commission.

Thomas months ago charged Condon with being "the weakest link in our atomic security" and asserted the committee had evidence that he associated with questionable persons.

The favorable report of the AEC was greeted with satisfaction by Condon's chief, Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer.

"It is a source of gratification to me," Sawyer said.

"We assume that the Loyalty Review Board of the Civil Service Commission still has under consideration a review of this case as suggested some time ago by my predecessor, W. Averell Harriman.

"Any new evidence from any source bearing on Dr. Condon's loyalty or fitness will of course be given appropriate consideration, as will evidence bearing upon the loyalty or fitness of any other employe of the Department of Commerce.

"Meanwhile, the action of the Atomic Energy Commission constitutes an important step in clearing up this matter."

Zoo Employes Get Pay Raise

Pay boosts for 134 National Zoological Park employes who are paid by the District but are not under District control were assured yesterday by a decision of the Comptroller General.

It brought to 149 the number of District-paid employes who have been declared eligible for the $330 annual increase authorized by Congress in the Federal Pay Act passed during the last session.

Fifteen employes of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission were granted the raise in a Comptroller General's ruling announced Thursday.

Both decisions held that the employes, although paid with District funds, are eligible for the Federal increase because their agencies are not under District control.

R. F. Keller, attorney adviser in the Office of the Comptroller General, said that while "they are the only two so far" he thought it "reasonable that more questions will come up."

District officials said agencies in the same category are National Capital Parks, with 164 employes; Washington Aqueduct with 70 full-time and 200 per diem workers; Register of Wills, 41 employes, and National Guard Armory, 25 employes.

District employes were barred from the boost under the Federal Pay Act until Congress passes legislation to provide necessary funds. Budget Officer Walter Fowler has called for speedy passage at the special session of Congress of the District sales tax, which would automatically give District employes the increase.

Big Steel Grants Wage Boost

negotiate wages and social insurance in July of 1949. The union will have the "right to strike on these subjects at that time," Murray said.

If past practices prevail, other basic steel producers may be expected to fall in line behind the pattern set by U. S. Steel. The fabricating industry which uses steel as a raw material, often has complained it has to meet the standards set by the basic producers.

Last April Fairless said if the corporation's experiment in curbing prices failed, the firm would review its decision not to raise wages. At that time, U. S. Steel adopted an avowed anti-inflation campaign. The corporation cut prices 25 million dollars a year and held fast on wages.

In today's statement Fairless said "events of the past two months have demonstrated that efforts" of U. S. Steel had failed to bring to a halt "the constant and dangerous spiral of higher wages and higher prices throughout the country . . ."

Fairless said U. S. Steel proposes "to make appropriate adjustments . . . in the salaries of other employes."

In the Ford company case all salaried employes making less than $625 a month were upped by from $20 to $50.

Those making more than that amount will be dealt with individually on a merit basis, President Henry Ford 2d said. He did not estimate the total cost to the company of the salary increase.

Ford said he still was hopeful of reaching a wage agreement with the UAW-CIO, which is preparing to set a date for a national strike against the big auto firm.

For the present, Ford added, the company does not want the Federal Government to intervene in any attempt to mediate the dispute.

"We appreciate the offer of the Federal mediation and conciliation service," Ford said in a statement, "but we always have been able to solve our differences with the union and we prefer to follow this policy until every possibility is exhausted between the union and ourselves.

"The Ford Motor Co. stands ready to meet with union negotiators at any time."

The UAW-CIO quickly responded with a statement that it was ready to meet with Ford at any time, too. But, a spokesman added, the union felt the company should take the initiative in arranging any new conference.

Ford offered the 116,000 production workers a 13-cent an hour wage increase and other contract improvements. The average hourly production wage now is estimated at about $1.52.

The union demanded 14 cents an hour in wage boosts and additional benefits now reported to bring the total to about 21 cents in all.

The UAW-CIO called Ford's 13-cent offer "inadequate" and the 100-man Ford council of the union unanimously rejected it and authorized a walkout.

Most locals in Ford's 46 plants were expected to ballot over the weekend for or against a strike.

Firm Closes After Clash

South Haven, Mich., July 16 (AP). The National Motor Castings Co., scene of picket line disorders Thursday, was closed today as negotiators sought a peace conference in the month-old strike.

Only half a dozen CIO pickets were on duty, marching under the eyes of State police who were sent to South Haven Thursday by Gov. Kim Sigler.

Hubert Goodwin, president of striking Local 90, CIO United Auto Workers, and C. L. Beatty, manager of the firm, said they hoped to arrange a formal peace conference for Saturday.

The walkout began here June 15 over what the union called "wages and other grievances." It affected about 250 employes.

The plant reopened Wednesday and company officials said about 150 workers returned to work. When the back-to-work movement continued Thursday, a mass picket line of about 100 unionists clashed with returning employes at the plant gates.

South Haven's six-man police force reported the situation out of hand, and Governor Sigler was asked to send in State police.

Milk Prices Held Unlikely To Rise Here

Washington dairymen do not expect any increase in the price of milk similar to that in Baltimore at this time, according to a spokesman for the largest local dairy.

As for the future, prices will not go up here "unless feed and labor costs continue to rise, or unless the higher Baltimore prices draw away some of our milk supply," in the words of a producers' association official.

Baltimore dairies have announced a ½-cent-a-quart increase in the price of delivered milk as of next Monday, and expect an additional rise of about 1 cent in October. After next Monday, the delivered price in that city will be 20½ cents.

The retail price rise there followed an increase in the price to producers of from $5.90 per hundredweight to $6.03. In October, this will be raised to $6.38.

"There is no change in prospect here as far as we are concerned," said Herman A. Schulteis, vice president of Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy, Washington's largest. "It's safe to say that we, and the others buying through the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, will not increase retail prices unless producer's prices go up.

Bruce Derrick, secretary of the local producers' association, said the present price of $6.43 per hundredweight here will not go up unless feed and labor costs increase further, or unless an increase is forced by loss of milk to the Baltimore market.

Railroad Embargo On Wheat Announced

The Association of American Railroads yesterday announced a general embargo on further shipments of wheat for storage in a wide Midwest and Southwestern area.

Effective at midnight, local time, last night, the association advised member railroads not to handle storage wheat for Council Bluffs, Iowa; East St. Louis, Ill.; or any destinations in Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas.

4 City Councilmen Arrested in Mass.

Revere, Mass., July 16 (U.P.).—The city council president and three other councilmen were arrested today in connection with an alleged bribery scheme in which State officials charged, a $75,000 "slush fund" was divided among city officeholders in an effort to push through a $1,250,000 housing project.

The four men are: Charles S. Freeman, council president; Thomas J. Dawson, council vice president; Andrew Cataldo, 49, former council president, and Roland A. Merullo, 32, councilman.

Dawson, Cataldo and Merullo were booked on suspicion of accepting a bribe.

State investigators charged Freeman was the "payoff man" in the scheme to push through the veterans' project. They alleged he paid $1000 to each of four councilmen and split the rest of the $75,000 with other top city officials.

D. C. Employes

President Truman's announced intention to call Congress into special session is good news for District employes. For it means that an opportunity will be given the Eightieth Congress to repair the injustice done by denying them the pay increases given other Federal employes. A few days ago Representative Dirksen, chairman of the House District Committee, promised to try to obtain action on a pay-increase bill and to make those increases retroactive if a special session should be held. Senator Cain, fiscal expert of the Senate District Committee, is still adamant in his opposition to increases in the pay of District workers, unless or until a District sales tax bill is passed to provide funds for meeting the additional costs. However, he, too acknowledges that District workers have as much right to pay increases as other Federal employes and has announced his intention of renewing the fight for the sales tax next January. Presumably he will be ready to start his campaign even sooner, now that a special session is assured.

Of course, there is always a danger that Senator Johnson, whose filibuster killed the sales tax at the last session, or some of his like-minded colleagues, will again block action on that measure. Even if that should happen, it is hard to see how Congress can have the hardihood to withhold from District employes the modest salary increases given to other Federal workers. For, as The Washington Post said when the sales tax was knocked out at the close of the last session, the denial of pay increases to District employes is an utterly indefensible kind of discrimination that cannot be excused on the ground of revenue inadequacy. Congress is under an obligation to find the required revenue—if not by voting a sales tax, then by some other means.

Military Atoms

As we have noted previously, the military can make a convincing case for having atomic bombs ready for instant retaliation, though technical difficulties would complicate such a plan. At the same time, discretion over the production and storage of these instruments of warfare was given to the civilian Atomic Energy Commission for good reason. Whether or not the atomic bomb is an absolute weapon (and we believe it is not), here is a force so tremendous that the control of it was placed not in the hands of the military men who might have to use it, but in a body of civilian administrators charged with the development of atomic energy in the best interest of the country as a whole.

The President himself is empowered by law to release supplies of atomic weapons to the armed forces. What is ultimately at stake, however, is not just a few bombs, but control over the entire field of atomic energy. Certainly there is no reason to believe that the Atomic Energy Commission is any less attentive to the military implications of the international situation than are the generals themselves; indeed, it would be surprising if measures were not already in effect to permit immediate use of atomic weapons in an emergency on presidential assent. If this is the case, there can be no valid cause to change the existing setup. No doubt many of the proponents of military access are sincere in their belief that this is essential to national security. But certainly the President ought to be wary of any step which would provide an entering wedge for another attempt by less scrupulous persons to bring the whole scope of atomic energy under military domination.

Suffrage Plank

It is not a good policy to look gift horses in the mouth, but many residents of this voteless city may be inclined to greet the new declaration in the Democratic platform on District suffrage with something less than unalloyed joy. They will find it difficult to forget the tragic strength of the Democratic vote against the granting of a rule for consideration of the District home-rule bill in the House of Representatives only a few weeks ago. That is the only occasion on which the suffrage issue has come actively before the House since the Democratic Party four years ago pledged itself to end Washington's disfranchisement. That party's Representatives in the House failed deplorably to honor the pledge.

Nevertheless, it is reassuring to have the principle reemphasized. Four years ago the general indorsement of suffrage for the District had nothing very specific behind it. The nonpartisan home-rule bill, having won overwhelming local support, the repetition of this pledge must now be interpreted in relation to this fact. Hence, it should command more loyalty on the part of Democratic legislators than the 1944 plank did. When this is coupled with the more specific pledge in the Republican platform, legislators should have no difficulty in promptly accepting the home-rule bill.

Europe's House

It is some time ago that Mr. Lovett called upon the Europeans to put a roof over their house. The roofing material he seemed to have in mind was a unified policy of defense—not a series of national plans related by an alliance, but a single European system under a common authority. He thought, as Secretary Marshall did on the economic front, in terms of a house, not houses. Nothing less than emphasis on the singular will meet the strategic needs of postwar Europe. It was to encourage such a development that the Senate passed the Vandenberg resolution accepting the principle of "associating" the United States with western Europe in a regional defense plan under the United Nations. A hopeful sign of preliminary action in this respect was the Brussels pact binding Britain, France, Belgium and Holland. This provides for a military committee. But a military committee cannot be thought of in any terms other than as a beginning, for it provides neither for a policy nor for a staff, but only for discussion among staffs operating national policies.

The time for continentalizing the national defense of western Europe is getting short. A spur has been applied by the Soviet siege of Berlin, and the initial meeting of the transatlantic nations that was held last week in Washington was, in fact, made to look like a postscript to the dispatch of the three-power insistence that the blockade must be lifted. The publicity supplied a tip to Moscow that the Western powers mean business. Conversations have now gone out of sight, but they are continuous. Another spur is now available. Soviet Russia is angling for a new meeting of the Foreign Ministers Conference, and, judging from the recent manifesto of the Cominform, will demand the withdrawal of all troops from Germany. Obviously there can be no such withdrawal till the European house is not only roofed but also furnished. That is to say, any acceptance of the Soviet demand would require as a prerequisite a common defense made up of a continental army under single leadership—with access to North American arms and "association."

It is American arms as well as American association that Europe wants, a lend-lease program for the purpose of arming the individual nations. This approach is secondary. Unity comes before arms. In looking at the "political side of ERP," as the aid proposal is called, let us take a lesson from the economic side, viz, ECA. When the Marshall Plan was bruited, it was said on both sides of the Atlantic that, obviously, recovery in Europe was possible only through continental agencies rather than international committees. Subsequently there was a lot of talk about combination, but, as it turns out, there has been precious little action. The European organ in Paris that is handling European aid is called OEEC—Organization of European Economic Cooperation. But it is a committee system, having no attributes of sovereignty, because none has been delegated by the member governments. It channels national requirements to ECA, and the participants seem unable, moreover, to think any further ahead than the next quarter. What was needed, and what the United States should have pressed for, was a European body having power to allocate aid received from the United States—a body that we once called a Peace Production Board.

It is now admitted that there is not likely to be such a group, and that the United States will have to do the job of allocation. This is far from meeting the purpose of what Mr. Hoover called "reconstruction on a continental scale." It enables the Europeans to avoid coming to grips with the integration that they ought to impose upon themselves. All this is very disappointing, and the same mistake should not be made on "the political side of ERP." What the stability of Europe and the world calls for is a third force in Europe which is strong enough in its own right to relieve the nations of fear of attack and enable them to reconstruct the continent together. That would be the best form of security for the United States and Canada to invest in—and the strongest impetus to a union of the free world.

Consumer Credit

The American Bankers Association declares that consumer credit "on the basis of national income and in terms of the number of borrowers using it, is still far below the prewar high levels." It also emphasizes the fact that more than half of the record volume of the 14 billion dollars of outstanding consumer credit consists of non-installment items such as store charge accounts and items paid for on a monthly basis. Installment credit, on the other hand, has expanded at a much slower rate and did not exceed the 1941 level until the end of 1947, while installment sales credit for purchase of automobiles and other durable goods was still below the 1941 level at the end of April.

Evidence of this kind tends to allay fears that the record total of outstanding consumer credit is excessive and provides bankers with arguments against the reimposition of consumer-credit controls, to which most of them are strongly opposed. Nevertheless, the rapid upward trend of consumer credit is a development that will bear watching. Soothing assurances that the amount of such credits is considerably less burdensome than before the war in relation to incomes do not alter the fact that the increase in borrowing to satisfy consumer needs adds that much more to consumer purchasing power and increases the pressure on prices of consumer goods. Consequently, while it is true that consumer credit is by no means high in relation to the increased ability of borrowers to pay, it remains an inflationary factor to be reckoned with.

Furthermore, from present indications, the upward trend of such borrowing is likely to be accelerated as consumers exhaust their cash reserves and dispose of their liquid assets under the pressure of rising living costs and as shortages of durable goods, especially automobiles, are relieved. It is worth noting that during the past three months, in spite of a Government campaign to increase sales of savings bonds and stiffen resistance to inflation, sales of E bonds—the people's bonds—were exceeded by cash-ins. The rapid expansion of consumer credit in recent months is another manifestation of the urge to spend that militates against thrift and impedes efforts to arrest the rise in prices. It may be that consumer credit would have reached record proportions, as the ABA believes, even if regulation of such credits had been continued. But such regulation would at least have been a protection against a further expansion that may cause trouble in the future.

Housing Paradoxes

Many Americans are ill-housed and many others are still in vain quest of homes in congested centers of population. Yet a building boom is in full swing. During the first half of 1948, 7.7 billion dollars was spent for new construction, or 35 per cent more than in the corresponding period of 1947, and half of that increase was accounted for by house building. Moreover, the number of occupied housing units is today as large relatively to the population as it was in 1940. However, geographical shifts in population are not allowed for in estimates of housing need based on averages of this kind. Nor do such estimates take account of the fact that many people want new and better kinds of accommodation.

The statistical evidence does, however, strongly support the belief that the gravity of the housing shortage has been exaggerated. On the other hand, the extraordinarily high cost of new housing indicates that something is decidedly wrong with the housing industry. Soaring prices are attributable only in part to shortages of building labor and of materials. The chief factor accounting for the inflated state of the building industry appears to be the tremendous demand not only for houses but for other types of construction that has resulted in a volume of output currently about at capacity level.

Under such conditions it seems obvious that in present circumstances attempts to relieve housing shortages by liberal credit extensions inevitably have the effect of boosting prices rather than increasing the supply of new homes. More and more trained observers are coming to the conclusion that the ultraliberal terms on which mortgage money has heretofore been obtainable for financing new construction with the aid of Government guarantees has added to the pressure of unsatisfied demands for housing and aggravated the inflation that afflicts the industry. The failure of Congress to extend that provision of the National Housing Act under which the FHA guaranteed home mortgages up to 90 per cent of current construction costs (with an upper limit of $8100) on single family dwellings is, therefore, regarded by some students of current trends with considerable satisfaction. In their opinion the effect of tighter mortgage money will be salutary, although builders are fearful that they will find fewer buyers for new houses when larger down payments are required.

Contrariwise, a good many people—bankers in particular—believe that the building industry would benefit from a reduction of demand brought about by more stringent credit terms. The National City Bank Monthly Letter, for example, notes that "a vast number of housing projects, institutional as well as individual, are on the shelf awaiting lower costs, and demand that may be driven out by the lapse of Title VI [of the National Housing Act] can be counted on to reappear in sounder form as soon as building can be done on a more economical basis." One method of bringing down cost by increasing the supply of housing would be a brake on public construction exercised by agreement among the States. Changes in building codes and labor practices would also help, though this is a kind of long-range reform that cannot be counted upon to produce immediate results.

Certainly the most vulnerable feature of the present building situation is the high cost of construction. This is keeping an increasing number of would-be home-buyers out of the market, and saddling others with overpriced properties, bought on too-easy credit terms that they may be unable to keep if the present inflation-supported prosperity of the country should be followed by a period of declining prices and loss of income.

READING ZERO

We measure amperes of our fears
And readings of envious ohms:
The needles all swing to the right,
Revealing new blood for our looms:
But nothing on meters of peace . . .
The sensitive instruments cease.
We are wise in our ways with machines,
Transforming the tiniest ire
On dynamos fed by our hates
To voltage impulsive with fire;
But nothing of currents of peace . . .
The sensitive instruments cease.
O thinness of love and of truth,
What calipers must we devise
With millimicrometer scales
To register peace we apprize,
Whose width is no wider than thought,
Whose girth all the ages have sought?

Known Sex Offenders

During the first few days after the murder of Carol Bardwell, when police were searching for clews, your paper reported the police had rounded up all "the known sex offenders" in the vicinity for questioning. Why should there be "known sex offenders" at large? What judge, remiss in his duty, paroled these men to roam in our parks, on highways, and in all sorts of lonely places?

I do not know what the police mean by "known sex offenders." One shudders to think that perhaps they are habitual offenders who are never brought to justice. Let us assume, however, that they have each committed one or two sex crimes and have served a sentence (or part of one) for them. Can a few years' sentence served in jail cause a mentally ill person to become well? Can one trust a maniac to "reform"? It is a known fact that there is more recidivism in sex crimes than in any other type. And the mere fact that police were rounding up the "known sex offenders" shows that police expected these men to commit further crimes.

Eugene H. James, in 1940, was found guilty of charges involving "complaints of 15 women . . . who had been assaulted and attacked with knives," for which he was given a 10-year sentence. Had society been more careful about the release of such a man, two innocent little girls, Carol Bardwell and Marsha Brill, might be alive and happy today.

Polish Studies

Dr. Arthur Prudden Coleman, assistant professor of Polish language and literature at Columbia University and national secretary of the American Association of Teachers of Slavic and East European Languages, resigned his post at the university in protest against its acceptance of a grant from the puppet Polish government for the founding of a new chair of Polish studies.

I should like to express my deep gratitude to Dr. Coleman for his courageous act. I don't know how and why Columbia University made such a mistake, but it is clear that the acceptance of gifts from Stalin's agents is very dangerous. It can produce a chain of explosions and our higher educational institutions may be flooded with "gifts" through various "front" agents and with professors and instructors trained in "the party line."

Freedom of thought and research is the cornerstone of our democratic institutions. It is so important that the academic family be always wary even about help from our own Government.

Editor's note: In accepting Dr. Coleman's resignation, President Eisenhower of Columbia noted that the selection of an educator to fill the chair of Polish studies is left entirely to the university.

Coaches' Pay

I have read with interest the various stories on the District high school coaches' walkout set for the beginning of the new school year.

Last year my two sons were enrolled in the New York City schools when this same situation arose. Coaches of football refused to report for practice; the boys who made up the teams refused to report to practice under new coaches and the parents in New York demanded that a settlement of some kind be made. The walkout lasted five days. In that case the coaches received the extra pay that they asked for.

I am not aware of the sports program here in Washington, but it does seem to me that the parents are not interested enough in this situation that could wreak havoc with the school sports program. This letter is not written to argue the merits of coaches' pay, though I certainly feel that they should be paid for the extra time that they put in. Actually, it is impossible to measure the extra time that these men do put into their work.

Merchant Veterans

As a GI veteran I would like to have a say on the merchant "veterans." According to Professor Taylor (letter published July 14), the merchant marine men are being unjustly treated by being made subject to the draft. He also mentions that the merchant men received no benefits under the GI bill.

He should remember that GIs made $60 to $100 a month for their overseas service. The GI sometimes worked a 16-hour day and was on call the other 8.

However, men in the merchant marine did not serve under the same circumstances. Their pay, including bonuses, sometimes ran to 500 per cent of the GIs'—often for a 40-hour week with vacation, if not with pay, at least at their convenience.

Therefore it seems only fair to me that these men should have to make up the other hours they missed during the war.

Noisy Planes

The sad thing about Mrs. Huntington's complaint regarding noisy planes (letter of July 10) is that she, whether she realizes it or not, is paying to have this din created over her head.

The Government subsidizes airlines, provides them with free airports, airways, navigational aids and communications, and gives free "flying lessons" to veterans. In the name of "progress" the majority pays in cash and in discomfort for the dubious advantages gained by the few in position to benefit appreciably from civil aviation.

As for the future, Mrs. Huntington would be well advised to exchange her home for a secluded cave. The airlines, having lost money by increasing their air fleets faster than their traffic, will seek increased subsidies so that they may further increase their air fleets faster than their traffic. This will require also more airports built by the Government to decrease the congestion.

She may also look forward to the replacement of the relatively pleasant drone of present airliners by the screaming roar of multiturbined transports. These, plus the insatiable demands of our ever-increasing all-jet air forces, will force fuel rationing on her car and on her oil burner, or at a minimum vastly increase the price of her fuel. Yet some people still think unlimited expansion of civil aviation is a public good.

Sex Maniacs

Last week The Washington Post editorially wondered what should be done to cope with sex maniacs. The answer is entirely simple. Kill them legally and swiftly. Away with mawkish talk about unfortunate early environments and moronic minds! These beasts are mad dogs who should be slain. Let us see what happens to the latest monster, and how much time will elapse.

National Health Insurance

Dr. Thomas E. Mattingly's letter (July 1) contains much that is slanted and distorted and very little that aids either the general public or the medical profession in understanding the problems of dispensing medical services to all.

Dr. Mattingly complains that the Physicians Forum of which Dr. Boas is chairman is not "impartial" because it has consistently advocated a program which has been opposed by the American Medical Association. Principles of scientific inquiry certainly demand that all pertinent data be considered in arriving at a warranted conclusion. Having thus maintained impartiality in the conduct of the inquiry, must a group then refrain from advocating a program based on the conclusion reached because it is then no longer impartial? Obviously, no.

Dr. Mattingly's designation of "all-encompassing bureaucratic state medicine" for a progressive and constructive program exemplifies the use of words connoting evil to forestall a favorable response to the program itself.

Physicians as "producers" of medical services have two justifiable demands which should be met in any system for dispensing those services. Firstly, professional services must be rendered by qualified practitioners according to established principles of medical science and medical ethics. Secondly, physicians should receive remuneration for their services sufficient to maintain a standard of living consonant with their high degree of education and training.

The national health insurance bill, representing the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill somewhat modified, meets both of these legitimate demands. The qualifications of specialists are determined by medical men according to established professional standards, and not by congressional committees.

The bill provides that payments for medical services shall be made in one of three ways: free-for-service, straight salary, or payment per capita of patients served (decided by the physicians themselves). This would appear to be sufficient guarantee that physicians will have a satisfactory income.

To one who has studied the whole matter in some detail it appears that Dr. Boas is, indeed, correct in charging that a reactionary conspiracy is responsible for the rejection of national health insurance by a majority of physicians (who would not be "drafted" into the program as Dr. Mattingly states, but may accept or reject participation in the program).

Why the reactionary conspiracy? One possibility is that the men who comprise the National Physicians Committee for the Extension (sic) of Medical Care cherish above all the fact that it is now perfectly possible for a few specialists actually to get rich from medical practice. There would, of course, be a limit to the amount of money which could be made by a specialist electing to practice under the terms of the modified Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill. Dr. Greatskill would be paid the same for, say a gastroenterostomy performed on Mr. Flatpurse as for a similar operation performed on Mr. Moneybags.

Perhaps it seems harsh and unkind to suggest that such thinking motivates those who maintain the fountainhead of opposition to national health insurance. It is a fact, however, that the National Physicians' Committee has shown itself to be completely uninhibited in its use of weapons against national health insurance, even having charged that the latter originated in the Kremlin. The absurdity of this lie is easily demonstrated by recalling the fact that Norway, for example, has had a national health insurance program since 1911.

It is alleged that a comprehensive national health insurance program will lead to the deterioration of medical services. The physician who has entered the field of medicine to enjoy the exciting adventures of learning the sciences of anatomy, physiology, biochemistry, pharmacology and pathology and to experience the challenging and rewarding activity of applying this knowledge to the social science of medical practice with all its intricate variations of human behavior will not deteriorate if the financial barrier between himself and patient is removed. In fact, the way would then be opened for such a physician to extend the benefits of personal preventive medicine to all his patients instead of leaving this highly important service to the lay newspaper and magazine press.

Politics Bows To Glamour

By Malvina Lindsay

Women Rout Ridicule

THE GLAMOUR girl has moved to the front in politics, which is final assurance that women in public life have fully attained freedom from ridicule. This is one advance that should be listed at the celebrations next week of the one hundredth anniversary of the first women's rights convention at Seneca Falls, N. Y.

That convention set off nearly a century of cartooning and jeering at women's efforts to participate in government. But the two recent national party conventions have shown that this musty humor is on its last legs. A few writers striving for laughs resurrected the old seagoing dowager brand of derision, but it wasn't effective in view of the many cavorting cuties handing out buttons for candidates, carrying banners in parades, leading cheers and pushing to the front generally. And both party conventions' fashion shows were testimonials to the "new look" woman in politics, as well as evidence of the power of the fashion industry in the American economy.

THIS IS not to imply that women politicos of the past or the early suffragists scorned style. Elizabeth Cady Stanton, who delivered the opening address at the Seneca Falls convention setting forth the famous "declaration" was a handsome, magnetic woman who dressed attractively. The late Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt had a serene beauty, which she enhanced by the right clothes. Victoria Woodhull, who braved a Nation's catcalling to run for President, was known as "the terrible siren." Few, if any of the feminine leaders who succeeded them were frumps or shrews.

Nevertheless, according to the tradition of the lampooners, they had to be one of two types—a skinny, shrill, hatchet faced fanatic or a double-chinned overstuffed despot—both always dressed in weird costumes that emphasized their physical peculiarities. The thin termagant old maid or frustrated matron was predominantly the early day cartoonists' conception of the feminist. But down the years she fattened up to become the overweight, overdressed and overcorsaged dowager of the twentieth century.

Now the dressy dowager, in the flesh at least, is not so much in evidence at political conclaves. Leaders particularly tend more toward what the fashion industry calls "smart." Also youth is more in the picture, not only to give atmosphere but to participate.

AT ANY rate, today women in politics have become more difficult to cartoon or to poke fun at. Or perhaps masculine humor, which so long used physical characteristics to deride women in public life, has risen to a higher plane. The syndicated columnist who at a party convention during the knee-skirt era wrote lengthy critical reports on the legs of the women who spoke from the platform has moved on to more serious reforms. Moreover, women's effective political services have induced men to take them more seriously.

Earnest souls may consider it a trivial achievement that women in politics have finally gotten the cartoonists and the court jesters off their necks. But this has much significance because it means an easier path personally for all sensitive women embarking on the second century of political advance. Probably the hardest cross their courageous predecessors had to bear was ridicule.

The opposition women in public life now face is cautious and adroit, and though sometimes tricky, yet seldom cheap or crude—at least not in the open. Women may find themselves called "unqualified" or "temperamentally unsuited" for posts, or made consultants or advisers or alternates, or given handmaiden duties, or just ignored. But these things are easier to overcome than the fear of being laughed at or held up to public scorn. Their chief political handicap now is not men's snickers, but their own indifference.

'Housing Issue'

A Communciation

Your editorial "Housing Issue" of July 4 is another good statement of The Washington Post's consistent support of effective comprehensive housing legislation, as represented by the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill. It is also a well-deserved rebuke for the total inadequacy of the miniscule measure which Chairman Wolcott of the House Banking and Currency Committee eventually engineered through the Congress in the closing hours of the session and which appears destined to go down in history as the "teeny-weeny" housing bill.

However, I find it difficult to share the confidence expressed in your editorial on two points: first, that the reactionary shenanigans by which the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill was killed in the House have been canceled out by the Republican platform plank on housing adopted at Philadelphia, and, second, that therefore "the outlook for a good housing law next year thus appears to be better than it was in the last session regardless of which party is returned to power."

AS TO the first point, the big question is just what the Republican housing plank means. On the basic issues involved in the T-E-W bill, the plank recommends Federal aid to the States for local slum clearance and low-rental housing programs only where there is a need that cannot be met either by private enterprise or by the States and localities." What is the significance of that word "only"? Does it mean that the question of the need for Federal aid for slum clearance and public housing, which has been established time and again during more than four years of congressional investigations, is to be reopened again?

Suffice it to say that this language is sufficiently obscure as to lead the conflicting interpretations of its meaning. Your editorial interprets the plank as a repudiation of Congressman Wolcott's position. An editorial in another local newspaper has interpreted it as basically supporting the Wolcott position. And the National Association of Real Estate Boards has publicly stated that on public housing and slum clearance the platform's declaration falls substantially short of the program envisioned by the sharply argued Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill."

AS TO the second point, it is true, as your editorial points out, that the Democratic presidential nominee will not be running against Chairman Wolcott or even against the Republican members of the Rules Committee but rather against the Governor of New York. But it is equally true that both nominees will be running as candidates of their parties and that neither candidate can completely divorce himself from his own party's record, politically desirable as such divorce might be in the case of certain basic issues like the Republican record on housing.

Without wishing to detract by one iota from the responsibility of Congressman Wolcott and Chairman Leo Allen of the Rules Committee for what was done to the housing bill, I wish to point out that that responsibility was clearly shared by the Republican leadership of the House. It has been pretty well documented that Mr. Wolcott was in close consultation with Speaker Martin and Majority Leader Halleck on the fate of the housing bill throughout the closing weeks of the session.

When the bill finally reached the Rules Committee, Chairman Allen sought and presumably received the advice of the Republican Steering Committee on what to do about it; surely no reasonable politician would want to take responsibility for killing a measure of such basic political importance without prior clearance with his party leaders. And it is equally well documented that Messrs. Martin and Halleck were intimately involved in the frantic scurryings between the House leadership and the Senate leadership which eventually gave birth to the "teeny-weeny" housing bill just as dawn was breaking on June 20.

SO WE HAVE here a Republican record on housing that was made by the Republican leadership of the House and not simply by Mr. Wolcott or Mr. Allen. And I submit that the future implications of this record cannot be canceled out by the rather obscure language of the Republican housing plank or by the personal attitude on housing of the Governor of New York (just what that attitude precisely is is unclear since Governor Dewey was the only principal contender for the Republican nomination who did not specifically endorse the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill).

Let us waive for the present the ambiguity of the Republican housing plank or the fact that the 1944 Republican platform contained a housing plank which might equally be argued to conform to the basic principle of the T-E-W bill. Let us assume that the 1948 Republican plank is a forthright declaration for Federal aid for public housing and slum clearance. Then, for a Republican who presumably has been repudiated on housing by the Republican convention, Chairman Wolcott is acting in a singularly unrepentant manner.

After President Truman issued the statement on housing which gave rise to your editorial, Mr. Wolcott is reported in the press as replying that ". . . the Administration is committed to the same socialistic tendencies we have been fighting since 1935 . . . He (President Truman) has raised the basic question of socialism vs. Americanism. This will be debated at length during the campaign."

HOUSING for veterans and low-income groups is not a question of "socialism vs. Americanism." Neither is it a question of whom the candidates will be for President except as those candidates stand for an adequate housing program. Rather it is a question of whether or not a large segment of our population is to continue to live under crowded conditions which breed broken families and social misfortunes.

At least up to the time of the Republican convention, the view of Messrs. Martin, Halleck, Wolcott and Allen on public housing and slum clearance were in complete harmony. The Republican housing plank obviously has not budged Mr. Wolcott. How about Halleck, Martin and Allen?

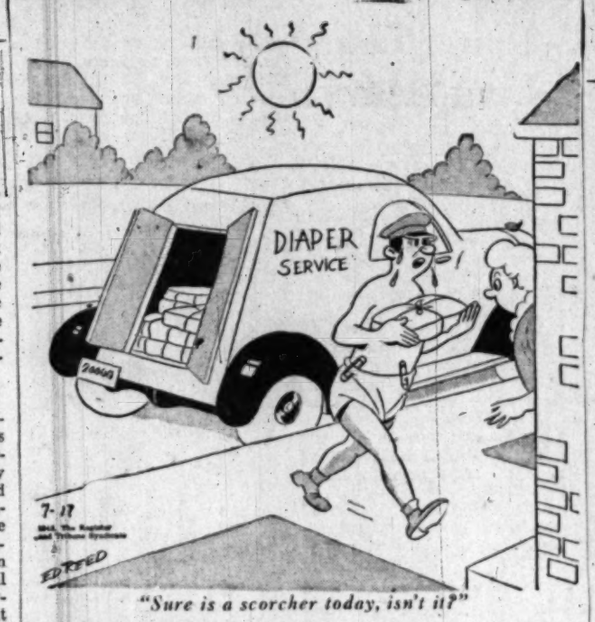

In the event of a Republican victory in the coming election, it can be assumed that, short of an unusual upset, Messrs. Martin, Halleck, Wolcott and Allen will be back on the job at their old stand in the House. What will be the prospects for good housing legislation then? Having joined forces to kill a major housing bill on the eve of a presidential campaign, will they be likely to give it a better hearing after the elections?

These are questions which should be pondered closely by all voters interested in housing. And I know of no better way of getting answers to them than by making housing a major issue in the campaign.

The Gallup Poll

Majority of Voters Foresee Four Good Years for U. S.

By George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 16.—When America's voters go to the polls this fall, assuming they feel then the way they do now, the fear of another depression is going to assume less importance than at any time in recent years.

But to the extent that voters do worry about the possibility of a business slump, the Democratic Party still has the advantage, and undoubtedly it will be a major part of Democratic strategy either to warn people of a forthcoming depression or point to their party's achievements in handling past depressions.

They will be on sound ground in following this line because over the past 16 years they have convinced substantial numbers of voters that the Democratic Party is best able to run the Government during bad times. As of today, irrespective of candidates, the weight of voter opinion agrees with this premise.

A representative cross-section of voters was asked:

"If we should have another serious business depression in four years—which political party do you think could deal with it best?"

The answers:

Democratic Party	38%
Republican Party	28
Wallace Third Party	2
No difference	19
No opinion	13

But during the 1948 campaign, the depression argument, although it was used quite profusely at the Democratic convention, will not carry as much weight in the minds of the voting public.

This is the case because, with prosperity and employment at their peaks, a majority of voters with opinions believe that there will be no serious slump in business conditions during the next four years, when the party winning in November will be in power.

The same cross-section of voters was asked:

"Do you think there will be another serious business depression in the United States during the next four years?"

The answers:

No	41%
Yes	36
Don't know	23

In contrast to today's mood of optimism about the nation's economic prospects, voters at the same period in 1944 were fearful of wide-scale unemployment and renewed breadlines following the end of World War II. Impressed by views of leading economists, the typical voter thought there would be millions of unemployed.

Although their fears proved to be unfounded, this state of pessimism undoubtedly entered the political thinking of many voters when they cast their ballots in November of that year. Unless signs of a slump appear this summer or early fall, the same considerations most likely will not affect a majority of voters at this time.

Analysis of today's survey reveals the voting groups most likely to pay attention to the usual depression argument put forth by Democratic strategists. Only in the case of professional and business people and white collar workers do a majority of voters in any group believe that the Republicans can handle a depression better. All other groups give the edge to the Democrats, manual workers voting that way better than two to one.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Truman's Campaign Maneuver

IT TOOK a great deal of persuading to get President Truman to call the Eightieth Congress back into session. He knows very well that it will mean a repetition of the game of veto and recrimination that was played out in the end of the session that closed just before the opening of the Republican Convention.

Childs

What may well have been the clinching argument came from Mr. Truman's political managers. They pointed out that the Democratic till is practically empty. The funds are simply not forthcoming to conduct a national campaign, with costly radio hookups and country-wide tours.

But with Congress in session, it was argued, the President would have a ready-made sounding board. A message by the President of the United States to Congress is front-page news, even though he is a candidate for reelection.

If the President goes in person to the Congress with his message, it is normally carried by all the radio networks. Here, incidentally, is an interesting problem for the radio chains, which customarily charge commercial rates for broadcasting political speeches.

The Republicans are certain to come back in an angry mood. They will do everything they can to put the President on the spot as revenge for his boldness in calling them back

THE MORE rebellious are even asking whether it might not be better to refuse to come back. There is nothing to compel Congress to return. Such a refusal would create an extraordinary situation, and the President could tell the country that the Republicans were afraid to face the issues.

The political hazards in a special session are real. The President can't risk a great deal because he has so little to lose. That is not true of the GOP.

The Republican candidate for President, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, will be seeking to shape a campaign by speeches and statements that appeal to a wide range of voters. But by their actions the Republican Congress can nullify his stand and make him look foolish. This is one of the chief points urged on the President by those who favored the step he took dramatically in his acceptance speech.

The Democrats will, of course, have their own troubles. Republican leaders in Congress plan immediately to push civil rights legislation called for in the platforms of both parties.

This will precipitate a Southern filibuster in the Senate. Such a filibuster was discounted in the discussions leading up to the recall of Congress. It was considered quite likely that it would last at least a month.

THAT INTERLUDE would even help the President's position, since it would put off until the fall, when the campaign really warms up, the showdown over housing and inflation. In the dog days of August the country can ignore the marathon of Southern oratory, which will gradually wear itself out. Then, as an interest in politics revives in September, the President can throw the book at the Republicans encamped unhappily on Capitol Hill.

The Southern marathon is likely to defeat any civil-rights measures. That will give the GOP a chance to blame Mr. Truman's party for failure to carry out platform pledges. But clearly he cannot be made to accept responsibility on this score, since the South in convention seceded from the Democratic Party of the North.

So the country is in for a long and bitter siege while the rival branches of Government belabor each other, as they have so often done in the past, with every weapon in sight. It will be a strange spectacle for the allegedly most powerful Nation on earth at a moment when so much is balanced on the knife-edge of destiny.

It goes without saying that the net result in legislation will be zero. As there are political hazards in this maneuver, so there are great hazards for us all regardless of party.

The fragile boundaries of the bipartisan foreign policy have already been pushed in by what happened at the conventions and the shadow of the coming campaign. In the special session, that little island of policy is certain to be further invaded by angry partisans. The Taberites will not be able to resist sniping at the European Recovery Program.

The session may well hold political advantages for Mr. Truman, who finds himself under such great handicaps. But measured in terms of the good of the country, this campaign maneuver may prove even more costly than the old-fashioned variety financed by lobbyists and pressure groups.

Brentwood Tenants Fight Rent Increase

Operating expenses of the Brentwood Village apartments for 1947 were "overstated" in a petition asking for increased rents, an accountant testified yesterday before Rent Control Examiner William F. Mansfield.

The accountant was Meyer Samols, who lives at Brentwood Village himself and was retained by the attorney representing tenants opposed to the rent increases. The increases would range from 10 to 14 per cent.

Basing his opinion on sample items in the cost sheets submitted by William J. David, secretary-treasure of the apartment corporations, Samols testified that the accounting was "inconsistent."

"I invariably found," he declared at the second day of the rent boost hearing on the 742-unit project, "that many items for the base years were amortized, while such items incurred in 1947 were called operating expenses and and charged to that year."

The accountant said a "complete audit" would be necessary to obtain an adequate basis of comparison of operating costs for the apartments, as between the base years when they were first fully operated, and last year.

Seven tenants testified on services and conditions at the Brentwood apartments, some declaring these had deteriorated during the time they had been tenants. All testified to considerable delays in obtaining needed repairs or redecoration.

Examiner Mansfield adjourned the hearing for about three weeks, after which the principals in the case are to meet for a discussion of ceiling prices at the apartment development. Joseph Forer, attorney for about half the tenants, contends the ceiling prices as filed with the Rent Control Administrator are "phantom ceilings." He has asked the examiner to determine what the "actual" ceilings were.

3 File Suit To Challenge Assessments

A "model" method of assessing property which is practiced in Montgomery County was termed illegal yesterday in a suit filed in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville.

Plaintiffs in the suit are Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Miller and Mr. Miller's sister, Mrs. Lillian C. Maclane, all of 5638 Western ave. nw. The plaintiffs are listed as having property in Bethesda worth in excess of $500,000.

The suit asks that county officials, named defendants in the suit, be forced to refund about $7000 in 1947 taxes and that the court restrain them from collecting any further taxes based on assessments made after 1945.

The present method of assessment is based on five classifications of property: farms, industrial, commercial, apartment houses and residential. Prior to 1945, however, the county was divided into geographic tax districts under which property owners benefited by low assessment classification if they happened to fall in a farm or other low assessment classification.

The plaintiffs in the present suit contest the legality of establishing the present tax classifications.

Attorney James R. Miller and Charles Prettyman, both of Rockville, contend on behalf of the plaintiffs that Montgomery County revised its assessment policies illegally in 1945.

The county's present system of making assessments was perfected by the county's supervisor of assessments, Wilton T. Allen, and he recently compiled a book on the subject which was adopted by assessors throughout Maryland. Allen also recently taught the system to State assessors meeting at Maryland University.

Listed as defendants in the suit were Allen, John B. Diamond, county treasurer, and State Comptroller James J. Lacy and the State Tax Commission.

groes come to look at the property and became alarmed.

Over the weekend a meeting was called. It was held Monday night, June 28, in the home of Wack, an acting deputy supervisor in the Bureau of Fiscal Supplies, Treasury Department.

"About 20 to 25 persons attended," Wack said. "It was an informal meeting, held to give the neighborhood an opportunity to express its opinion.

"We didn't treat it as a 'problem,'" he said, "but merely thought as property owners we would like to keep the neighborhood conservative. The meeting was not promoted by any one individual, or group, but was a spontaneous neighborhood action."

Decided to Raise Funds

At the meeting it was decided to raise funds for purchase of the house. Wack was named chairman of the committee and trustee.

Russell H. Thompson of 3105 24th st. ne., who holds a supervisory position in the City Post-office and is pastor of Bethel Baptist Church, near Vienna, Va., was elected treasurer.

According to Thompson, "a little better than $5000 in contributions ranging from $25 to $400 was contributed by approximately 20 persons" within four days.

The contributors lived within the immediate neighborhood of the house in a section roughly bounded by Fair st., South Dakota ave., Hamlin st. and Rhode Island ave.

A check for $500 was given Ford, return on his original down payment. The check was signed by Dr. Freeman Weiss, 3223 Vista st. ne., chairman of the Rhode Island Citizens Association Special Use Covenant standing committee.

Check Received as Loan

The check had been received as a loan from the Greater Woodridge Covenant Alliance, of which Weiss is a director, during the interim when the committee was getting contributions "and we didn't know how much we would raise," Wack said.

Weiss had been present at the Monday night meeting in the Wack home "to answer any questions," Wack said.

The Greater Woodridge Covenant Alliance was organized about eight years ago and incorporated about two years ago, and includes members of the Rhode Island, Burroughs and National Gateway Citizens Association, according to Weiss, a research man at the Department of Agriculture Bureau of Plant Industry, Beltsville, Md.

"Option Plan" Considered

Two days after the meeting at Wack's home the Alliance heard Clifford Newell, past president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, describe an "option plan" to give home and property owners control over who may move into their communities.

The plan would call for "block captains" of an "authoritative association" to take an option on all properties in their section. When a home owner decided to sell, the option would give the captain 30 days to investigate prospective buyers.

"This isn't just a racial question," Wack and Thompson say. "We are trying tto keep it a decent, livable neighborhood and the racial issue shouldn't be stressed."

Thompson has lived in the neighborhood about 25 years. Wack about two years The closest Negro family is about 8 to 10 blocks away.

Says Maynor, the real estate dealer, "$15,500 will buy the house. Woodridge is determined to keep colored people out."

Truman Urged to 'Pour It On' which is the ace GOP investigating group in Congress, indicated yesterday it was likely some long-deferred investigations might break loose during the special session.

Reached at his Putney, Vt., farm Aiken said his committee had previously decided not to undertake any investigation which could be called political in nature until after the November election.

"Of course, what the committee does is governed by a majority vote of its members," Aiken said.

Truman Critic Offers Turnip Day Suggestion

By The Associated Press

Senator Olin Johnston (D., S. C.), sharply critical of President Truman's decision to call Congress back into session, believed yesterday he has discovered a reasonable excuse to adjourn it as soon as it meets July 26.

"In the event, no national emergency is proclaimed, a resolution adjourning Congress in honor of Turnip Day in Missouri might be appropriate," he said.

Mr. Truman said that's what they call July 26 in Missouri.

"but the members are chiefly Northern Republicans and Southern Democrats so it's anybody's guess what they will decide when they come back to Washington."

Committee members beside Aiken are Republican Senators Homer Ferguson of Michigan, Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, John W. Bricker of Ohio, Edward J. Thye of Minnesota, Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin and Irving M. Ives of New York.

The ranking Democrat is Senator John McClellan of Arkansas, a leader of the Southern civil rights revolt against Mr. Truman, and others are Senators James O. Eastland of Mississippi, Clyde A. Hoey of North Carolina, Glen H. Taylor of Idaho, vice presidential candidate on the Wallace ticket, A. Willis Robertson of Virginia and Herbert R. O'Conor of Maryland.

In addition, counsel for the committee is William P. Rogers, former assistant district attorney in New York when GOP presidential nominee Thomas E. Dewey was the district attorney.

Aiken said that while he was in favor of much of the President's program and had been critical of the Republican leadership himself, he felt the "obviously political" recall "will not add to national unity."

Sees Field Day for Critics

"I'm afraid it will give our foreign critics a field day at a time when our international relations are extremely critical," Aiken declared.

One bitter foe of President Truman's civil rights program, Senator Olin Johnston of South Carolina, who opposed President Truman's nomination at Philadelphia, said he would move to adjourn Congress as soon as it convenes, if the President's message proves to be "as political" as indicated. His proposal was given little chance of adoption.

Cannon said he approved the recall of Congress because it had adjourned "leaving its job incomplete." He declared that without the special call the 18½ months study Congress put into legislation which it failed to enact would be lost. Under the adjournment resolution, Congress was slated to return December 31. Pending legislation would have died and new legislation would have had to be introduced.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) said the President was giving Congress "a chance to redeem itself."

Representative Jacob K. Javits (R., N. Y.) said he would meet before Congress returned with Senator Ralph E Flanders (R., Vt.) to consider the reintroduction of a once-scuttled meat rationing bill.

Plans Fight on Discrimination

Representative Emanuel Celler (D., N. Y.) said he would sponsor new legislation to knock racial and religious discrimination out of the displaced persons law.

Mr. Truman called the law Congress passed "anti-Catholic and anti-Semitic" and made new legislation on this point a part of his program.

The other eight points are: anti-inflation legislation, a comprehensive housing program; Federal aid to education; a national health program; civil rights legislation; increased minimum wage; increased Social Security benefits and public power and cheap electricity.

South Carolina, 8; Florida, 8; Arkansas, 9; Louisiana, 10; Texas, 23; Virginia, 11.

Tennessee's 12 and North Carolina's 14 electoral votes, he said, either will go for the Birmingham nominee or for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican candidate.

In addition to working for anti-Truman electors from these States through regular State party machinery, he said a full slate of States' rights electors would be placed on the ticket in such border States as Oklahoma, Missouri and Maryland.

The States' righters will meet in the City Auditorium which seats 6000.

Wright, Laney Candidates

Two chief possibilities for the States' rights nomination are Governor Wright and Governor Laney.

Governor Wright called the meeting "to begin the fight to save the South."

"It has been made clear at Philadelphia," he said, "that the greatest discrimination existing in this country today is not racial or religious, but discrimination against the South."

An Alabama delegate, still smarting from the Philadelphia defeat, said on arrival:

"We will keep the South solid—solid against Truman and his obnoxious program to deprive us of control of our domestic affairs."

He was Albert Stapp, Birmingham businessman and delegate at large.

"The South feels like a mother who has been kicked out of her own home by upstart in-laws," Stapp said. "We were not even given a courteous hearing at Philadelphia.

"We will never forget it—and President Truman and the city machine bosses will never forget it either. These cynical ingrates forget that we have kept the party alive through the dark years when they had no Federal patronage to dole out. We are through with them."

There were no claims of victory for the Birmingham candidate.

Virginia Not to Turn To Rump Convention

Richmond, Va., July 16 (AP).—Virginia Democrats still didn't know which way to turn today.

But one exploratory move, at least, was made in the direction of Birmingham, Ala., where the Southern State Rights Rump Convention will be held tomorrow.

Collins Denny jr., Richmond attorney and memper of the dominant organization wing of the State party, disclosed he was leaving tonight for the Birmingham meeting.

He said he wanted to make it plain, however, that he was going as an individual and not as the representative of Governor Tuck or the Democratic Party.

Denny was secretary of the State convention resolutions committee, headed by Governor Tuck, whose report instructed Virginia's delegates to Philadelphia to oppose any candidate who favored a Federal civil rights program. The report adopted by the State convention also provided for the recall of the State convention by a two third vote of the central committee to act on a Virginia presidential nominee if the national party choice proved objectionable.

"No comment" was Tuck's response to the State's prime political question: Now that the Southern point of view has taken a drubbing at the National Democratic Convention will the State Democratic Convention be recalled to name a Virginia Democratic candidate?

The Tuck-sponsored anti-Truman election bill passed by the 1948 General Assembly made it possible for Virginia to name its own Democratic presidential ticket if the national party nominee were displeasing.

the party leaders that they had failed to abide by the spirit of a decision of a year ago which gave a Negro petitioner of Richland (Columbia) County the right to take part in county party affairs.

Through legislative action the Democratic leaders had sought to divorce the party from Government and, in effect, render the party a political club limited to white members only.

Earlier in the hearing Judge Waring dismissed charges against party officials of Pickens, Laurens and Greenville counties, which had admitted Negroes to the party. Judge Waring observed: "I am glad to see that three counties have sense enough, nerve enough and patriotism enough" to proceed prpoerly "in the face of coercion."

Reservation Indians Given Vote in Arizona

Phoeniz, Ariz., July 16 (U.P.).—A 20-year-old ruling of the Arizona Supreme Court was discarded today and the right to vote was granted reservation Indians who meet the State's constitutional requirements.

Arizona and New Mexico had been cited by President Truman's civil rights committee as the only two States denying Indians the right to vote. It likened this disenfranchisement to discrimination against Negroes in many Southern States.

But yesterday's decision by the State Supreme Court, written by Justice Levi S. Udall, held that a 1928 ruling that Indians could not vote because they were wards of the Federal Government was based on an erroneous interpretation of a statement by United States Chief Justice John Marshall.

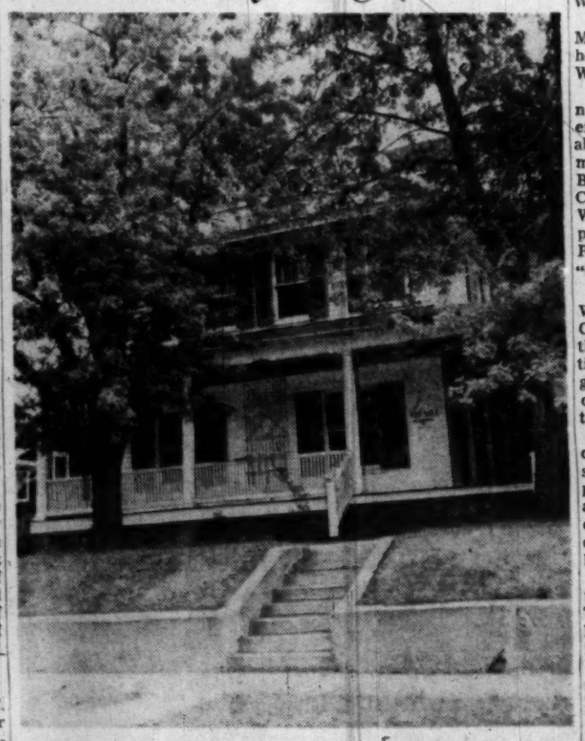

The old ruling was based on Marshall's reference to the relationship of the Federal Government and Indian tribes as similar to that of "ward and guardian."

Udall interpreted the statement as referring to tribes rather than individual Indians.

Stocks Reach 2-Month Low; Selling Heavy

New York, July 16 (AP).—The stock market plunged to the lowest level in two months today after heavy selling developed for the second day in a row.

Already shaky after yesterday's heavy pounding, the market was in no shape to stand up against news that giant United States Steel Corp. had raised wages and intended to raise prices.

Losses ran from fractions to more than 3 points, with the oil section singled out for selling attention. Most steel stocks did comparatively well and declined only fractionally.

Toward the close demand stepped up a little and extreme losses were pared in many cases.

Big steel's price-wage announcement was in large part confirmation of what Wall Street had expected. But combined with continued concern over the situation at Berlin and the approaching special session of Congress, the news sent a stream of selling orders sizzling onto the floor of the exchange.

Wall Street's fear, basically, is that industry will price its products completely out of the reach of too many consumers. Higher steel prices, of course, are eventually reflected in higher prices for hundreds of consumer items.

Some of the hardest hit issues included Gulf Oil 73¼, Mission Corp. 64, Texas Co. 61⅝, Standard Oil (N. J.) 82¾, Nicket Plate Railroad 82, Union Pacific 92¾, Youngstown Sheet 82½, General Motors 61⅜, J. I. Case 46¼, Douglas Aircraft 56¼, Hiram Walker 23¼, U. S. Gypsum 103⅛ and International Paper 59¾.

United States Steel lost only ½ at 80⅛ and Bethlehem ¼ at 36¼.

Curtiss-Wright, which ended ½ higher at 11⅛, was one of the few gainers. Demand continued to be stimulated by declaration of two $1 dividends earlier this week.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined .9 of 1 point to 70.1. This compared with the Thursday drop of 1.2 point and carried the general price level back to the average prevailing in mid-May.

Two Airlines Get Mail Pay Boost

By The Associated Press

The Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday granted temporary mail pay ncreases to Pan American Airways and American Overseas Airlines. The boost will give them an estmated addtonal seven mllion dollars this year.

The board allowed the two airlines the same rate for carrying mail on the alnsatlantic route which it earlier had given to Transcontinental and Western Air (TWA).

This means that each of the three north Atlantic carriers will be paid on a basis of 60 cents a plane mile, that is, 60 cents for each mile flown.

A CAB official estimated that the new temporary rate will mean $4,200,000 more mail pay on the north Atlantic route this year for Pan American. American Overseas is expected to receive an additional three million dollars under the new rate.

$2,184,000 Judgment Of Dixie Cup Reversed

Chicago, July 16 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today reversed a patent infringement suit originally decided in favor of the Dixie Cup Co., Easton, Pa.

Judgement for $2,184,000 had been entered in favor of the Dixie company against the Paper Container Manufacturing Co. by Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

The suit originally was brought on 14 patents involving paper cup making machines. Ten of the patents were withdrawn before the suit went to trial.

The Circuit Court held, after more than five years of accounting hearings, that none of the machines now being used by Paper Container infringed Dixie patents.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 16 (AP).—All grains edged lower on the Board of Trade today when persistent selling got the upper hand of the market in the last 30 minutes. Losses were not large in cereals, but mounted up to a fairly sizable amount in soybeans and lard.

Until the final 30 minutes grains were holding their own, taking their cue from the July corn contract. The shorts wanted that delivery and bid the price up nearly 3 cents before deciding they would go no higher. With that July corn collapsed, tumbling more than 5 cents from its earlier high.

The turn-about in July corn weakened the rest of the market, which had not shown much sparkle anyway. Final prices were up a bit from the day's bottoms.

Wheat closed ¼-¾ lower, July 2.27; corn was ½-1¾ lower, July 2.10½@2.10¾; oats were ⅜ to 2 cents lower, July 88⅛@88; rye was unchanged to ½ lower, December 1.88⅛, and soybeans were 3⅛ to 6 cents lower, July 3.74.

New York, July 16 (AP).—Cotton futures closed 45 cents a bale higher to 5 cents lower today. Trading was slow, and prices fluctuated in a narrow range of about 75 cents a bale. Traders were inclined to await developments on the crop, export and textile situation. Some demand was attracted in the later months on expectations of a higher loan on the 1948 cotton crop. In nearby deliveries, where dealers looked for a good deal of hedging pressure when the new crop starts moving in volume, experienced some liquidation.

Public Found Not Eager for Money Risks

By The Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board went after tradition yesterday. The tradition: That Americans are always eager to take risks on investments.

It just isn't so, the board reported. It said a survey made this year turned up the following information:

1. Only about 6,000,000 of the Nation's 145,000,000 persons own stocks and bonds—not counting Government savings bonds.

2. The "great majority" of the country's 48,400,000 families prefer to own things with fixed value, like bank deposits and Government bonds, rather than those with changing value, such as real estate and securities.

Even among families having incomes of $7500 or more a year—making up less than 10 per cent of the population—"at least two thirds" expressed a "definite preference" for assets of fixed value, the board said.

Income Has Little Effect

Which led the board to another tradition-cracking finding: "Income status did not make a vast difference in the investment plans" of families with $1000 or more readily available in savings.

The survey indicated that only 5,500,000 persons—representing 4,500,000 families—own corporate stocks. The board estimated another 500,000 own bonds of corporations, States or cities, although it said that total may be set a little too low.

Checking into the investment preferences of persons who make more than $2000 a year, the board found that:

1. Government bonds are preferred to bank deposits, although not so strongly as a couple of years ago.

2. Among families who prefer assets of changing value, real estate holds an edge over securities and common stock is rated the "least attractive" type of property.

"Safety" Rated Important

The main arguments for bank deposits were "safety" (mentioned by 18 per cent) and easy conversion into cash (12 per cent). But the fact that little interest is earned was regarded as a disadvantage by 19 per cent.

Sixty out of each 100 families said they hold savings bonds "primarily because of safety and secondarily because of the rate of interest received."

In contrast, 58 out of each 100 families "gave reasons against holding" real estate and 62 of each 100 against holding common stocks.

Most of those hostile to real estate investments considered prices too high. Others considered real estate "not safe, a gamble."

Thirty of each 100 families queried said simply they were "not familiar" with common stocks. Another 26 regarded them as a "gamble" but only 3 in 100 thought stock prices "too high."

$100,000 Suit Filed Against Tucker

Chicago, July 16 (AP).—A $100,000 false arrest suit was filed in Federal Court yesterday against the Tucker Corp. and Preston Tucker, the automobile manufacturing firm's president.

Julian C. Ryer of Chicago, one of the attorneys representing three New York men in a receivership suit against the corporation, said in his suit he was "forcible and illegally" detained at the Tucker plant Wednesday for 30 minutes.

Tucker said in a statement Ryer had misrepresented himself as a Tucker dealer to gain entrance to a closed meeting of dealers at the plant. Tucker said he challenged Ryer at the meeting and then had a plant guard escort him from the building.

N. Carolina Reports 50 New Polio Cases

Fifty new cases of infantile paralysis, largest single day toll of the current epidemic, were reported in North Carolina yesterday by State health officers.

The news was followed by announcement that the American Red Cross has sent more than 200 specially recruited nurses to ten North Carolina localities to fight the dread disease.

Yesterday's new cases brought the year's polio total in North Carolina to 658 cases, the Nation's worst outbreak of the year.

The total of cases reported up to July 15 in the 1944 epidemic in North Carolina, previous record for the State, was 303 cases. In that epidemic, 864 cases were recorded for the full year.

The Red Cross announcement here said that a total of 450 nurses in dozens of cities across the country have been recruited to aid localities in United States overburdened with polio cases. Salaries of the special nurses are paid by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Besides the more than 200 nurses dispatched to North Carolina, said Red Cross officials, more than 70 others from Midwestern States have been sent to Texas, principally in the Edinburg, Galveston and Corpus Christi sectors.

Earlier, Red Cross chapters in Pacific area States recruited 162 nurses for polio duty in Boise, Idaho, and Merced and El Centro, Calif.

North Carolina Epidemiologist C. P. Stevick said yesterday that that State's epidemic is still concentrated in central portions of the State. West of Asheville and east of Raleigh, he said, polio incidence is still within normal limits.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis yesterday said it would send an epidemic team to North Carolina next week at request of the State health officer and medical society to consult with local authorities. The aid team will come from the First International Conference on Poliomyelitis, in sessions now in New York. The team consists of an orthopedic surgeon, a pediatrician and an orthopedic nurse.

Orphan, 9, Is Victim

At Statesville, N. C., a 9-year-old orphan died of polio in the hospital. Authorities said he spent last week vacationing with his grandmother in Moore County, an early epidemic area.

Virginia health authorities were watching the situation in their adjoining State closely. They reported four new cases in Virginia yesterday, including the first two in Pittsylvania County, which borders North Carolina. The four new cases brought Virginia's total for the year to 48.

Normal incidence of polio for Virginia in July is 30.9, and for the first 15 days of the month this year the State recorded 27. In 1944, Virginia's epidemic year, the July total was 125 cases.

At Children's
Tick Fever Cure Getting Trial Here

A new drug promising quick cure of Rocky Mountain spotted fever is under trial at Children's Hospital here, it was reported yesterday.

The antibiotic, aureomycin, has been used on but three patients afflicted with the deadly fever here, its sponsors said. Apparent cures with no bad after-effects were reported, in 72, 12 and 24 hour recoveries, respectively.

Initially tested on human beings at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, with successful results, the orally administered drug was supplied Children's Hospital for concurrent tests. At Johns Hopkins, five patients treated with aureomycin ranged from a 16-month-old infant to a 15-year-old. All recovered in from 12 to 72 hours, it was said.

Physicians administering the antibiotic emphasized that all patients treated so far had apparently contracted the fever less than six days before treatment was begun.

Experiments Offer Hope In Polio Fight

New York, July 16 (AP).—Twenty-two chemical compounds and two vaccines that protect animals in high degree against catching infantile paralysis were described to the First International Polio Conference today.

None is ready for human use. But the large numbers of protectives, and the success of some which protect 90 per cent of the animals, represents the first good progress toward the prevention of polio, which Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said is the goal of the March of Dimes.

"The march will continue," O'Connor predicted to the polio conference, "until we learn how to prevent infantile paralysis."

The 22 immunizing chemicals were reported by Dr. Raymond N. Bieter of the University of Minnesota. Some, he said, were discovered elsewhere and some at Minnesota.

These protective chemicals include numerous dyes, yeasts, one of the synthetic B vitamins, carbolic acid compounds and quinine compounds. One is an acid made from human blood. Dr. Bieter named 14 other chemicals which have some protection.

He said these substances, all pointing in the same direction, brighten the hope that polio really can be prevented.

The Minnesota search was made along two main lines. One was for drugs that will kill the virus, the "bug" that causes polio.

The other line of search was unusual, namely to inject into the body an acid that the polio "bug" likes to eat, in hope that he will feed on this instead of eating the nerve cells. This nerve cell destruction causes the paralysis.

The Minnesota experiments all were done on mice.

The two vaccines were developed for monkeys, at Johns Hopkins University. They were reported by Dr. Isabel M. Morgan. Both vaccines are made from the virus that causes polio and both have been successful, Dr. Morgan said, in protecting monkeys.

Nurses Finish 5-Day Polio Course

Nurses at George Washington University Hospital here yesterday completed a five-day conference on polio nursing care.

The daily sessions included lectures on recent trends in treatments of patients with infantile paralysis, and demonstrations of techniques in such care, including proper use of hot packs, the iron lung, and the physical resistance table.

'Sterile' Man Held Liable

that his second wife was also pregnant, Herlihy said, Foster conceded a growing doubt as to his being sterile.

In suspending a 1-to-5-year sentence against Foster, who is a salesman at Ballard's Music Store, 1300 G st. nw., Justice David A. Pine said:

"You have injured the lives of two women. Maybe you have destroyed the lives of two women. They will bring because of you into being two more lives who will enter life under adverse circumstances.

"However, I will give you probation not for your benefit but so that you will pay the medical and hospital bills and otherwise care for these two women and their children to the limit of your ability."

A second charge of perjury against Foster was nolle prossed.

Emotion Grips Brother and Sister

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

THE VERDICT WAS "FREE"—When a coroner's jury brought in the verdict which freed him of blame in the fatal stabbing of his stepfather, Wilford D. Warner, 31, and his sister, Mrs. Madeline Whittaker, 41, collapsed in tears. Jury ruled dagger slaying justifiable homicide

Man Cleared in Fatal Stabbing of Stepfather

A coroner's jury yesterday freed Wilfred Warner, 31, in the fatal stabbing of his stepfather, Eldridge N. Ford, 54, with a verdict of "justifiable homicide."

Ford, a mechanic at the Steuart Motor Co., was pronounced dead at 6:35 p. m. Thursday at Casualty Hospital, after a fight in the dining room of the family home at 1339 Downing st. ne. Ford received seven stab wounds during the struggle with his stepson, Deputy Coroner Christopher Murphy testified yesterday.

Warner, a former merchant seaman, was stabbed three times in the fight.

Dagger Used as Weapon

A Nazi officer's dagger 18 inches long, and a bloodstained sugar bowl with a broken handle, both used as weapons in the fray, were offered as evidence.

Warner's sister, Mrs. Madeline Whittaker, 41, of Fort Tuna, Calif., a visitor in the Downing st. home, said there had been growing tension in the house because Ford "had a mania against doctors."

Ford's wife, Adelaide, 65, had been under treatment for a heart ailment, and Ford bitterly resented this fact and often refused to speak to the family, Mrs. Whittaker said.

Warner wsa home when Ford returned from work about 5 p. m. Thursday, Mrs. Whittaker said, and when Warner asked him, "what's the matter, Pop?" Ford replied, "it's none of your goddam business."

Tries to Separate Men

Later, said Mrs. Whittaker, they exchanged sharp words again and Ford told his stepson, "I'm sick and tired of your being in the house, and I'm going to kill you."

The German dagger, a war souvenir of Warner's, was lying on the dining room table, she said. Mrs. Whittaker said Ford seized it, lunging at Warner and shouting, "I told you once I'd kill you." She tried unsuccessfully to separate them, she said.

Mrs. Whittaker said she did not see the actual stabbing, but later got possession of the knife and ran out of the room with it in her hand to help Mrs. Ford, who came downstairs during the struggle.

Mrs. Whittaker said she did not see Ford fall, but heard a "thud" in the other room.

Police found Ford still conscious on the floor, but unable to talk, according to Sergt. A. D. Clarke of the Homicide Squad. Ford was pronounced dead at Casualty Hospital.

Warner, who sat with bowed head, with bandages on his left arm and forehead, declined to testify at the inquest. According to testimony, he recently had been released from a hospital after an ulcer operation. He told police he did not remember stabbing anyone or being stabbed.

Chaplains' Building To Be Ready in Fall

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Renovation of the new headquarters of the General Commission on Chaplains, 122 Maryland ave. ne., will be completed in the fall, it has been announced.

The $117,000 headquarters will also stand as a memorial to chaplains who died in World Wars I and II, according to T. A. Rymer, director.

The commission acts as a central clearing house for some 38 Protestant denominations in their work with Army, Navy and Veterans Administration chaplains.

Once the home of the late Senator Hiram Johnson of California and his wife, the four-story building has been completely redecorated to house commission offices and provide facilities for Protestant chaplains and churchmen visiting here.

On the main floor are the director's office, a comfortable lounge and a memorial chapel. The lounge opens on a walled garden.

Rymer said a white marbel fireplace in the main office was in the Green Room of the White House in the Lincoln era and was brought to the house by Mrs. Johnson.

In the memorial chapel, which is now being completed, a bronze plaque containing the names of chaplains who died in both World Wars will be erected.

Handmade panes of glass in the chapel windows simulate colonial glass, and a chandelier from an old Baltimore mansion will hang from the ceiling. The entire chapel is being furnished by the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.

A kitchen, conference room, and work rooms are housed in the basement, and the second floor contains offices for commission staff members.

Two guest rooms, for use of visiting clergymen and chaplains, and the director's apartment are on the top floor.

Any Protestant churchman chaplain may use the building free when he is in Washington, Rymer said. Use of the guest rooms, office space, and conference rooms are all a part of the headquarters services.

Total cost of the commission building will be $117,000 Rymer stated. He pointed out that the building, as well as the commission, is supported amost entirely by the 38 participating denominations.

All but $10,000 of the total has been raised, Rymer said. An intensive drive to raise the remaining $10,000 before the building is dedicated in October is now under way.

Catholic U. Signs Contracts For Three New Buildings

A new classroom building, dormitory and chapel will be constructed on the Catholic University campus under a $1,250,000 contract signed yesterday.

The classroom building will be for the National Catholic School of Social Service and other departments of the university, according to an announcement by the Right Rev. Msgr. Patrick J. McCormick, rector of the university. It will be located between the Mullen Memorial Library and McMahon Hall.

The school building, which will be three stories high with a basement, is to be constructed of white limestone to harmonize with the library building. It will contain administrative offices for the Social Service School, 11 classrooms, one special classroom for occupational training work, and one large room for general lectures. The basement will be for a student lounge.

The dormitory accommodating, 100 students and the chapel are to be located on Brookland ave. ne., north of the Nursing Education Building, forming a group of which the chapel will be the center. In keeping with that portion of the campus, the two new structures will be of red brick, with limestone trim and slate roof. The chapel will seat some 460 persons.

Plans for the new buildings were prepared by Murphy & Locraft, Washington architects, and members of the faculty of the university's School of Architecture. Construction, expected to begin at once, will be done by the Joseph F. Nebel Co., of Washington.

Dr. White's Topics

Dr. K. Owen White, pastor, will speak on "Great Things for the Christian" at 11 a. m. and "The Christ of Calvary" at 7:45 p. m. at Metropolitan Baptist Church, 6th and A sts. ne.

Episcopalians To Dedicate Church Sunday

The congregation of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, homeless for nearly four years, will move into its new church, K st. near 24th st. nw., on Sunday.

The Right Rev. Harrington Littell, formerly Bishop of Honolulu, will be officiant at the service of dedication in the new building at 11 a. m.

Almost four years ago the Government condemned the property on which the old St. Paul's, then nearly 80 years old, was standing. The old structure was torn down to make room for the George Washington University Hospital.

Since then the congregation has been worshiping at St. Thomas' Church, 18th and Church st. nw.

Ground for the new $180,000 structure was broken in January, 1947. The design of the building is based on English ecclesiastical architecture of the 11th to 14th centuries, according to Philip H. Frohman, the architect.

Sacred vessels from the old St. Paul's, kept in storage during the four years, will be used again in the new church. In addition, the altar and reredos from the chapel of the old church and some of the stained glass windows have been transferred to the new chapel.

Floors in the choir, sanctuary, and chapel will be paved with marble from the old church and the old pews will be used.

The Rev. Arlington A. McCallum has been rector of St. Paul's since 1924. A native of Canada, he was educated at St. John's College, Winnipeg, and Seabury Divinity School.

Rites to Mark Annual Feast

Outdoor and indoor ceremonies at Catholic University Sunday will mark the annual observance of the Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel.

A procession of students and members of the various religious orders will form at 10:30 a. m. at McMahon Hall. Heading the procession will be a statue of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, borne by members of four mendicant orders.

Solemn high mass in the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception will be at 11 a. m. Celebrant will be the Most Rev. Killian M. Lynch, prior general of the Carmelite Order, who is making a visitation of the order in this country from Rome. The mass is sponsored by the Carmelite Fathers and sung according to the ancient Carmelite rite of the Holy Sepulchre.

Letter From London

Lambeth Conference Stately But Hungry, Mrs. Dun Writes

Bishop and Mrs. Angus Dun of Washington have been in London for several weeks attending the Lambeth Conference of Anglican Bishops from all over the world. The conference opened July 1 and will close August 8.

The Lambeth Conference meets only in closed session, and news of action taken there will not be released until meetings are concluded. To give Washingtonians an idea of what Lambeth and London are like, Mrs. Dun has written the following letter to The Washington Post:

Mrs. Dun's Letter

Chelsea, London, July 10.—This is a cheap and hungry Lambeth. When the Anglican bishops last met they came together in a world of empire and established order.

Mrs. Dun

Our American bishop arrived at Lambeth Palace for a morning meeting in a normal soft felt hat, and was denied admission until more obviously respectable brothers rescued him, vouching for his episcopal status.

Now the absence of a silk hat is accepted as an American idiosyncrasy, like the absence of apron and gaiters. "Toppers" come to all parties on English heads, although no longer to morning meetings. I wonder if they were stored with British Museum treasures through the blitz?

Cooking in Fur Coat

English women's dress obviously was not stored. Our hostess has worn her fur coat to cook in—with a flowered apron tied over it. She still wears it, July 10. The weather suggests the damp cold of February in Washington, so penetrating that it is discipline to sit still long enough to write in an unheated house.

The tall silk hat should not be taken as funny by us. We should see in it the staying power of English decency. Our hosts have received us with every courtesy in houses of grace and beauty, filled with inlaid furniture, fine pictures and delicate china.

But the sheets we sleep between have been borrowed from a friend who still treasures three pair. And the long stretches of English larders, pantries and storerooms are conspicuously bare except for our small food packages.

Egg for Bishop

A day or two ago our host and hostess breakfasted early for no given reason. I knew well enough that the one egg which appeared on the table for the Bishop of Washington was the only egg and the only breakfast which they could offer to their own satisfaction. Fortunately it is established that the Bishop's wife does not eat eggs.

As I have traveled about in buses, I have been questioned by women conductors as I stood by them waiting for a stop. "You are an American?" they ask politely.

"Do you like it here?" "Are you hungry?"

They always ask "Are you hungry?" I can always reassure them with enthusiasm. We are eating the one egg offered with great courtesy, and received with a twist of the heart which calls for equal courtesy.

Great Parties Set

There will be great parties to receive the Anglican bishops. What lacks in refreshments cannot be noticed when we are received by the Lord Mayor in full regalia, or when the Lord High Chancellor welcomes us to the House of Lords, or when their Majesties receive us in the gardens of Buckingham Palace.

This may be a cheap and hungry Lambeth to those who have known the conference in prosperous days. We shall remember it as a deeply Christian gathering in which the tone is set by those who have learned generosity in the days of loss and want. Sincerely,

CATHERINE W. DUN.

Sponsors Sought To Send 100 Boys To Summer Camp

One hundred underprivileged boys will have an opportunity to go to an interdenominational camp this summer if sponsors for them can be found, the Rev. E. A. Emmans has announced.

Mr. Emmans, pastor of Maryland Avenue Baptist Church, said Camp Wabanna at Edgewater, Md., will be used for the lads August 2-9. Everything for the boys, who must be 9-12 years old, will be free, and the camp staff will donate their services.

Sponsors will be needed for the boys in order to pay the $13 necessary to take care of expenses for food and transportation, Mr. Emmans stated. He pointed out that people who would like to send worthy boys to the camp may name the boy they would like to sponsor, or that the camp committee, of which he is a member will get names from District welfare organizations.

Pencil-Sized Baby Sharpens Up...

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Montgomery Charter Suit Answer Filed

Lawyers fighting to get charter government in Montgomery County on the ballot in November, yesterday filed a legal answer in Montgomery Circuit Court at Rockville to a suit attacking constitutionality of the document.

The action followed by two days a Circuit Court ruling which declared a clause of the proposed charter unconstitutional. Hubert A. Schneider, Bethesda attorney, contended in a suit a portion of the charter which specifies that appropriations shall be made each June is illegal. He was upheld by the court.

In their ruling, Judges Charles W. Woodward and Stedman Prescott said, however, that deletion of the offensive clause would leave "a workable framework for possible governmental functioning." They did not grant an injunction requested by Schneider that the charter be kept off the ballots in the November election.

Thomas C. Kelley, attorney representing the county charter committee, said yesterday the two judges were expected to issue a final decree soon. Their action Wednesday was a preliminary to the final decree, he explained.

6 Girls Drown as Car Plunges Into Creek

Union Mills, Iowa, July 16 (U.P.).—Six girls, from 6 to 16 years old and all related, drowned today when their automobile went out of control on a hill and rolled backward into a creek.

Four sisters and two of their cousins were trapped and drowned when the car overturned in 5 feet of water. A fifth sister was thrown free, unhurt.

The oldest girl was driving the group to a 4-H Club meeting.

Constitution Signed

Seoul (Saturday), July 17 (AP).—The new South Korean constitution—first to be written by elected representatives in the Asiatic country's 4000-year history—was signed in formal ceremonies today.

District Bar Group Names Ten to Trial Board Panel

Names of 10 District Bar Association members willing to serve voluntarily on District Police and Fire Department trial boards were announced yesterday by Lowry N. Coe, president of the association.

A similar 10-member panel was announced Monday by the Washington Bar Association. Both groups agreed to furnish civilian lawyers to serve on a volunteer basis after the Commissioners learned that no funds are available to pay them, as originally planned.

Coe said the names will be forwarded to Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher, who is working on proposed trial board reorganization for the Commissioners.

Upon receipt of the two lists Maher will draft revisions to the police and fire regulations setting forth the new system. Officials said it will probably take 45 days to complete the draft and submit it, along with the lists, to the Commissioners.

The District Bar Association panel, he said, will include George E. McNeil, former president of the association, who will be chairman; Hilary W. Costello, Fred J. Icenhower, Richard L. Tedrow, Northcutt Ely, Ralph Stein, Robert I. Rudolph, Allen J. Krouse, James C. Toomey and Roger Ratcliff.

Members of the Washington Bar Association panel are: Maurice R. Weeks, association president; former Municipal Court Judge James A. Cobb, former Judge William C. Hueston of Indiana; Charles H. Houston, Augustus W. Gray, William A. Powell, Wesley S. Williams, Frank D. Reeves, Emory B. Smith and Austin L. Fickling.

Coe said he understood that when a member of the panel is needed for trial board service under the proposed setup, the Commissioners will contact the panel chairman, who will assign one of the members to the board.

The Commissioners requested the panels after Fire Chief Clement Murphy and Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett suggested that civilian attorneys replace members of the city legal staff on the trial boards.

Sightless Woman Rejoins Husband; Parted 27 Years

New York, July (U.P.).—Twenty-seven years ago in Redruth, England, a young man and a young woman were married.

Five days later, the groom, Leonard Uren, left for the United States. His bride, Annie, was to follow in a few months.

Uren got a job in the mines at Ironwood, Mich. He wrote his wife to come right away.

But a few weeks after her husband left, Mrs. Uren began to lose her sight. Within a year, she was blind. He kept imploring her to come, but she wrote she didn't want to be a burden.

Their letters covered the span between the two World Wars. Uren never gave up hope she would join him.

She did today. A 60-year-old woman, her sightless eyes covered with dark glasses, Mrs. Annie Uren came down the ramp from a Pan-American plane and was led to her husband who took her into his arms.

"We've been a long time parted," she said.

$32,123 Taken In Dice Raid Is Unclaimed

Ellicott, City, Md., July 16 (Spl.). Maryland State police may eventually get all or part of the $32,123 they confiscated in the Rocway Towers raid June 5.

Under Maryland law, if private claims to the money cannot be established, the money remains in court custody for at least a year, then if no other claims are filed it goes into the State Police pension fund.

One of the 19 persons convicted in the raid, Walter Novak of Takoma Park, Md., claimed $20,000 of the money during the trial in which Novak was described as the operator of two dice tables at the Towers.

Judge James Clark, who sentenced 19 gambling defendants to the maximum penalty of a year in jail and acquitted two others, said today that no formal claims for any of the money have yet been filed.

All 21 defendants in the case, most of them from the Washington area, still have conspiracy charges outstanding against them. All but one of those convicted are still in the Maryland House of Correction. Patrick J. Clarke of Laurel, Md., described as owner of Rocway Towers, has appealed his sentence and was released in $5000 bond.

Shaefer Victor; Nalon Sidelined

Ed (Dutch) Schaefer of Floral Park, Long Island, N. Y., won his seventh straight at Lanham last night before 5800 fans when he finished far in front in the 25-lap feature midget auto race in 5:55.91 minutes.

Schaefer also scored in two preliminary races and preserved his record of never having lost at Lanham this season. Runnerup in the feature race was Mike Joseph of Philadelphia.

Third place went to Ernie McCoy of Allentown, Pa. Fourth was Charley Miller of Linden, N. J. "Iron Duke" Nalon suffered a blowout in the third qualifying heat and was forced to retire.

Police Seeking More Evidence In Slaying of Bardwell Girl

Police are searching for additional evidence in the Carol Bardwell knife slaying, but it is believed the District grand jury already has received sufficient information to act on an indictment.

If the grand jury has decided it has heard enough evidence to indict Eugene H. James, 31-year-old Baltimore janitor, for the Bardwell killing, it probably will return an indictment in District Court Monday.

No further witnesses in the case were heard yesterday, and the grand jury is believed to have reached a decision after hearing 13 witnesses on Thursday.

Upon the conclusion of that testimony, Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray and Andrew F. Oehmann, who were presenting the case, left the jury room along with the court reporter who was recording testimony. The jury then remained closeted for about 25 minutes, during which time it could be expected to have been voting on the indictment.

Tests Being Made on Clothing

Police are still seeking additional evidence and witnesses, however to bolster their case in event James, who reportedly confessed killing Carol Bardwell here on June 27, and slaying Marsha Brill in Baltimore on July 6, ever comes to trial in the District.

Tests are being made in Baltimore on James clothing, which Washington police hope will further link him to the Bardwell killing.

James, whose attorney later denied his confession in the Bardwell murder, is to face trial in Baltimore on August 3 for the Brill murder. He has also been indicted for the rape-robbery of a Baltimore housewife.

In addition to blood test reports on James' clothing, local police also hope to find witnesses who saw James in Washington on Sunday night, June 27.

Reported Seen on Train.

A railroad crossing "watchwoman," Mrs. Hilda Wiser, told the grand jury Thursday that she saw James on a Washington-bound freight train that Sunday morning, and also saw him on a Baltimore-bound freight Monday morning.

James had told Washington police he returned to Baltimore the night of the Bardwell killing.

He also told them, local police said, that he was wearing khaki trousers and a brown sport shirt while in Washington, hiding under the shirt the knife he used to kill 11-year-old Carol Bardwell. But police believe there are discrepancies in his stories.

In the Baltimore case, he was described as wearing blue coveralls, but James denied owning coveralls. Local police said coveralls were later found in his home there, along with a gray suit which looked as if someone tried to wash stains out of it.

Former Cuban Police Aide Killed in Mexico

Mexico City, July 16 (U.P.).—Three gunmen walked into the Cuban Consulate today, shot and killed Rogelio Hernandez Vega, former assistant chief of the Cuban police, and escaped.

The trio apparently followed Hernandez, his wife and child from their residence to the consulate, then while they were having coffee with Consul Raul Vianello, the men walked through an open door and fired 16 shots at Hernandez.

Baseball Has Field Day With Durocher Going to Giants, Shotton Returning to Dodgers, Chapman Fired by Phils

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THAT WAS A STARTLING triple play in the National League yesterday. Certainly it covered more ground than any other three-ply out in baseball history—Durocher out at Brooklyn, Ott out at New York, and Chapman out at Philadelphia. It was Rickey-to-Stoneham-to-Carpenter and the side was retired.

POVICH

But for the irrepressible Durocher, who was the first victim of the fast pitch, it wasn't a total loss. He landed with the Giants on the first bounce, as a replacement for Manager Mel Ott. Pivoting nicely on the play, Giant President Stoneham booted Ott upstairs into a front office job. And with his free hand, President Rickey of the Dodgers collared Burt Shotton as the new Brooklyn manager.

The only jobless victim of the triple shift is Ben Chapman who got a quick tag from President Carpenter of the Phillies. Chapman was doubtless worried about that seven-game losing streak of the Phillies when he took 'em into St. Louis the other night. What he apparently needed most as a job-saver was a victory. He got it, too, a nice 3-1 win over the Cardinals, and was just treating himself to an easy breath when, 12 hours later, he learned he was a dispensable manager.

BUT DON'T GET the idea anybody was fired. Baseball managers are rarely fired. They always "resign." Brooklyn announced that Durocher had resigned. The Giants announced Ott had resigned, and the Phillies announced Chapman had resigned. But there are always skeptics. Let's go back to the classroom.

Teacher: "And now we will take up definitions and meanings of words. What is the meaning of the word 'resign?'"

Little Willie: "When you resign, that means you're fired."

Teacher: "Oh, no, Willie, you are confused. Think hard, now and give me the meaning of 'resign.'"

Little Willie: "I ain't confused. You're confused. When you resign that means you're fired."

Teacher: "Why on earth would you persist in saying that, Willie?"

Little Willie: "I've been reading the papers, and besides, my father used to be a baseball manager."

THE BROOKLYN-GIANTS deal wherein Durocher ends up at the Polo Grounds is sort of flabbergasting. Obviously, Ott got the heave-ho because the Giants weren't a success under his management, but in Durocher what did the Giants come up with? Apparently a manager who wasn't good enough for the Dodgers.

At the time of the announcement, both the Giants and Dodgers were tied 8½ games behind the league lead, in fourth and fifth place. The Giants were no worse off than their fourth-place finish of last season. It was no great reflection on Ott. But if any man had reason to blush it was Durocher. He was far down in the second division with a team that was a pennant winner last season. Ott, holding his own, got the sack. Durocher, a flop, moves up to a better club.

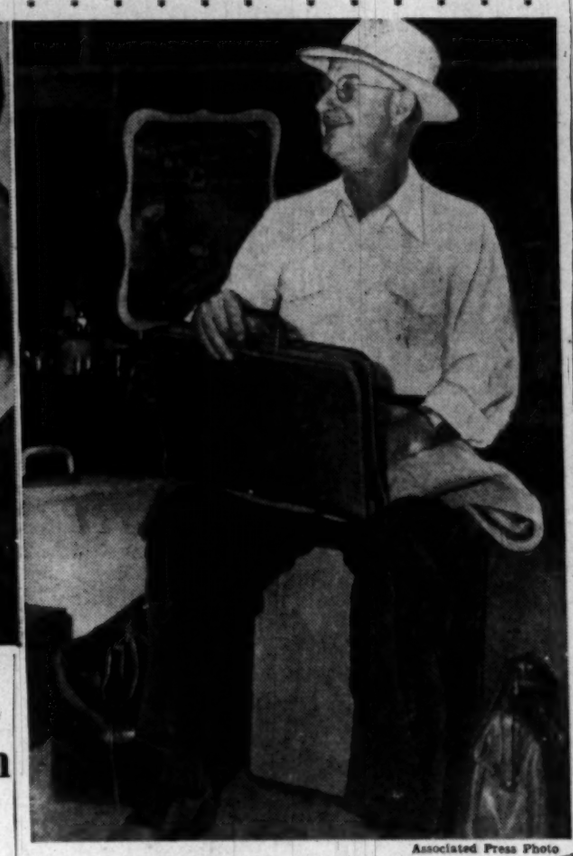

But baseball is famous for its ups and downs. Ben Chapman can soliloquize about that, if he likes. Jobless, now, he can recall the day he was made manager of the Phillies. As a favor to an unemployed friend, he took on Dusty Cooke, his former roommate, as a trainer with the Phillies. This year he gave Cooke another lift, got him a nicer job as coach of the Phillies. Today, the new manager of the Phillies is Dusty Cooke.

FOR BROOKLYN, the triple-shift could be the end of an era. The color could go out of Brooklyn baseball, with the departure of Durocher. His explosive antics have typed Brooklyn as the screwball baseball town of the Nation. Shotton is the antithesis of Durocher, but his pennant triumph of last season renewed the Brooklyn frenzy for baseball.

Branch Rickey apparently is yearning for those lush days of last season, when the pennant-contending Dodgers set a new attendance record. Home crowds at Brooklyn this year are far off, and the cash is not coming in. And with the Dodgers down in fifth place, he did not deem Durocher indispensable. Anyway, with bonuses and everything, Durocher stood to make $60,000 with Brooklyn this year. Rickey can hire Shotton cheaper.

Ott finds himself out of uniform for the first time in 23 seasons. He reported to the Giant as a kid catcher, and Manager John McGraw was smitten with his hitting ability. Overstocked with catchers, he asked the boy "did you ever play the outfield?" McGraw blinked somewhat at the answer of the 16-year-old Ott who said "Yes, sir, I used to play the outfield when I was a kid."

Ott Booted Upstairs in Surprising Shakeups

By Hugh Fullerton, jr.

New York, July 16 (AP).—In a move as startling as it was sudden, the New York Giants today removed mild Melvin Ott, the club's manager since 1942, and installed in his place swashbuckling Leo Durocher, who was released as pilot of the Brooklyn Dodgers to take the job.

The Dodgers recalled 63-year-old Burt (Barney) Shotton, their pennant-winning leader last season, to replace Durocher.

The transaction, completed within a 24-hour period, took effect immediately with Shotton flying to Cincinnati to take over the Brooklyn club at Cincinnati this afternoon and Durocher flying from New York to Pittsburgh to guide the Giants in a night game.

The quick change thus brought to an end the "McGraw era" of Giant management, for Ott was the last of the players who came to the Giants while John McGraw managed the club. At the same time it brought in an aggressive, noisy manager of the McGraw type.

"Boy Wonder" Back in 1926

Ott, who joined the club as a 16-year-old "boy wonder" in 1926 and never has been associated with any other team, will remain in the Giants' organization in an undetermined capacity, although he resigned as manager, he will serve out the term of his contract, which runs through 1950, after taking a brief vacation.

Durocher was hired for the remainder of the 1948 season and for 1949 under the exact terms called for in his Brooklyn contract. This was understood to give him a basic salary of $45,000 a year with additional amounts based on attendance figures.

In Cincinnati, where Brooklyn President Branch Rickey announced Durocher's resignation simultaneously with President Horace Stoneham's revelation of the Giant change, no mention was made fo the terms of Shotton's contract.

Some Pressure on Ott

Although the formal statements of the club presidents said the negotiations all had taken place since Wednesday noon, there were other indications that the deal had been brewing for several days and that, at least to some extent, Ott's resignation was given under pressure.

Durocher, who piloted the National League All-Star team at St. Louis Tuesday, was sent by Rickey to Montreal to look over farm club material immediately afterward. His first intimation of the change, he said, was when he reached New York yesterday and was met by a Rickey emissary who told him to report to the Dodger president's office.

Stoneham and Durocher met to discuss terms last night and Durocher then went to Brooklyn to give Rickey his resignation.

The first suggestion that Ott should quit as Giant manager came about 10 days ago when he and Stoneham met to discuss the plight of the club, which has been wallowing around in fourth and fifth place.

Only "Partly" His Own Idea

Asked what the club needed most to stay in the pennant race, Ott replied: "Maybe it is a new manager."

Today when reporters asked Ott if his resignation was his own idea, Mel smiled wanly and replied, "partly."

The reasons for Durocher's decision to change jobs remained secret. Loquacious Leo insistedt that his relations with the Brooklyn management had been the best but that he always had admired Ott, Stoneham and the Giant organization.

"I definitely think I will better myself by the move," he added.

Then, in the course of answering questions, Durocher tossed in the query: "What made it happen? You fellows haven't hit on anything yet, so I'm not saying anything."

Durocher, who will be 42 July 27, has managed the Dodgers since 1939 with the exception of the 1947 season, when he was under a year's suspension imposed by Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler.

Dusty Cooke Takes His Old Pal's Job

A manager no more but with a smile . . .

St. Louis, July 16 (AP).—Ben Chapman was dismissed as manager of the Philadelphia Phillies today in a sudden move that caught the entire team by surprise.

Coach Allen (Dusty) Cooke, Chapman's close friend for 20 years, was named as his temporary successor.

Club President R. R. M. Carpenter, jr., called Chapman into his hotel suite here to advise him that he was making the change. Afterward both said they were parting as good friends.

"I want to put the facts on the line," Carpenter told newsmen later. "We have decided on a change. As a matter of fact, Ben and I decided between ourselves that a change might help."

Carpenter declined to give a more specific reason for his decision or to indicate whom he had in mind to take over as the permanent manager. He said Chapman would be paid his full salary for the remainder of the year.

Eight of Players Weep

Chapman called his coaches and players together and told them the news. He said the three coaches and eight of the players wept.

The 39-year-old Chapman said the change came as a complete surprise to him and that he did not quit.

"I'm not a quitter," he said. "I was let out." He added, however, that "Mr. Carpenter is the best friend I've ever had in baseball, and I appreciate everything he has done for me."

Chapman said he planned to stay in baseball and that after he visits his home at Birmingham, Ala., and plays some golf "I'll be looking out for some offers in baseball."

Before Chapman departed tonight, Carpenter and other officials attended a birthday party in Chapman's hotel room for Billy Chapman, his 9-year-old son.

Chapman, whose Phils had lost seven straight games until Dutch Leonard pitched them to a 3-1 verdict over the St. Louis Cardinals last night, had been manager of the club for more than three years. He succeeded Fred Fitzsimmons on June 30, 1945.

The Phils finished last season in a tie for seventh place. This year they climbed into fourth place for one day a few weeks ago but today they were in seventh place.

"I don't think we were doing so bad, two-and-a-half games out of fourth place, considered the fact that we were going along with two class A outfielders, two class A infielders, and three class B pitchers" Chapman said.

A former star outfielder for the New York Yankees, Chapman joined that club in 1903 in his first major league job. Later he was with the Washington Senators, the Boston Red Sox, and the Cleveland Indians.

He took over as manager of the Richmond Colts in the Piedmont League in 1941 and on September 16, 1942, was suspended for a year for an attack on an umpire. The Brooklyn Dodgers bought him as a pitcher on August 1, 1944, and he won three and lost three.

Cooke, the Phils' new temporary manager, was hired as the cluv's trainer in January, 1946, at Chapman's suggestion. He was advanced to coach this year and has been coaching at first base.

Bums Salute Shotton With 4-2 Victory

Cincinnati, July 16 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers marked the return of Burt Shotton as manager today by routing Ewell Blackwell and the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 2. The winners thus replaced the New York Giants in fourth place.

Shotton, who piloted the Dodgers to the pennant last year, arrived 45 minutes before game time to take over the helm from Leo Durocher, who resigned in order to take a similar post with the New York Giants.

Blackwell held the Dodgers to one hit for six innings, but they reached him for a run in the seventh and drove him to cover in the eighth when they scored three times to win.

Cards Beat Phils, Spoil Cooke's Debut

St. Louis, July 16 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals broke out of their hitting slump and spoiled the managerial debut of Allen (Dusty) Cooke tonight as they walloped the Philadelphia Phillies, 8 to 2.

Relief Pitcher Ted Wilks blanked the Phils for the last four innings and batted in three runs with a sixth-inning double.

Tying Run Dies on 3d

Nats' Rally in 9th Fizzles, Pieretti and Chisox Win, 3-2

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Former Nat Chic Pieretti got good support from both the White Sox and the Nats last night and the result was a 3-2 victory for Chicago.

Pieretti bamboozled the Nats with his fast ball for eight innings, but was belted out in the ninth when the Nats threatened to turn defeat into victory.

With the tying run on third and none out, however, the Nats returned to their normal futility, and preserved the decision for accordion-playing Pieretti. He gave up only six hits. Pieretti's triumph, his third, was gained at the expense of Earl Harrist, for whom he was traded in the spring.

Harrist was making his first start for the Nats after compiling a 3-to-0 record in relief. He held the Sox to five hits, but walked seven in his seven-inning tenure, and that's what licked him.

Nats Miss Big Chance

The Nats did a wonderful job of botching up a rally in the ninth. They started off fiercely. Gil Coan led off with a double and Eddie Stewart tripled to left.

Stewart's triple chased Pieretti, who got a nice hand from the 5247 fans, and brought lefthander Frank Papish to the scene. He pitched to only one batter, getting Mickey Vernon on a grounder to the box.

With the right-handed Mark Christman up, the Sox wheeled in righthander Howie Judson, and the strategy worked.

Christman, who had extended his batting streak to 12 games with a double and a single in earlier innings, popped to Kolloway. Junior Wooten rolled out and Chicago's seven-game losing streak was over.

Kozar Bats in a Run

Until the ninth, Pieretti had the Nats stymied. He retired the side in order in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth and was making the Nats and the board of strategy who cooked up the Harrist-Pieretti deal look bad.

Except for the second, when Al Kozar singled to chase in Christman, who had doubled, Pieretti was in no trouble, until the abortive rally in the ninth.

Harrist's control was awful. He was behind on virtually every batter and two of the seven walks he issued cost him runs. Taft Wright batted in two Sox runs in the first with a double. His smash scored Tony Lupien, who had singled, and Pat Seerey, who had walked.

In the seventh, Harrist walked Lupien and Seerey unloaded a double to score him with what proved to be the big Sox run.

Bosox Beat Tigers Again

Boston, July 16 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox made it three in a row over the Detroit Tigers today as Joe Dobson chalked up his 11th pitching win by a 5-3 margin. Junior Stephens ended the Boston scoring by poling his 18th homer into the left-center screen against Relief Pitcher Al Benton with none aboard in the eighth.

The Red Sox did not get to Starter Art Houtteman until the fifth when Bill Goodman walked and scored from second base on Birdie Tebbett's single. They pulled into a 3-2 lead in the sixth on Johnny Pesky's double, a pass to Stan Spence, filling in for ailing Ted Williams, a Stephens' sacrifice and Bobby Doerr's two-run single.

Houtteman gave way to Benton after Dom DiMaggio doubled in Tebbetts in the seventh. Stubby Overmire came in after Stephens hit for the circuit.

Boss Incensed

Rickey Felt That Leo Had Quit on Bums

New York, July 16 (U.P.).—The strange and stormy relationship between playboy Leo Durocher and his churchgoing boss, Methodist Elder Branch Rickey, finally came to an end today with Durocher's switch to the New York Giants.

The end came after hundreds of predictions that the two men, with virtually no kindred interests except on the ball field, would part company.

Durocher's final split with Rickey involved a seemingly trivial incident which irritated the elder statesman of the Dodgers when he was listening to the broadcast of a Dodger game while he was in the hospital for treatment of a minor ailment.

Rickey was incensed because Pinch-hitter Arky Vaughan hit a ball down the right field line and that the umpires involved differed on whether it was fair or foul, yet nobody came out of the Dodger dugout to protest. That wasn't like Durocher, Rickey said, and so he sent a message to his pilot.

"You haven't quit on the Dodgers, have you?" he asked. "If you have, why not resign right now?"

The Dodger president stuck up for Durocher in his various brushes with authority in the National League, rehiring him for this season after Commissioner (Happy) Chandler suspended him for a year for conduct detrimental to baseball.

But he just couldn't stomach Durocher not sticking up for his inalienable right to squawk at an umpire.

Joe Louis Sheriff

Detroit, July 16 (AP).—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, was sworn in today as a special deputy sheriff. Wayne County Sheriff Behrendt said he put the honorary badge on the champ because of his "sportsmanship and upright living."

End of a Long Search?

Leo May Be 'Another McGraw' for Giants With Dash, Color and Hoopla of Old Days

(The following stories are comments from fans and officials on the managerial changes in the National League yesterday.)

New York, July 16 (AP).—The New York Giants' long search for "another John McGraw" may be at an end.

The hiring of Leo Durocher as manager today brought to the club a pilot who comes closer than anybody else to the "McGraw way."

McGraw was a firebrand. He always was spirited and full of fight. His hustle aggressiveness and will-to-win was contagious. He provoked feuds. He would involve himself in fights and arouse the fans. His players would catch the fever and scrap and hustle. As a result, McGraw's team were always tough to beat.

Durocher's presence on the Giants is certain to give them a touch of the dash and color and hoopla of McGraw's days. He may be the shot in the arm the colorless Giants under Terry and Mel Ott have needed for a long time.

Leo's In, He's Out

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., July 16 (AP).—Charles Chefio is known as the most ardent supporter of the New York Giants in this area, having attended games in the Polo Grounds at every opportunity for the past 25 years.

Told today that Leo Durocher had sulceeded Mel Ott as manager he said:

"Brother, I am through. I'll never enter the Polo Grounds again."

'Poil Harbor for Giants'

NEWARK, N. J., July 16 (AP).—A baseball fan telephoned the Newark Star-Ledger today to confirm that Leo Durocher had been named manager of the New York Giants.

Told it was true, the fan said in a dejected voice:

"Geez, it's Poil Harbor fer da Giants."

Giants Flabbergasted

Pittsburgh, July 16 (AP).—A swift shift which put out Mel Ott and put in Leo Durocher as manager of the New York Giants today left Giant players flabergasted.

Shortstop Buddy Kerr was so surprised he could voice only a startled:

"Durocher?"

Sid Gordon, third baseman, said:

"I sure liked Ott. I don't know what it will be like playing for Durocher."

Ghezzi's Second 66 Leads Open

Pittsburgh, July 16 (U.P.).—Vic Ghezzi bettered par again today to take the halfway lead in the $16,500 Dapper Dan invitational golf tourney with a 36-hole total of 132. He duplicated his 66 score of the first round to take a five-stroke lead with his 12-under-par total.

Jimmy Demaret moved into undisputed possession of second place with 137. Demaret shot a 68. Ed Furgol took possession of the third spot with a 139 after scoring subpar 68.

Satch Paige Earns Starting Role Against Nats Sunday

MANAGER LOU BOUDREAU of the league-leading Indians, is so impressed by the work of Satchel Paige in relief roles that he has decided to start him against the Nats at Griffith Stadium Sunday.

"Old Satch really has it," said Boudreau of the ageless Negro smokeballer.

Boudreau said Paige would start the first game of Sunday's doubleheader against the Nats. His opponent will probably be Righthander Early Wynn.

Since joining the Indians, Paige has made three relief appearances, his latest Thursday night against the Athletics in Cleveland. He pitched the last three and a third innings and gained credit for the victory, his first since joining the Tribe two weeks ago.

Paige has made many previous Griffith Stadium appearances, pitching here for the Kansas City Monarchs and other Negro professional teams.

Loyal Legion Jogs Home At the 'Graw

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., July 16.—Walter M. Jeffords' Loyal Legion proved much the best in the Darlington Purse, featuring the final Friday program here. The 4-year-old, winner of $60,515 last year, coasted into the wire five lengths in advance of a photograph for second in which H. L. Straus' March Chick, half of the Trainer F. A. Bonsal entry, got the camera nod over J. V. Scelzi's Joe Mandell.

Jockey Ted Atkinson down from New York for the day, rode Loyal Legion and was roundly booed, some of it good naturedly, when he returned the gelding to the winner's circle. Atkinson who already had won a race, been second with a second choice and out of the money with a first-time starter made the favorite, tipped his hat in ceremonious fashion in response to the raspberry ovation.

Loyal Legion in winning for the third time in six starts this year paid a $3.60 mutuel to his legion of backers in a crowd of 8000. Ideal racing weather prevailed with clear skies and a fast track over which the son of Halcyon registered creditable time of 1:43 3/5.

Greentree Stable's Up Beat, with Atkinson aboard, won eased up in the fourth race, coming a fifth of a second from matching the track record for 6 furlongs with time of 1:10 2/5. The colt won by 12 lengths after Atkinson looked back at the 70-yard point and began taking the 3-year-old in hand. S. W. Labrot, jr.'s Dutel was second and three lengths in front of F. J. Vollmer's Sun Elsie in the field of seven. Up Beat closed at 1 to 5 on the board and paid identically, a $2.40 mutuel for the shortest win price of the meeting.

13,000 Set Laurel Mark

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

The biggest—an estimated 13,000—and the bettingest crowd of the meeting got the last weekend of the meeting off to an impressive start last night at Laurel raceway.

Anxious, perhaps, to get even on the eighteenth night of the 20-night harness session, the jam-packed throng poured $249,774 through the mutuel windows, top handle of the meeting.

It couldn't have helped everybody. For the first timbe, every favorite went down. Prices weren't too big because the betting was wide open.

Largest of the night, $34.60, was returned by an old brown mare who proved she is what she used to be. Eleven-year-old Betty Castle was driven to a photo decision over Cindy's Girl in the third by Irv Flora.

After the field had to be recalled when Theron Hanover got ahead of the starting gate, Hunter Direct, handled by Billy Myer, won the featured seventh, a mile pace.

Fans Boo Bob, Macks Clout Him

Philadelphia, July 16 (AP).—Bob Feller, booed in his first start since decling to play in the All-Star game, lasted only a third of an inning tonight as the Philadelphia Athletics beat the Cleveland Indians 10 to 5.

Lefty Lou Brissie gave up 10 hits, including Ken Keltner's twenty-second homer with two on, in winning his ninth game of the season.

A crowd of 19,509 saw the Athletics bound back within a game and one half of the league-leading Indians.

A single by Allie Clark and Lou Boudreau's double gave the Indians a one-run jump on Brissie in the first inning but in their own half, the Athletics cracked Feller for five hits, including a double by Eddie Joost, and three runs before Bob Muncrief was called in.

The defeat was the eleventh setback in 20 decisions for Feller.

Leo Durocher in the Middle Of Baseball's 'Moving Day'

Yankees, Cincinnati Reds and "Gashouse Gang" St. Louis Cardinals, Durocher has been in hot water oftener than a cafeteria teaspoon.

He has been fined and suspended numerous times for numerous infractions of the baseball code and finally was set down for an entire season when the commissioner ruled he "did not measure up to the standards expected of managers of our baseball teams."

As Brooklyn manager, he won one pennant, in 1941, and only once finished below third place. He is known for his willingness to rush out on the field and battle with umpires.

Ott, a quiet, reserved man who holds many major league batting records, has been criticized frequently because of his handling of pitchers and for failing to get the most out of his heavy-hitting club. Nevertheless, he was believed to have a lifetime job with the Giants, if he wanted it.

Since he took over the Giants' management in 1942, the club never has finished higher than third and was last in 1943 and 1946. Last year the Giants were fourth, after setting a lot of slugging records and they have not been able to improve on that position this season.

Questitoned about possible changes in the Giants' line-up, Durocher could only say: "I can't say. I don't want to comment on any phase of the club or to pick it apart. I'll talk it over with Mel before I decide anything." There will be no coaching changes on the New York club as a result of the managerial switch, he added.

Shotton, a "Rickey man" for many years, came out at the start of the 1947 season to take over the Dodger management. His only previous major league managerial experience had been as pilot of the Philadelphia Phillies from 1928 to 1933.

After winning the National League pennant and losing the World Series last season, he returned to the background as supervisor of the Brooklyn farm clubs.

In announcing his reappointment today, Rickey said:

"Last season I turned to him in a time of great stress and he came through brilliantly. I again have turned to him in a time of great stress and feel confident that he will carry on the thorough job of which he always has been capable."

Durocher told a press conference at Pittsburgh later that he was "very happy" about the change.

"The Giants have a good ball club—but then the Dodgers have too, for that matter," he added. "The Giants have plenty of power and should make plenty of runs."

Durocher said he didn't know when his actress wife, Larine Day, would join him.

Stoneham commented that "we were very sorry Mel Ott couldn't make a go of it, but we're very glad we got Durocher."

The Giant president said Durocher's appointment was his own idea and said he had been discussing the matter with Ott for the last 10 days.

Afterward as Stoneham and Durocher grabbed a late lunch "The Lip" looked at his new boss, grinned and said: "If we win the next 40 games we're in!"

Play Shows Reality Of Communism

By James B. Graham
Post Reporter

An Alexandria attorney doubled as author and actor last night in the premier of a three-act play which he calls an "effort to present the realities of communism."

Eardley

The play, "Age of Violence," was presented before a small but enthusiastic audience at the Alexandria Recreation Center by the Workshop of the Alexandria Little Theater.

The author-actor, Carl Eardley of 2600 Valley Drive rd., Alexandria, gathered the background material for the play while serving with military government as an Army major in Trieste. He was supply officer in the Balkan storm center from the day United States occupation began, June 12, 1945, until November of the same year.

Eardley said he wrote his play "to show just how the proletariat is 'liberated' by the Communists." Individuals either conform or are liquidated, he said, adding that this was first-hand knowledge.

How Allies Broke Faith

A second objective was "to illustrate the breaking of faith by the Allies with the little nations which were promised liberty and given tyranny."

The central theme of the play revolves about a young girl of Tervino, described as a small province north of the Adriatic, and a former GI working in the Tervinian office of American Information Service.

The character of the heroine, a secretary in the American office, is drawn largely after Eardley's wife, an Italian girl whom he met while she was his secretary in Trieste, the author admitted.

A Communist leader is elected head of the Tervinian government in an election after the heroine, Jo, had made a speech favoring the candidacy of the leader of the Peasant Party. The speech was written by Bill, the young American, who believed the people would arise to support the anti-Communist candidate if the spark could be touched off.

Characters Put to Death

Following a series of acts of administrative bungling on the one hand and espionage on the other, the central characters are put to death by the Communists, but only after they have discovered their mutual attraction stemmed from love for each other as well as a common love of freedom and democracy.

Eardley played the role of the police chief of Tervino, the Communist hatchetman.

While the author's Italian bride didn't pay with her life for her love of freedom as did the stage counterpart, Eardley said he once was in grave fear for her safety.

The incident occurred when the couple was stopped while motoring across the Trieste border by Yugoslav guards. Only through fast talking by Eardley and the fact that his wife was wearing British battle garb were the guards convinced that she was not Italian.

The Eardleys have two sons, aged 16 months and 1 month.

Postlude
Wild Shows Qualities of True Virtuoso

By Paul Hume

Earl Wild and Howard Mitchell offered a near-capacity Watergate audience plenty of excitement last night.

Wild, widely known here for his frequent appearances with the Navy Band Symphony Orchestra during the war, showed tremendous maturity in his playing over the last time we heard him.

Playing the second of Serge Rachmaninoff's four popular piano concertos, the pianist displayed true virtuoso gifts. These he has made public previously. Last night they were mellowed by deep feeling for the music he was playing, were coupled with a breadth of tone color and poignancy of phrasing quite rare in contemporary pianism.

His performance drew shouts and whistles from listeners. He rewarded them with a Rachmaninoff Prelude and Chopin's E Flat Grand Polonaise. When Wild can maintain inflexible command of tempos in moments of high tension, and invests his octave runs with a character they now lack he will stand very near the top of today's pianists.

Howard Mitchell and the orchestra preceded the concerto with favorite Wagnerian excerpts from four operas. While there were minor moments of insecurity, as there were in the final moment of the Rachmaninoff, these must be charged solely to the single rehearsel permitted for the entire concert.

The orchestra becomes a more cohesive unit with each concert. Their ensemble tone, clearly divided into proper choirs, has been welded into a beautiful, and brilliant body of sound. The strings, divided into many choirs by Wagner, had an amazing sheen. In the third act prelude from Lohengrin the music gained remarkable power with their articulation of the supporting thirds.

Airplanes were unkind last night, dive bombing Isolde thrice during the Liebestod, and Wild once at a cricial moment in the last section of the concerto.

Sunday: The Revelers quartet, with the orchestra playing Khatchaturian, and music from Oklahoma.

Speeding Cop Fined

Paris, July 16 (U.P.)—Jean Hennerie, a motorcycle policeman was fined $4 in traffic court today for violating the speed limit while chasing a speeding motorist. Hennerie was charged with going 50 miles an hour and knocking down and injuring a pedestrian.

Crosby Writers Rate Big Assist

By Richard L. Coe

"THE EMPEROR WALTZ," at the Warner, is a grand picture. Don't miss it.

This is a blithe musical of Technicolor proportions with Bing Crosby at his amusing best, Joan Fontaine at her ravishing loveliest and a sleek cast, including Richard Hayden, Lucille Watson, Roland Culver and Sig Ruman.

But what makes it really good is a script you can listen to without wishing you were in a cave of silence. The plot is tongue-in-cheek absurdity, the lines crisp and amusing. Obviously a good deal of work has gone into this, for originality doesn't come from lying down on the job. The contrast between the banalities of "Easter Parade" and the freshness of the writing that has been poured into this is striking.

Though they don't appear, the true heroes of "The Emperor Waltz" are Charles Brackett and Billy Wilder, who collaborated on the script, direction and production. These are the boys who adapted "The Lost Weekend" and have distinguished themselves with many another mark of successful collaboration.

Not that there's any resemblance between that Academy Award winner and "The Emperor Waltz." This time the boys are imagining what might have happened had a breezy American salesman of the Victory company's early days approached the Emperor Franz Josef of Austria with the scheme of selling him a phonograph. Such an idea, imaginative certainly, might well have fizzled in execution.

THE CAST

Virgil Smith	Bing Crosby
Johanna Augusta	Joan Fontaine
Baron Holenia	Roland Culver
Princess Bitotska	Lucile Watson
Emperor Franz Josef	Richard Haydn
Chamberlain	Harold Vermilyea
Dr. Zwieback	Sig Ruman
Archduchess Stephanie	Julie Dean
Chauffeur	Bert Prival
Inn Proprietress	Alma Macrorie
Chambermaid	Roberta Jonay

Ingenious Wit

But ingenuity is the mark of the Brackett-Wilder team. They tell their story in lean, witty fashion, pointing up the romance between the salesman from Newark and the Countess of Vienna by picturing dalliance between the Yank's he mongrel and the lady's she poodle. The Countess' father, deliciously played by Roland Culver, is thrilled to pieces when the old emperor proposes that a union be arranged between his royal poodle and his daughter's blue blooded animal. All would be well were it not for the natural attraction between that talking machine advertisement and the noble pooch.

This is all told with an off-hand aplomb that curiously manages respect for Franz Josef's person and admiration for Yankee traits. Thanks to the bemused affection with which Richard Haydn plays the mustachioed ruler, and the skill with which the film has been edited, the unlikely story has the charm of a sophisticated fairy tale.

Of all the humor, the neatest concerns the court veterinarian who went to school in his early days with a chap named Freud. He tackles his animal patients with the black couch-poised pencil approach of the psychiatric breed, and the conversation between him and the fancily clipped Scheherazade is extremely amusing satire. This scene will keep you chuckling inwardly for hours.

Melange of Tunes

Music? Of course there's music, with Bing quelling both animals and Miss Fontaine's countess to the melody of "I Kiss Your Hand, Madame" (and what an amusing scene that one is), tossing off a tribute to the Tyrolean songsters in "Friendly Mountains" and lucid rearrangements of several Strauss waltzes.

The cast certainly couldn't be finer and there's a neat ballet take-off in Bing's inn lobby. (The girl with red hair, by the way, is Roberta Jonay of the Theater Guild's "Allegro.") While my favorite dancer didn't go for all this, I thought it good fun.

The settings are as spectacular as one could wish from royal ballroom elegance to the eye-filling Tyrol which actually, by the way, are the crags of Jasper National Park.

But see "The Emperor Waltz" for yourself. If you have half as much fun as I did, you'll still have a grand time.

REMEMBER the Warner's contest to find the town's loveliest red-heads? . . . Ann Sheridan's recent reappearance inspired the Warner-Bates alliance for this one and here are the winners . . . First prize goes to Betty Joy of 828 D st. se., who cops an "Embraceable" wristwatch . . . Second place to Miss Henrietta St. Pierre, 1767 P st. nw., whose possessions now include a set of silverware . . . Third spot to Betty Irwin, 1432 Oak st., who's richer by a United States Security Bond . . . Nope, haven't got their phone numbers.

Davis Needs Executive Order To Salvage the Capitol Bill

THOUGH the composer and former Governor of Louisiana is on hand to sing "You Are My Sunshine," there's scarcely a peep of anything remotely resembling sunshine at the Capitol this week.

"RUTHLESS," an Eagle-Lion release of Producing Artists production, directed by Edgar G. Ulmer, screen play by S. K. Lauren and Gordon Kahn, based on the novel, "Prelude to Night," by Dayton Stoddart. At the Capitol.

The picture is an untidy item yclept "Ruthless," wherein much is made of a man's climb up the steepy crags of commerce. The stage bill is pretty limp, and as an entertainer, Jimmie Davis makes an understandable former Governor of Huey Long's old State.

That "Ruthless" has its heart in the right place, there's no doubt. It is the idea of its writers, S. K. Lauren and Gordon Kahn, who adapted it from a novel by Dayton Stoddard called "Prelude to Night," that a man who climbs the financial pinnacle by kicking everyone who helps him is a Bad Type. To which Amen.

But they've assumed it's necessary to rub this lesson home in the most obvious way, with no dramatic holds barred and with scriptural quotations emphasized. The girls, good and bad, tarnished by by Zachary Scott in his rise from an unwanted child to a tycoon presenting his estate to the United Nations, take a terrific beating.

That it's all perfectly possible one doesn't doubt and, thanks to a stable portrait of Scott as a child enacted by one Bob Anderson, it's also possible the story will hold your interest for a spell. But the development is thick and plodding and the acting's no help.

Scott hams away at his villainous role by popping his eyes, drawing his lips, achieving a constant pallor and being intense at all times. Louis Hayward intrudes himself as the script demands, but he's asked to play an incredible chap; it's true that the relationship of the two dissimilar men, reaching back to their boyhood, might have lasted through the years, but it's not clearly defined why.

Sydney Greenstreet makes his appearance finally as one of the titans whom Scott has ruined, but by then the pace has settled to a jerky crawl. Diana Lynn, in a dual role, Martha Vickers and Lucille Bremer are the important ladies involved, but at best they're only decorative.

Jimmie Davis, who two months ago was Mr. Big in Louisiana, has brought a small thin band which used to entertain and campaign with him before his days in the executive manse. Possibly the boys might be fun in a little beer joint, but they're pretty vacuous on the Capital stage. The rest of the folks on the bill don't seem very much at home either.—R. L. C.

Judge Harper Not Entitled To Salary, Warren Says

Technicality Hits Truman Mo. Choice; Tamm, Two Others Get Pay Approved

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren, in a rare action, yesterday removed a Federal judge from the United States payroll, and at the same time approved the payment of salaries to three other judges, including Associate Justice Edward Allen Tamm, of United States District Court here.

The Comptroller General ruled that Justice Roy W. Harper, who three times has been given recess appointments to the Federal Court in Missouri by President Truman, was "not entitled to salary" under his latest interim appointment of June 22.

On the other hand, the Comptroller General's 14-page decision made it clear that Justice Tamm, Judge Paul P. Rao, of United States Customs Court here, and Justice Samuel H. Kaufman, of New York's southern district, also given recess appointments June 22 after the Eightieth Congress failed to act on their nominations during the last session, have a legal right to their $15,000 a year salaries.

Raised by Chandler

The question of the salary payments was raised on June 30 by Henry P. Chandler, director of the Administrative Office, United States Courts, which serves as paymaster for the Federal jurists.

Chandler cited a Federal statute which prohibits the payment of salary to any person appointed during the recess of the Senate to fill a vacancy in an office, if the vacancy existed while the Senate was in session and if Senate confirmation is needed for the appointment.

The statute, which dates from Lincoln's time and was passed by Congress in a dispute over the appointment of generals, has been eased by three exceptions. One of these exceptions is as follows:

"If, at the time of the termination of the session of the Senate, a nomination for such office, other than the nomination of a person appointed during the preceding recess of the Senate, was pending before the Senate for its advice and consent.

The judiciary paymaster wanted to know whether the four judges fell under the definition of the exception, thereby making them eligible for their pay.

Complex Question

It was a complex question tossed at the Comptroller General, who had little to fall back on in the way of precedent—one of the toughest questions ever posed, according to a member of the staff.

The question itself seemed to turn on the meaning of the words "termination of the session" in the quoted exception.

If the recent adjournment of Congress until December 31 was a "termination of the session," then Justices Tamm, Rao and Kaufman would be entitled to their pay. If not, then the United States Treasury would be forbidden to pay the judges, even though they were already sworn in and serving as members of the bench.

Congress adjourned June 20 but in such a way as to permit House and Senate leaders to reconvene the chambers. Thus was raised the problem as to whether the adjournment was a recess or not. The Comptroller General ruled that so far as the recess-appointed judges are concerned, it was a recess and therefore the interim-appointees are entitled to their pay.

Judge Harper's case, however, was different. The President's been unable to get Senate confirmation of this appointment for many months, and the latest recess appointment was the third in a row.

Comptroller General Warren ruled that the exception clause, quoted earlier, did not apply to Harper since he already had an earlier recess appointment.

Youth Who Died In YMCA Plunge Is Identified

A youth who leaped to his death here Thursday night was identified by police yesterday as the defendant who earlier that same day was released under bond for jury trial on a charge of indecent exposure.

He was identified by fingerprint records as Gregory N. Tripoli, 26, of 5010 5th st. nw., police said. A department store credit card bearing that name was found in his pocket after his fatal plunge from the YMCA building, 1736 G st. nw.

Police said Tripoli had appeared before Municipal Court Judge John P. McMahon Thursday morning charged with indecent exposure in a downtown theater. He was released under $500 bond for trial by jury August 19, they said.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, yesterday issued a certificate of death by suicide in the case.

Under Present By-Laws

Court Upholds AAUW Branch On Racial Membership Issue

The Washington branch of the American Association of University Women cannot be expelled from the national organization because it refuses to accept Negro members, District Court ruled yesterday.

Laws

In an opinion written by Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws, the AAUW was informed that under its present by-laws it cannot compel its local chapter to admit Negro members.

He issued a temporary order forbidding the national organization from expelling the local chapter and said he would issue a permanent injunction along the same lines soon.

Started in October

The racial controversy arose in October, 1946, when the Washington branch of AAUW refused to admit as a member Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, a Negro and widow of a Municipal Court judge.

In December, 1946, the board of directors of AAUW passed a resolution stating that persons should not be denied membership on racial, religious or political grounds.

The Washington branch held fast to its position in 1947 by amending its by-laws so its board of directors would have the power to pass upon persons who applied for membership.

The national then notified the Washington branch that its by-laws were in conflict with those of the national and that if they were not corrected by May 6, 1948, the branch would be expelled from the AAUW. The branch brought suit to prevent the ouster.

Justice Laws' Opinion

In his opinion, Chief Justice Laws said he had "no doubt as to the right of the national organization to pass a by-laws requiring admission of those of all races to membership in branches as well as in the national."

But this was not the question, he said. The question, he continued, was whether such a by-law had been adopted by the national, and if not, whether the national directors had the legal right to expel a branch for failing to observe a policy declared by the national directors.

Justice Laws said that under the by-laws of the national, the national directors have powers to carry out provisions of the AAUW charter and its by-laws, but may not act in conflict with existing by-laws or amend them.

The by-laws of the AAUW, he noted, provide that the by-laws may only be amended at the national convention of the AAUW.

Branch Has 'Discretion'

The jurist ruled that under the present wording of the AAUW by-laws a branch is given "discretion" in the selection of members.

"I am of the opinion," wrote the chief justice, "that only by the adoption of amended by-laws by a national convention . . . and a subsequent refusal by a branch to abide by such by-laws may a branch be lawfully expelled for refusal to admit Negroes to its membership."

He declared the board of directors of AAUW "acted beyond its powers" in ordering the expulsion of the Washington branch.

After learning of the decision, Dr. Elizabeth Conrad, president of the Washington branch, and Mrs. G. R. Wilhelm, its immediate past president, issued this joint statement:

"We are glad to have the decision of the District Court which holds that the by-laws of the Washington branch of the AAUW governing selection of its membership are not in conflict with those of the national organization. This decision supports the Washington branch in a position assumed only after mature deliberation.

"Now that the legal phases are cleared, this branch, which is the oldest and one of the largest of AAUW in the United States, plans to go forward with the program for the coming year. This program conforms as heretofore with the expressed objectives of AAUW for work in various fields pertaining to education."

Officers of the national withheld comment on the court ruling and it could not be learned whether the branch and the national will continue to share a clubhouse at 1634 I st. nw.

Police Pose As Farmers in Lottery Case

A merchant charged with lottery operation here declared yesterday in District Court that police undercover men pretended they were farmers in an attempt to "trap" him into accepting a numbers bet for them.

Harold Coleman, 56, of 2400 14th st. nw., made the charge in seeking to suppress evidence and to quash the indictment against him.

Posed as Farmers

Coleman testified that Police Pvt. Silas E. Vaughn and another undercover man came to his store in January and said they were farmers desiring to sell him farm goods for a grocery store he contemplated opening.

Coleman said they prevailed upon him to place a bet for them because it was too late to play elsewhere.

Private Vaughn admitted that he wore overalls and a railroad fireman's cap in his visits to Coleman but denied that he used entrapment tactics.

Deception Rapped

Defense Attorney Jack Politz argued that Coleman, if anything, accepted the bet as a "favor" and because of the entrapment. He said that the costume worn by the undercover men was an unwarranted deception.

Queried Justice Pine, "You don't expect a policeman to go into a store in full uniform to make a play, do you?"

Politz replied that he did not expect this, but that he considered the method used here illegal since Coleman kept " a legitimate place of business."

"Don't you think most of them have fronts?" asked Justice Pine before he ruled against Coleman.

'Brass Rail' Shooting Case Consolidated

Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws yesterday consolidated the two "Brass Rail" shooting cases for trial in District Court on July 26.

The jurist said he was "probably" setting some kind of a precedent in consolidating the two cases. A search of records shows that it has never been done here in cases of two men charged with shooting each other, court officials said.

The assailants, both charged with assault with intent to kill, are Charles H. Nelson, 39, of 1803 H st. ne., and Henry M. Leake, 39, of 104 R st. ne.

Took Place In January

The affray occurred outside the Brass Rail restaurant, 7th and S sts. nw., last January. Both men were wounded seriously but recovered.

The case lay dormant until the special grand jury investigating the widespread numbers racket here suddenly called the principals before it.

In court yesterday, Defense Attorney Bernard Margolius contended that he could not understand why there was so much publicity in the case, including intimations that there was a gambling motive connected.

Claim Rights Prejudiced

He and his co-counsel, Ray L. Jenkins and Curtis Mitchell, contended that their clients' rights would be prejudiced if the cases were consolidated. They said they feared the action would deprive them of the opportunity to cross-examine the defendants. They also charged that the Government might call each defendant as a witness against his alleged assailant and should the witness claim his privilege against self-incrimination, it would leave an unfavorable impression in the minds of the jurymen.

However, Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray assured them this would not be the Government's tactic. He said it was the rule that defendants could be tried together if their crimes were part of the same incident.

Caught 8 Blocks Away

Youth, 15, Arrested in Attack On Georgetown Grocer, 75

A 15-year-old youth was arrested yesterday about five minutes after he had struck a 75-year-old groceryman on the head with a wooden meat grinding machine tool in a robbery which netted him only a package of cigarettes.

Jenkins

The youth, who said he was from St. Paul, Minn., was charged with robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon. He was captured about eight blocks from the robbery scene by police aided by an unidentified woman.

The groceryman, John T. Jenkins, who received treatment at Georgetown Hospital for an abrasion, told police he was alone in his Jenkins Market, 3008 Q st. nw., when the youth entered, ordering a quantity of groceries. When he had put them up into a bag Jenkins said the youth grabbed a wooden instrument used to push meat into the hamburger machine and struck him on the head.

Though he almost fell to the floor, the groceryman said, he was able to seize a meat cleaver. The youth frightened, ran out of the store, first picking up a package of cigarettes from the counter. A woman who was about to enter the store joined police when they arrived in a scout car, and pointed out the youth in Rock Creek Park, near the P st. bridge.

Ex-Partner Of Denekas Held in Theft

McDaniel Arrested By Arlington Police; Alleged to Have Sold Goods in Virginia

Billy L. McDaniel, former business partner of William A. Denekas, who was slain in an automobile bomb blast last month, yesterday was arrested by Arlington County police on charges of housbreaking and grand larceny.

McDaniel, whom police list as living at 503 Main st., Harrisonburg, Va., is charged with having stolen last April about $800 worth of machinery from the Old Dominion Neon Sign Co., which he and Denekas jointly operated.

McDaniel

The company was put under a sheriff's levy March 12. Chief Harry L. Woodyard said yesterday that when the theft was reported to police, Denekas had told them he thought McDaniel might be the guilty person.

Denekas Slain June 7

Denekas was mysteriously slain June 7 when he attempted to start his car in front of his rooming house at 5837 N. 21st st., Arlington. High explosive had been placed under the front seat of the car, and it was discharged when Denekas started the car. He died on the way to the hospital.

Detective Sergt. John Sanders, who worked on the Denekas mystery, spent two days in Staunton, Va., this week gathering police evidence to link McDaniel with the machinery theft.

Chief Woodyard said Sanders had been able to recover the machinery, and had found cancelled checks which indicated McDaniel had sold the machinery in Staunton, for about $400.

Chief Woodyard said McDaniel has admitted selling the goods, but has denied that he stole them from the sign shop. McDaniel was held for questioning for nearly 24 hours by Arlington County Police in connection with the Denekas slaying last month.

A bond of $5000 has been set for McDaniel's release from Arlington County Jail. Judge Harry Thomas, who set the bond, said he did not consider it unusually high since it "is a felony case, larceny from the sheriff." Date for preliminary hearing on the charges has not been set, Woodyard said.

Bootlegger Wins Round in Battle With D. C. Courts

David Douglas Davenport, 33 much-arrested Union Station bootlegger, won a round yesterday in his drawn-out battle with Municipal Court authorities.

Davenport, who was fined a couple of times on bootlegging charges and served 30 days in jail for indecent exposure in Potomac Park, now faces a vagrancy sentence of 90 days. He is represented by Attorney Saul Lichtenberg, who will argue a motion for a new trial in that case.

Father Charged With Beating Son, 12, With Leash and Cord

A 36-year-old plumber was charged yesterday with beating his 12-year-old son with an electric cord and a dog leash when the boy refused to take a bath.

The father is Edward A. Tyler, 36, of 1650 U st. se. He was arrested just outside Municipal Court where his wife, Mrs. Oris Tyler, 35, had gone to obtain a warrant.

Tyler

According to police, Tyler followed her downtown from their home and was waiting for her to leave the court.

The son, Edward A. Tyler, jr., showed reporters his back which was a mass of bruises and welts. He said the beating occurred Tuesday.

At the First Precinct station house, where he was booked, Tyler said, "I wouldn't have done it if I hadn't been sick."

He said he returned to his home Tuesday after a week's stay at a hospital where he was treated for a ruptured appendix. He claimed that he was nervous and extremely excitable as a result of the illness, and that his children had caused him worry.

After the assault warrant was authorized by Assistant United States Attorney Andrew J. Howard, it was signed by Judge George D. Neilson.

The mother pointed out Tyler to a warrant clerk, Paul G. Mothershead, who directed Police Pvt. Richard A. Jordan, who was in the courthouse, to make the arrest immediately.

Howard reported that the boy told him that on Tuesday he went off to play with a friend and did not return home until 9:50 p. m. when his father ordered him to take a bath.

When he refused, he told Howard, the father grabbed an ironing cord and dog leash that hung together on a hook and lashed him "at least a dozen times."

Rep. Dirksen to Seek Action On D. C. Rule at Special Session

Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) of the House District Committee announced yesterday he will try to get action on the District home-rule bill when Congress meets in special session July 26.

He said he had discussed the bill Thursday night with Chairman James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) of the House District Subcommittee on Home Rule.

Auchincloss seconded Dirksen yesterday, declaring the home-rule bill should be brought before the House during the special session "to see if we can get it through."

It will be up to the House leadership, however, to decide whether the bill should be brought up for debate, Auchincloss added.

Dirksen said he plans to confer with the leadership as soon as possible to see if the bill cannot be brought up for debate and final action.

"Now is the time to act," said Dirksen. "Both the Republicans and Democrats have included planks in their platforms approving suffrage for the District. While these declarations of policy are fresh in the minds of legislators, it would seem logical to bring up the home-rule bill on the floor to complete House action.

The bill, which would authorize an elected and reorganized city government, was debated for one full day in the House during the last session but was withdrawn during the wild scramble to adjourn.

Its supporters defeated several motions that would have killed or reduced the effectiveness of the bill. The measure is still on the House calendar as unfinished business.

Dirksen also said he hopes to find some way to grant a cost-of-living wage increase to District government employes during the special session.

Federal workers got the wage boost, but the increase for District employes was contingent opon passage of a 2 per cent sales tax for the District. The sales-tax bill passed the House, but was defeated in the Senate by a filibuster by Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.).

On Pledge of Owners

D. C. Will Waive Light Rules For Day-Running Motor Bikes

Requirements for approved lighting equipment on vehicles in the motor bicycle class will be waived if owners agree to operate only during daytime hours, Traffic Director George E. Keneipp announced yesterday.

He said the Commissioners had approved an amendment to traffic regulations that will make it possible for motor vehicles of this type to pass District inspection without lights, provided they are not driven at night.

Owners must agree not to operate "from a half-hour after sunset to a half-hour before sunrise or at any other time when lights are required."

In such cases the owner's registration card will be stamped "not to be operated when lights are required." Persons who violate this requirement will be subject to arrest and fine or imprisonment, and Traffic Division Inspector Arthur E. Miller warned the law would be strictly enforced.

Vehicles in the motor bicycle classification will be called for inspection about July 26, Kepeipp announced.

Centralized D. C. Traffic Signal Plan Is Submitted

Municipal Center Control of Every Light in City Is a Possibility

A $200,000 plan to centralize control of the District's traffic signal system was sent to the Commissioners yesterday with the unanimous approval of their Traffic Advisory Committee.

The committee also recommended that specifications for parking meters be amended so bids can be obtained for installation of 2000 manual, rather than automatic, meters in fiscal 1949.

The traffic signal plan envisions central control from the Municipal Center of practically every traffic light in the city in four years' time.

Some Boxes 14 Years Old

If it is approved, work will start immediately on changing over lights at intersections in the area bounded on the north by Florida ave. from 1st st. ne. to 23d st. nw. and on the south by Independence ave. This will mean the replacing of 200 control boxes, some of which are 14 years old.

The committee had previously rejected a method of centralizing control which would have employed the use of electronics and cost an estimated $400,000.

Traffic Director George E. Keneipp said he has discussed the approved plan with Engineer Commissioner Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young and his assistant, Lieut. Col. K. E. Madsen. Approval of the plan now, he said, would permit the engineer commissioners to include part of the program in their 1950 budget, which should be submitted in August.

Trial Period for Manual Meters

Keneipp said the committee's recommendation on parking meters did not mean manual meters would be adopted, but that they would be installed for a trial period. The difference between the two is that city employes wind the clocks on automatic meters, while the car owner winds those on manual meters when he deposits his nickel.

The board learned that installation of meters has doubled the available parking space in the District, but that there is a need for 4600 more.

The 2000 manual meters would be installed at H st. ne., between 3d and 15th sts.; Pennsylvania ave. west of 17th st. to Washington Circle; Connecticut ave. in the area around L st. nw.; L st. nw., from Connecticut ave. to 16th st.; 14th st. nw., between Girard st. and Park rd.; in the area of the intersection of 18th st. nw., Columbia rd. and Adam Mills rd.; M st. nw., in the area near Wisconsin ave.

Parking Lot Charge Survey to Be Launched

A complete investigation of parking lot services and charges here to compare Washington's parking picture with those of other cities will be launched soon by the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency.

At an agency meeting yesterday, a nine-man committee was appointed to plan the survey. It will hold its first meeting Monday, Chairman P. Y. K. Howat said.

The survey was ordered by Congress in a joint resolution approved June 29. The Commissioners were directed to submit a report to the House and Senate Committees not later than January 2.

In a letter directing the MVPA to make the actual survey, Commissioner John Russell Young told Howat he "hoped" a preliminary draft of the survey report would be ready before December 1.

In its joint resolution, Congress said it wanted to know the rates charged in local parking lots, the services supplied by lot operators, and how such charges and services compare with those in other cities.

The committee includes members of MVPA, American Automobile Association, Keystone Auto Club, Washington Board of Trade, the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, the Metropolitan Police Department, and the District license superintendent.

Police Probe Death of Man Found in River

Maryland State Police yesterday began investigating the death of Rudolph Quistorf, 79, of University Park, Md., whose body was washed up on the Potomac shore near Waldorf, Md., late Tuesday.

Quistorf's body was identified Thursday night by his son-in-law, Charles W. Chaney, with whom he lived at 4317 Clagett Pineway, University Park, after police had sought for two days to establish his identity. Chaney said he went to a funeral home at La Plata to examine the body after reading descriptions in newspaper accounts.

Quistorf, a retired employe of Woodward & Lothrop, apparently died by drowning, police said, and a certificate of "probable death by drowning" was issued by the Charles County medical examiner.

Chaney said his father-in-law left home Sunday without leaving any notice, but his absence was not reported because he had gone away on visits under similar circumstances before. He said he had no idea where Quistorf had gone or how he had met his death, and had asked police to attempt to trace his movements.

Quistorf was fully clothed when his body was found, police reported. They said it was impossible to determine where he had drowned, as tide waters may have carried his body from any one of numerous points along the Potomac.

Chaney's wife, Mrs. Gertrude Chaney, is Quistorf's only daughter. Two grandchildren also survive.

Graveside funeral services will be held today at 2 p. m. at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

3-Day Rites For Pershing Begin Today

A vast funeral procession on Monday will bring to a climax three days of solemn rites here for General of the Armies John J. (Black Jack) Pershing, America's No. 1 World War leader and hero, who died at Walter Reed Hospital Thursday at the age of 87.

General Pershing will lie in repose today in the Army Medical Center, where relatives, close friends, and fellow patients at Walter Reed Hospital will have the opportunity to pay homage to the military leader at his bier.

These rites will not be open to the public because of the limited size of the chapel.

On Sunday, the casket accompanied by a military cortege, will proceed at 1 p. m. from the Center down Sixteenth st. and along Pennsylvania ave. to the Capitol. There, beneath the Great Dome of the Capitol, the body will lie in state for 24 hours in the historic catafalque reserved for the Nation's great, guarded by the crack troops of the Third Infantry Regiment.

Thousands to Pass Bier

Thousands of Americans are expected to pass the bier and pay their respects between 3 and 9 p. m. Sunday and between 9 a. m. and noon Monday.

The Army Band, created by General Pershing, will participate in the Rotunda rites and will wear the gray uniforms he ordered for the band when he was Chief of Staff, and which they have not worn for many years. Ranking civilian and military dignitaries will await the arrival of the casket at the Capitol.

The Military Order of the World Wars, which General Pershing helped found, will hold a simple ceremony at the bier at 3 p. m. Sunday.

Shortly after noon on Monday, one of the greatest funeral processions ever to be formed in the Nation's Capital, according to a Department of Army spokeseman, will begin to take shape. At 1 p. m. the casket will be taken from the Rotunda and the procession, with approximately 3500 participants, including Army, Navy and Marine units, will begin its slow, 4-mile march down Constitution ave. to Arlington Cemetery.

Drawn by Six Horses

General Pershing's casket will be borne on a caisson drawn by six perfectly matched gray horses and followed by the symbolic caparisoned black horse. The Air Forces will provide an airplane during the march.

In the cemetery, special services will be held at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and in the Amphitheater before 3000 invited guests. Services will be those of the Protestant Episcopal Church, of which the general was a communicant. The President and Cabinet are expected to attend the rites.

Committal services will be held at the graveside by the family and the Nation's leaders. General Pershing himself selected the site on a slope below the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier—who died in World War I under the general's command.

Army officials announced that admission to the Amphitheater would be by ticket only. The vantage point for observers, they said, would be along the line of march on Constitution ave.

Hundreds of honorary pallbearers, honorary body bearers and invited guests were announced by the Army yesterday. Sergt. Alvin C. York of Jamestown, Tenn., whom Pershing once called "the greatest foot soldier of World War I," Former President Herbert Hoover and elder statesman Bernard Baruch were name damong the honorary pallbearers.

France yesterday mourned the death of General Pershing with spontaneous gestures of reverence in dozens of communities. At St. Mihiel the citizenry made pilgrimages to the "Pershing Oak," on Picardy Hill, overlooking Versailles, and wreaths were laid at the foot of the equestrian statue of the beloved general.

In London Prime Minister Attlee expressed British sympathy "at the passing of this great American soldier," who "made so outstanding a contribution to the Allied victory in the First World War."

Senora de Dillon Does Embassy Decoration

By Marie McNair

SENORA DE DILLON, wife of the Ecuadorian Ambassador, has waited a long time to move into the embassy.

Since December when the Ambassador presented his credentials until a few weeks ago she contented herself with a suite at the Mayflower Hotel, while the temperamental heating plant at the embassy was in constant state of disrepair.

MRS. McNAIR

Being a completely feminine person, liking her own things around her, loving the idea of "fixing up" her house, Senora de Dillon has done a superb job.

From the petit salon, done in muted blue with oyster white furnishings, there's a vista through the long drawing room to a tiny patio with splashing fountain and crocks of rose pink geraniums and trailing ivy on the high wall.

Deep gold brocade hangs at the French windows, oyster white heavy-pile rugs are on the floor and gold brocade covers the comfortable sofas and chairs.

The walls, delicately frescoed, are of the palest shade of ivory tinted with olive green, a tone obtained by Senora de Dillon by standing before a half dozen painters with a dozen or more buckets of paint, and supervising the blend.

On loan from the Quito Museum are a series of Seventeenth Century woodcarvings, figurines of archangels, perfect in detail, exquisite in color with a finish resembling porcelain in its smoothness.

Caspicarro was the artist, an Indian, whose real name was Chili. The name which made him famous, ironically enough, came from his misfortune, the result of caspicarro, which in English means smallpox.

SENORA DE DILLON apologizes needlessly for her English, which comes pretty close to being perfect.

Her American cook perhaps has given her an inferiority complex, for she once told her, "Madame, you speak drawing room English, and I don't understand your kitchen language." But between them they had dreamed up a delicious luncheon yesterday beginning with melon filled with iced red raspberries; lobster Thermidor, then breast of chicken and vegetables; and a whipped cream—ice cream for dessert.

Over the luncheon table in a discussion of the customs of various countries, Senora de Dillon told us of the Ambassador's grandmother, Senora de Valdez, who at the age of 93 flew up to Miami recently to visit other members of her family.

When the Dillons are at home, they are expected to go each Thursday for a family reunion dinner with Senora de Valdez, her children, their children and their children's children.

The Spanish matriarch, who's as modern as tomorrow, keeps up with all the latest beauty aids and until the war would go to Paris each year to select her wardrobe.

In the small company lunching at the embassy yesterday were wives of members of the embassy staff—Senora de Garaicoa, wife of the Minister-Counselor; Senora de Chiriboga, wife of the First Secretary, and Senora de Garcia, wife of the Commercial Counselor, all three as charming as their hostess.

Fur Elegance by Dior

THE fashion-wise hand of Christian Dior, the French designer, is evident in the unique lines and elegant detail of this black Persian broadtail coat which is currently being shown in Washington.

Dior created the canvas (cloth pattern) for this garment in his Paris workroom. The canvas, purchased several weeks ago by an American firm, was brought to Washington and transformed into the luxurious fur coat pictured above. Priced at about $2500, it is available at Jandel Furs, Inc.

This is the first year since the war that a local fur firm has sent a representative to the Paris market to purchase original models. The style changes that overtook the dress industry in the past two years did not reach the fur coat lines until recently. But this winter we will see new lines and lengths in high fashion furs. Typical of the trend is this Dior, with its sloping shoulder lines, molded waistline and intricately gathered skirt. The collar is high and close, the raglan sleeves flared at the wrists, the hemline about 4 inches above the ankle.

American adaptions of this same model, also available at Jandel's, are considerably modified. The lines are not nearly so dramatic, but the allover silhouette is much the same—slim shoulders and waistline, full skirt.

OTHER trends to watch for in the new fall collections of furs include:

More full-length coats, with the three-quarter-lengths taking a back seat.

Red Cross Seeks Canteen Workers

Daytime Red Cross Canteen volunteers are urgently needed by the District chapter, according to Mrs. H. E. F. Hawkins, chairman of the Canteen Service.

The limited number of canteen workers serving in the District Blood Center and the District Chapter's Canteen Kitchen are greatly overworked and any additional volunteer helpers will greatly relieve the pressure on them, Mrs. Hawkins said.

"If a woman can spare even a half a day a week for Red Cross Canteen work, it will help considerably," Mrs. Hawkins said. Hours in the Blood Center, where the workers serve coffee and sandwiches to blood donors are 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 1 p. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Usual requirements are that a prospective canteen worker take the 10-hour nutrition course before she can qualify, but because of the immediate need, this rule is being waived and the worker will be accepted as a provisional, with the understanding she take the next available nutrition course.

To qualify as a canteen volunteer, a woman is required—in addition to taking the nutrition course—to serve 30 hours under a regular canteen worker, and then completely fill a canteen detail in a Federal hospital. Work on the detail, which is a sort of canteen worker's test, includes everything from planning the food, ordering it, packing baskets and taking care of records, to serving the food to servicemen and veterans in a hospital.

No charge is made for the nutrition course, and the only expense involved in becoming a canteen worker is that of purchasing the nominally priced uniform.

The next Red Cross nutrition course will be held at Walsh House, 2020 Massachusetts ave., beginning July 26.

In the 12 months ended July 1, a total of 91 District Chapter Canteen workers served 8086 hours.

Anyone interested in becoming a canteen volunteer should call REpublic 8300, ext. 473.

Slimming Pleasantly

New Interests, Even New Hat, Eases Reducing

By Ida Jean Kain

Most successful reducers feel made over, physically and mentally. They like the fit of their clothes and the feel of normal weight. In fact they're usually so happy about the whole thing that they write they could shout their joy from the housetops. Naturally I like nothing better than to pass along such triumphant reports.

Today's letter, however, is quite the opposite. It is not that this overweight couldn't reduce . . . under doctor's orders she took off 60 pounds in seven months, but her spirits are in a tailspin.

"My experience is so very different from the exultant letters you publish: I do not feel as well now either mentally or physically as I did before. I attained the weight advised by my physician, and took off 60 pounds in seven months. Those seven months were a horrible nightmare of weakness, headaches, continual hunger and mental depression. I have less energy now than before my ordeal and can't seem to look ahead with any degree of anticipation. I am consciously hungry all the time. Vegetables and fruits are just so much medicine to me. Can you help in cases like mine?"

This reducer took off weight to improve her health but did it in such a way that it harmed her health. Only her doctor can say whether the harm is more mental than physical. However, that was very fast reducing, and the fact that she felt weak all the time indicates that her daily fare was not adequate in all of the protective nutrients. Also, her letter kept referring to the "ordeal."

This reducer had real courage to stay with the program, hating it the way she did. That took character. But I honestly believe she did it all wrong . . . from every angle. She got up each morning hating the day ahead and went to sleep each night hungry and highly resentful.

The fact that she is consciously hungry all the time is no doubt partly hidden hunger which should be fixed right now! She should make sure that she is getting adequate nutrition, and supplement her daily fare with a vitamin concentrate. Including in every meal a protein food to stick to the ribs will keep her from feeling put upon—an egg or two for breakfast, delicious cheese or fish or meat at lunch, and meat or fowl for dinner. At every meal she should have something she enjoys eating—that would help get that word "ordeal" out of her mind.

The Waist-Whittling pattern of eating affords perfect nutrition. To this she can add 500 calories every day. And these 500 calories can be in the foods she has felt thwarted about giving up.

To snap out of it mentally, she should make a game of keeping at normal weight and devise ways of fixing fancy dishes for few calories. But even more important, she should look for new interests in life—read books that deepen her capacity for understanding what makes for happiness . . . and maybe buy a new hat! In other words, she should stop feeling sorry for herself. Right nutrition will help, but right thinking is essential too. I hope we hear from this reducer again.

Mme. Ariburun of Turkey Says

'Good Food Makes Good Friends'

By Lucia Brown

FEW of her neighbors back home in Ankara would recognize the brew that beautiful Mme. Tekin Ariburun serves each Tuesday from 9 to 1 at the District Red Cross Building.

"Coffee?" they would say. "It can't be! Coffee is very thick, black, and sweet and served in tiny cups."

But even though Turkish coffee bears little resemblance to the American dripolated variety, the work of the Red Crescent in Mme. Ariburun's native land is very like the work of our own Red Cross. That—and the fact that she is very interested in furthering friendship between people of the two countries—is the reason Mme. Ariburun became a Red Cross volunteer worker when she came to this country with her husband, air attache at the Turkish Embassy, last year.

A native of what many Americans still regard as the mysterious Near East, Perihan Ariburun nevertheless looks completely at home in the busy canteen of the blood donor center at 1730 E st. nw. Glamorous in appearance, even in Red Cross uniform, she is also efficient and capable as she dishes up doughnuts and coffee, American style, for the volunteer donors. She speaks English well and is living proof of her own theory that women of the United States and Turkey today have much in common.

A lawyer and graduate of the University of Ankara, Mme. Ariburun is one of the group of modern Turkish women which has flowered since the country became a republic some 25 years ago. There are no veils or harems in their lives. They have the vote and equal rights and salaries with men.

She is the daughter of the late Gen. Naci Eldeniz, who was on the faculty of the National Military Academy and one of the teachers there of Kemal Ataturk, great founder of the Turkish republic. Her mother abandoned the veil to become a volunteer nurse in the First World War and is now one of the three members of the municipal council of the Turkish town in which she lives.

But though Mme. Ariburun is a lawyer and has also served as a judge, she is still extremely interested in homemaking. That has been her leading role while living here in Washington. She and Colonel Ariburun have two small children—Gulfiliz, 7, a dark-eyed miss whose name means "Rosebud" in Turkish, and Bintug, a lively little boy of 4 with a crew haircut. They, and the shy, smiling maid they brought with them from Turkey, live in a fashionable row house at 3409 Ordway st. nw.

Mme. Ariburun is enthusiastic about Turkish food, which she says is generally simple and nutritious though rich delicacies are served at parties. She likes to introduce it to American friends, for she feels that by understanding such everyday things as the food we eat and the way we dress, people of different countries draw closer in understanding of each other.

One of Mme. Ariburun's recipes—for a delicious dish known as "Sultan's Favorite"—is about 400 years old. It combines a meat stew with a sauce made of eggplant, a favorite vegetable with the Turks.

SULTAN'S FAVORITE

1½ pounds stewing lamb, cut in pieces
3 medium-sized onions
2 medium-sized tomatoes
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup water

Chop onions and tomatoes. Cook all ingredients together on low heat until the meat is tender.

SAUCE

2 pounds eggplant
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
½ teaspoon salt

Bake eggplants in oven whole until tender. Peel and chop while still warm. Make a white sauce with butter, flour and milk. Add the egg plant and stir and mash together very well.

For serving, place the meat stew in the center of a platter and arrange the eggplant sauce in a circle around it.

A TURKISH DISH that is better known in this country than most others is pilaf. There are many variations of it in Turkey, Mme. Ariburun says. She makes a basic pilaf (which can be altered in several ways) as follows:

TURKISH PILAF

2 cups rice
2 cups broth or meat stock
2 cups water
¼ pound butter
1 teaspoon salt
1 dash black pepper

Soak rice in slightly salted hot water for 1 hour, then rinse well. Put butter in large thick saucepan and when it is melted add the 2 cups of broth and 2 cups of water. Bring it to a boil. Add rinsed rice. When it boils, turn flame low and leave 20 minutes, until all the water has dried out. This recipe makes 12 servings of pilaf.

For pink pilaf, add 2 chopped tomatoes when you put rice on to cook.

For pilaf with raisins, add ½ cup seedless raisins to the melted butter. Let them plump in the butter, before adding rice and other ingredients.

For pilaf with green peas, heat 2 cups of cooked peas in a saucepan with 1 teaspoon butter and combine with the cooked pilaf.

MME. ARIBURUN knows how to make the most tempting delicacies for serving at parties. Among these are dolmas, borek, and delicious marble-sized meat balls.

The meat balls are seasoned with plenty of onion, salt, and pepper, and have a few bread crumbs mixed in with them. They are cooked to a deep brown, then served on the end of toothpicks. Borek is made with thin sheets of Oriental pastry, spread with a mixture of cottage cheese, beaten egg, and chopped parsley, then rolled up.

A recipe for the dolmas—grape leaves filled with savory stuffing and served cold—follows. (Mme. Ariburun buys the canned grape leaves and pignolia or pine nuts in a Greek grocery store here.)

DOLMAS

1 tablespoon salt
1½ cup olive oil
3 pounds onions
¾ cup pignolia nuts
1 cup currants
1 tablespoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon allspice
Pinch of dry mint leaves
2 cups raw rice
2 tablespoons sugar
Grape leaves
1 cup water

Chop onions and cook in olive oil in saucepan until pink. Wash rice well. Add to onion. Add nuts, currants, seasoning and water and cook about 15 minutes. Wrap about a teaspoonful of this mixture in each grape leaf, folding corners over and rolling up leaves well. Put them in a kettle with a few grape leaves on the bottom. Cook over a low heat about an hour. Chill thoroughly before serving on toothpicks, arranged on a platter.

Del Ankers

MADAME TEKIN ARIBURUN, wife of the air attache of the Turkish Embassy, makes American-style coffee for serving in the canteen of the Red Cross Blood Donor Center, where she is a volunteer worker. At home, though, she still favors thick, Turkish coffee, made by mixing 1 teaspoon finely ground coffee, 2 teaspoons sugar, and a demitasse of hot water

Grown All Too Soon

Mother Errs In Rushing Baby's Growth

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

We are all inclined to hurry our children toward some new phase of growth which seems to us more exciting and interesting than the one in which they are. One wisp of hair and a mother considers tying a ribbon bow upon it. One faltering step and she is quick to hold the child up, helping him to practice and perfect this new art.

A mother can hardly wait until her baby smiles or sits up and she promotes the latter by pushing pillows behind his back so he must remain rigidly erect whether he would or not.

There is no excuse for hurrying any type of development. A baby does not "learn" to walk, in the sense that he must be taught how to do it. The ability to sit up or to walk or talk or run or smile, comes with the baby, and manifests itself when he arrives at the proper stage of development. That this development differs with different children makes it all the more interesting to the parent. It's something to wait and watch for.

All any child needs, in order to accomplish these miracles, is strength and a place in which he may be physically active. The strength arrives when he is well-fed and has his daily dose of vitamin D. to put solidity into his bones and resiliency into his muscles.

He doesn't need a hand under his arm pits, he needs a wide space, a playpen, an uncluttered floor or even a crib, so he can pull up by some sturdy support and take his own sweet time about sitting erect or walking on his own two feet.

And instead of trying to hurry him into getting to be a bigger boy or girl, why not enjoy the stage of development at which he is? Each day of a baby's life unfolds vista of interest to the eagerly watching parents. There is no need to hurry, infancy itself is too soon outgrown.

About Making Dress Patterns

I saw the inquiry in your column the other day for paper to cut patterns from and thought perhaps this suggestion would help. I make my clothes and all my children's dresses and recently I have started sewing for a friend who stays with us and who is hard to fit. I find the most satisfactory material for cutting a master pattern is muslin. Cheap muslin seems to be a thing of the past, so I used an old, thin sheet the last time. A cloth that is not too closely woven is easy to pin through or, in most cases, will "stay put" without pinning, and it can be manipulated for altering or even basted together and tried on. Even the most sleazy muslin is more durable than paper and, for a pattern that is to be used several times, it is really worthwhile to buy a piece, even at present prices. J. P.

Thanks for your very practical suggestion, J. P. One note of warning: If you keep the muslin patterns for long, be careful that bias edges do not get stretched out of shape.

What kind of cloth is used for down quilts and pillows? I wish to recover old ones. A. M. B.

Cotton ticking is used to encase the down. It can be purchased by the yard at upholstery sections of department stores. For the outer cover, you could use sateen, satin, flat crepe or any of the rayon brocades.

I need help on whether or not an old wardrobe trunk can be painted or what to use on the outside. It is solid and in good condition except it is badly scarred and the hinges and other metal is rusted. There are stickers on outside which need to come off. Now for the inside: Is there a color paint like that used over wallpaper that can be painted on and that won't come off on clothes? Also, where can regular wardrobe trunk hangers be bought? M. T. B.

It will take time and patience to refurnish this trunk, but since it is structurally sound it would seem a worthwhile project. First of all, remove all the stickers by moistening them with hot vinegar. Apply the vinegar with a cloth and when the labels are thoroughly soaked, allow to stand for 15 or 20 minutes. They should then pull off easily.

Before painting the metal surfaces, all rust, dirt and loose paint should be removed by rubbing with sandpaper or steel wool. When the entire surface is very smooth, wipe away the dust. To paint it, use a flat wall paint or enamel in a suitable color. The first coat should be paint which has been thinned by adding one part turpentine to four parts paint. Brush the undercoat on thinly and allow it to dry very thoroughly for several days before applying the next coat. Apply a total of two or three coats.

If the paper lining is very tight and unbroken, you can apply any flat wall paint to it. Be very sure to allow ample time for complete drying before using. Or, you could repaper the inside of the trunk using a lively small figured wallpaper. Apply it with wheat paste, which can be purchased where you buy your paper.

It seems that hangers for wardrobe trunks are hard to get just now, but the luggage sections in the department stores have them when they are available. Perhaps by checking with these departments by phone occasionally, you will be able to get some when they do become available.

I would like to make a rose jar, but, aside from rose petals, I have no idea what is needed or how to put it together. Will you publish a recipe for it or tell me where I can find one? C. E. H.

There are many ways of making pot pourri or rose jars. The one that allows the roses to retain the most color is the dry method. Here are directions for it:

Gather the roses on a dry day, after two or three days of dry weather. Get freshly opened flowers. Pull petals off and spread thinly on a table covered with tissue paper, or on a drying frame made by stretching cheesecloth on curtain frames or between two chairs. Separate the petals so they will dry quickly, and place frame in a warm, shady place such as an attic. If there is a draft, spread cheesecloth lightly over the petals.

After 10 days, when the petals are chip dry, add 2 ounces of orris root (which acts as a fixative) to each 2 quarts of petals. Stir with a wooden spoon every other day for three weeks. Then add other ingredients, which may include herbs such as fresh, dried Basil, rosemary, or lavender; spices, cedar shavings, crushed anise seed, and essential oils such as rose geranium or bitter almond. You can devise your own formula for the pot pourri, using any or all of these, depending on what sort of fragrant ingredients you have. Spices are almost invariably used, however. Mix equal parts of ground nutmeg, cloves, cinnamon, and allspice, and use one heaping tablespoon of this to each quart of petals.

If you use one of the sweet oils, place only a drop or two on each layer of the petals as you put them in the jar. Use herbs in whatever amount you desire or have available. When all ingredients are in the jar, seal for six months before opening. Either a pottery, china or glass jar can be used. If the petals are a pretty color, they will look most attractive in a clear crystal jar and can be used as a decoration.

Roses are the flowers chiefly used in pot pourri because they retain their fragrance so much better than others. However, other colored flowers are sometimes added, too, simply to brighten up the pot pourri. A peck of fresh petals makes only about a pound and a half when dried.

If you'd like to consult a booklet that gives various other ways of making pot pourri and more complicated formulas for it, ask for "Perfumes and Household Fragrances to Make at Home" (published by the New York Journal and American Woman's Council in 1939) at the main Washington public library.

Willows Beach Colony

No beach development can be better than the basic planning and integrity of its developers. Willows Colony was created, and is being developed, with these basic principles: (1) Prospective owners must be approved by the Board of Directors; (2) Building plans must also be approved (to insure no substandard homes); (3) Nearly a mile of beach, averaging 150 ft. in depth, is dedicated to property owners forever; (4) This means the majority of beach area will never be sold or commercialized. Compare this sound protection with what you are offered elsewhere. If it doesn't equal this, you have no assurance of future improvement of property and social values. In addition, the private Beach Club provides modern conveniences for your family's immediate enjoyment. All property owners are members of the Beach Club. All lots, priced from $600, are large, many wooded, with fine views of the Bay. Wooded waterfront lots from $1,800. Generous time payments, 20% cash required. Discounts for cash. Representatives always on property. Drive to Upper Marlboro, then on Routes 4 and 416. Follow Willows Colony road signs to property.

The Thrill That Comes Once in a Lifetime

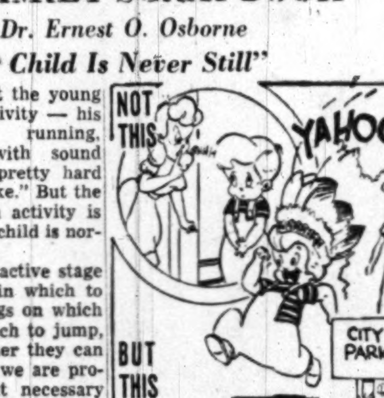

NAPOLEON

THE FAMILY SCRAPBOOK

By Dr. Ernest O. Osborne

"My Child Is Never Still"

One must admit that the young child's unceasing activity — his jumping, climbing, running, hopping — coupled with sound effects, is sometimes pretty hard for older people "to take." But the fact remains that such activity is good evidence that the child is normal and healthy.

If youngsters in the active stage have plenty of space in which to play, if they have things on which to climb and from which to jump, if in one way or another they can use their big muscles, we are providing an environment necessary for wholesome physical and emotional development.

If boisterous play disturbs grown-ups, the best solution is to provide for the children a room or a part of the yard or play periods in parks. Too frequent "shushing," too many commands to play something that's more quiet cannot help but build an unpleasant relationship between children and adults. It is as natural for children to play as it is for birds to fly. If we want them to develop normally we must avoid as much restraint as possible.

MARK TRAIL

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

To Have and To Hold . . . For 100 Years or So

Constance Steel of 1743 P st. nw. has an answer for my recently expressed wish that some of my ancestors had been foresighted enough to buy real estate back in 1813.

She says that when her grandparents were first married, they bought a country home. But grandma was afraid to live 'way out in the wilderness, "at the jumping-off place of civilization," so they sold the property.

The house and all the land brought the princely sum of $500. But I doubt if you could buy it back for that price today. That "country home, 'way out in the wilderness" is now known as "the vicinity of 19th and S sts. nw."

How'd you like to own about 40 acres of that stuff?

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

After reading about the children who raised money for Children's Hospital by selling wild flowers, my sister Susan and I decided we'd raise some money, too. We got the help of our girl friends, Pat Smith and Peggy Beegle, and went to work.

We gave our garage a good cleaning, and decorated it with paper chains and paper lanterns. Folks out here in Cheverly helped us with ice cream and cones, and we made lemonade, chocolate chip cookies, cupcakes and things for grab bags.

I drew some pictures from cartoons on the comic page, and we auctioned them off, too. Everything was either made by us (even our advertising signs) or donated.

We crammed the neighbors into our garage and within two hours we raised $20, which we are enclosing. We hope this contribution will help the children at the hospital.

Grace Watson,
2702 Lake ave., Cheverly, Md.

Dear Grace:

Your contribution will be a big help to the children in the hospital. But, what's even more important to them is the knowledge that they've made some new friends. Keep up the good work. Bill.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two house-trained kittens." (Georgia 3591).

"Three cocker spaniel puppies." (Brandywine 2563, Naylor, Md.).

"Four kittens, black and white." (HO. 1546 after 6 p. m.)

"Female French poodle; prefer country home." (Emerson 7135.)

"Mother dog and three 6-week-old puppies." (Hudson 6555.)

"Very cute 9-week-old puppy." (Sligo 4762.)

GOOD OLD POP

Mrs. J. H. Oehmann, jr., of 3916 Morrison st. nw., sagely observes that the only thing around the house that really pays for itself is papa.

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

Mrs. John H. Chandler of 52 Randolph pl. nw. got a kick out of the feeding schedule which her pediatrician made out for her. The inadvertent omission of the word "cereal" resulted in the line:

PERSONAL NOTES

Gordon Wright: The "cold war" is over, and we're going to let the Good Humor men work out their own problems.

Capt. T. N. Greene, USMC, 1230 28th st. nw.: Sorry, but I didn't get your announcement in time.

Lee Foster, 4609 29th st., Mount Rainier, Md.: You can get a booklet of James J. Metcalfe's "Portraits" by sending 25 cents in coin to the Promotion Department of The Washington Post, 1337 E st. nw.

FARMERS, UNITE!

Alumni of the National Agricultural College (formerly the National Farm School) of Farm School, Pa., are forming a Washington-Baltimore chapter of their alumni association.

Graduates of the school are invited to contact Max K. Steinberg of 3019 Douglas st. ne.

Alumni associations are probably wonderful institutions. But their chief function, as far as my own experience goes, is to think up new ways to say, "Why don't you pay up your dues?"

PIED TYPE DEPT.

C. S. Trimble of 1443 Holly st. nw. clips a letter printed recently by one of our afternoon contemporaries.

Discussing the use of "you all" in speaking to only one person, the writer holds that the erroneous use of the plural instead of the singular marks the speaker as "a very illegitimate person."

ANNOUNCEMENT

The boss says that you've been such patient readers for the past year that it's time you had a rest.

This will be the last District Line column until I return from vacation on August 9. Keep a light in the window for me.

Getting ready for my trip reminds me of some famous advice. (Was it Mark Twain's?)

To pack systematically, one should get a pencil and paper and list all the things which he might possibly require during his journey.

At the conclusion, it will be found that the list is entirely too long. One should then go through the list again, and strike out everything which he can possibly do without.

So tear up the list, throw some things in a bag, and run.

NEW YORK.—The New York nightclub owners, now confronted with the hot weather cut in their receipts, yearn for the return of Tilak Rajoberoj, the big-spending Indian who, last year, made his nightclub tours in a turban and a black silk coat which had diamond buttons. He became known as "Diamond Buttons." These diamonds, each weighing several carats, were on his sleeves and on the front of his long coat which buttoned right up to his throat . . . "Diamond Buttons" is back in India, where he said he had to stay for the Summer Riots . . . A jewelry admirer asked him once: "Where do you have your diamond-buttoned coat cleaned?" And Rajoberoj replied: "At Tiffany's."

The Alien Property Custodian, who is directing the North America Rayon Co.'s activities, is intent upon breaking the gray market in rayon and celanese. To obtain evidence for prosecution, he has found a way of tracing the merchandise sold by the company, by having secret markings in the material, visible only by X-ray . . . As do all presidential nominees, Governor Dewey now has Secret Service protection.

Lord Redesdale bought an island in the Hebrides, and deeded it to his only son, Tom Mitford—who died in Burma and left no will. Under the laws of Scotland, which apply in this case, his estate was shared only by his six sisters, and not by his father. Each sister, and her heirs, received one sixth of the island . . . One of the sisters has deeded her one sixth to the Communist Party of Great Britain. Another sixth went to the estate of Unity Mitford, the Hitler follower who was called "The Perfect Nordic Beauty" by Der Feuhrer. The Communist Party and the Hitler-lover legally are partners.

Meyer Berger wrote an article for the Saturday Evening Post, about gambling in Reno. In the course of his research, Berger played one of the slot-machines in the gambling house about which he was writing, and won $800. The magazine's editors wanted a picture of Berger standing next to that machine, for a promotion campaign. But the reporter couldn't return to Reno; he was busy covering the convention in Philadelphia for the Times. The magazine then suggested that a picture of Berger standing next to any slot machine would do. But the chief of police of Philadelphia, who promised to help, proudly reported that there wasn't a single slot machine in the city . . . Berger was photographed standing next to a machine, most of which was hidden. It's a Coca-Cola dispenser.

U.S. Sells Ridiculed Art at Profit

By Drew Pearson

It was just about a year ago that the Republican Congress was berating and bulldozing Assistant Secretary of State Bill Benton for the State Department's art exhibit— especially the portrait of the fat circus girl.

Pearson

Benton was called up to Capitol Hill, literally made to stick his nose in each portrait, as Congress scoffed at modern art. After it was all over, the Republicans proceeded to cut the State Department's cultural and propaganda funds to ribbons. Wasting money on crackpot art, they decreed, would not happen again.

Even President Truman joined privately in the fray by writing Benton a letter about art. In the end, Secretary of State Marshall decided that Benton was "too hot" politically and his resignation was accepted.

That was all about a year ago. Now comes the sequel.

The art exhibit which the Congressmen thought was such a waste of money has been sold—at a profit. The State Department bought the collection for $56,000 and has now sold it for $79,658—a profit of more than $23,000 to Uncle Sam.

The "circus girl" by Yasuo Kuniyoshi which the Congressmen so scorned, sold for $2000. The State Department had paid $700 for it.

Bill Benton, now a private citizen, tried to buy some of the pictures when they were up for auction, but was outbid each time. He didn't get one.

Note—The Congressional cut in the State Department's general propaganda funds was about as tragic as the Congressional refusal to fortify Guam before Pearl Harbor. The art collection was not important, but the curtailment of other propaganda was. Fortunately, Congress has now seen the error of its ways and has restored part of the money.

Who Shot Togliatti

There may be more than meets the eye behind the shooting of Italian Communist leader Palmiro Togliatti. In brief, the long arm of Moscow, rather than the anti-Communists, may have engineered the attempt to bump him off.

Here are the inside diplomatic facts which point to this possibility.

While it's always difficult to know what cooks inside the Kremlin, it's now pretty well established there's been a serious row between Foreign Minister Molotov on one hand, and Russia's No. 2 strong man, Cominform boss Andrei Zhdanov, on the other.

The dispute preceded the break with Tito. Zhdanov thought that Tito should be made to go through with the Cominform plan for communizing Yugoslavia. Molotov, realizing the opposition Tito had from the peasants, felt that Moscow should give him more time.

When the matter came to a vote inside the Kremlin, diplomatic sources say that Zhdanov won by three votes. So Tito was denounced publicly.

Moscow now knows the bad reaction to washing the Cominform's dirty linen in public. As a result, Molotov's hand has been strengthened; Zhdanov may be on the skids.

Molotov is reported to have argued that instead of breaking with Tito he should have been quietly assassinated. This could have been done without pinning the blame on Moscow. Or, Molotov argued, a rival Communist party should have been built up inside Yugoslavia to take over from Tito. Neither was done.

Tito and Togliatti Friends

So now, it may be Moscow is profiting from past mistakes—as far as Italy and Togliatti are concerned.

Togliatti was a friend of Tito's, made several trips to confer with Tito, received a stock of Yugoslav arms from Tito.

It is also known that Togliatti, Tito and Georgi Dimitrov, the Bulgarian Red chief, always voted together at meetings at the Cominform.

Furthermore, after the Italian elections, Togliatti went on record for the Marshall Plan. So it may be that the Kremlin, dissatisfied with Communism's failure in Italy and determined to carry out a strong, revolutionary policy, decided to get Togliatti out of the way.

Note—The assassination of a Communist leader usually plays into the hands of the Communists.

There is reason to believe that the Communists killed Liberal Colombian leader Jorge Eliecer Gaitan in order to arouse the fury of Bogota mobs during the recent Pan American Conference. At any rate, this was the effect.

No Manners In Yugoslavia

Sir Charles Peake, British Ambassador to Yugoslavia, has been cabling the London foreign office some penetrating reports on the Tito controversy, but on one recommendation he went wrong. He advised the United States and Great Britain to cable their congratulations to Tito after his break with Moscow.

London and Washington overruled Peake on this, decided to sit tight, wait for Tito to come to them.
